Abstract

This chapter explores the rise of modern Satanism and the transformation of the Satanic fantasy of the Black Mass from a terrifying Christian nightmare into a practical reality beginning in the 1960s and 1970s. It focuses on the work and thoughts of Church of Satan founder Anton Szandor LaVey, who called for the rejection of all religious fictions and the complete affirmation of the individual human self. The chapter discusses Satanism in light of the debates surrounding sex and the countercultural revolution of the 1960s and 1970s, and argues that LaVey reflected both the larger

Meet Anton LaVey, The Satanist Who Shocked 20th Century America

By Marco Margaritoff | Edited By Jaclyn Anglis

Following in the footsteps of British occultist Aleister Crowley, Anton LaVey founded the Church of Satan with an impressive talent for showmanship.

In 1966, a young American occultist named Anton LaVey founded the Church of Satan in California. While the name of his church alone was controversial, that was just the beginning.

From hosting wild orgies to publishing a Satanic Bible, Anton LaVey became infamous in the press as the "Black Pope" and the "evilest man in the world." Though LaVey was actually an atheist at heart, he wanted to celebrate Satan as a symbol of human liberation and freedom. And since he was a natural showman, he also enjoyed getting a rise out of people.

These jews using my families drugs for devil worshiping gangs. Hernandez' Narcosatanico and Barksdale's Gangster Disciples including his Devil Disciples and Satan's Disciples branches:

In the year 1961, 14-year-old David Barksdale took over leadership of the Devil's Disciples and he directly oversaw the Englewood branch of the Disciples. Barksdale appointed "Mingo" as President of the Disciples in Hyde Park and Kenwood (East Side Disciples). Richard Strong was no longer running the Disciples because his family moved to the Cabrini Green projects when Strong was 15 years old.

The Hyde Park/Kenwood chapter was at its peak around when Barksdale took over as they had members from 43rd down to 53rd between the two neighborhoods but starting in 1960 the University of Chicago backed a program to renovate southern Kenwood and northern Hyde Park by clearing out blighted buildings and renovating some of the older and salvageable homes. This action would increase the value of these neighborhoods and push impoverished black families out causing most of these families to move to Englewood. As the families began moving in the early 60s the Disciples grew stronger in Englewood and gradually a new headquarters was set up at 63rd and Stewart in the year 1963 because many homes were razed at 53rd and Kimbark in Hyde Park and the Kimbark Shopping Plaza was built over half of Disciple headquarters. The Disciples from 43rd down to 53rd moved to Englewood by 1963, further solidifying Englewood which is how GDs and BDs are so big in Englewood even up to present day.

Jefferson Davis, the first and only president of the Confederate States of America, was a Southern planter, Democratic politician and hero of the Mexican-American War who represented Mississippi in the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate. He also served as U.S. secretary of war (1853-57). Davis was chosen to serve as president of the Confederacy in 1861 and held the post until the Civil War ended in 1865.

Early Life

Born Jefferson Finis Davis in Kentucky in 1808 and raised in Mississippi, he was the 10th and youngest child in his family. His parents gave him the middle name Finis, meaning "final" in Latin.

Davis was greatly influenced by his oldest brother, Joseph, a wealthy lawyer and planter who served as a father figure, particularly after their father's death in 1824. Davis left his studies at Transylvania University in Kentucky that year to enter the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, where Joseph's connection had secured him an appointment.

Davis graduated four years later, finishing in the bottom third of his class; he was posted to an infantry regiment in Wisconsin. After serving only briefly in the Black Hawk War in 1832, he fell in love with Sarah Knox Taylor, the daughter of Colonel Zachary Taylor.

The couple contracted malaria just months after their wedding in 1835, and Sarah died. Having resigned his army commission, Davis retreated to his cotton plantation, Brierfield, built on land provided by his brother Joseph at Davis Bend, Mississippi.

After eight years immersed in plantation life, Davis emerged to begin a career in politics. A steadfast supporter of state's rights and slavery, he served as a delegate to the Democratic state convention in 1840 and 1842

But then came the letter that sent her entire world crashing down. When she was forced to take a blood test for a life insurance policy, Davis learned she was HIV positive, and had contracted the virus fr her fiance. Three years later, she was diagnosed with full-blown AIDS.

History [edit]

The origins of the Gangster Disciples began in Englewood (in Chicago, Illinois's South Side) in 1964, when then 13-year-old Larry 'The King' Hoover joined a small street gang called the 'Supreme Gangsters'. For years, the Supreme Gangsters had an outstanding war with the Black Disciples Nation, led by David Barksdale.[11] In 1969, Hoover and Barksdale agreed to a ceasefire. This resulted in the creation of the Black Gangster Disciple Nation.[12][13] By the early 1970s, the BGDN dominated the Chicago gang scene. Barksdale died of kidney failure in 1974, at the age of 27.[14] Following his death, Hoover assumed full control of the Black Gangster Disciples.

Folks Nation [edit]

In 1978, the BGDN began to splinter into three distinct factions: Black Gangsters, Black Disciples and Gangster Disciples; however, Hoover (at the time incarcerated on murder charges) prevented it by quickly setting up an alliance of all street and prison gangs in his interest into one family.[15][16]

The alliance consisted of Gangster Disciples, Black Disciples, Satan Disciples, Latin Disciples, Spanish Gangster Disciples, Ambrose, Two-Two Boys, Two-Sixers/Two-Six Boys, Simon City Royals, North Side Insane Popes, La Raza, Spanish Cobras, Imperial Gangsters, Harrison Gents, and the Latin Eagles.

The Bandidos are considered an outlaw motorcycle gang by the Australian Federal Police.[29] Numerous police investigations have targeted Bandidos members, and implicated them in illegal drugs supply and other crimes.[30][31][32] Australia's first Bandidos chapter was formed in Sydney in August 1983.[33] The club has around 400 members and 45 chapters in the country, and has recruited members of various ethnic backgrounds.[34] The Australian Bandidos are allied with the Diablos,[7] Mobshitters,[8] and Rock Machine,[9] while their rivals include the Comancheros,[8] Finks,[15] Gypsy Jokers,[17] Hells Angels,[8] Mongols,[8] Notorious,[22] Rebels[8] and Red Devils.[23]

Belgium [edit]

The Bandidos are designated a criminal motorcycle gang by Belgium's Federal Police.[35]

At the request of Dutch authorities, Belgian police searched a property in Borgloon in May 2015 as part of an operation against the Bandidos that also included raids carried out in the Netherlands and Germany.[36]

Bandidos members were among a number of people arrested in Limburg on 28 September 2020 as part of an investigation into a large-scale drug trafficking ring, which began after a shipment of almost 3,000 kilograms of cocaine was discovered at the Port of Antwerp in late 2019. Dozens

ERIKA CHAMBERS: THE MYSTERIOUS AGENT PENELOPE

David Cairns/Getty Images

Now this one has quite the mystery. It all started with the 1972 attack on the Munich Olympics, perpetrated by Palestinian terrorist group Black September, which ended in the murder of 11 Israeli athletes, reports the Times of Israel. Mossad, the Israel Intelligence agency, wouldn't let that go unpunished, successfully and dramatically launching "Operation Wrath of God," looking to eliminate those behind the Munich Massacre (via Daily Mail).

But Ali Hassan Salameh, the "Red Prince," evaded them five times, and, eventually, undercover agents in Beirut, Lebanon, tracked his movements, planting a large bomb sure to kill him. Their ace-in-the-hole was Erika Chambers, a Mossad agent posing as "Penelope," an artistic cat-lover living in a nearby apartment building. On Jan. 22, 1979, she was the one holding the detonator, setting off the bomb that killed Salameh, his bodyguards, and a bunch of innocent bystanders. Then, Chambers completely fell off the map.

A Star Historian Opens a New Chapter: Jewish Slaveowners

By Eric Herschthal
August 17, 2006

More than a decade ago, pioneering historian Natalie Zemon Davis was trudging through German archives, performing research for her book "Women on the Margins: Three Seventeenth-Century Lives." Published in 1995 and universally praised, the book was seen as vintage Davis: scholarly, but not impenetrable; groundbreaking, but not immoderate.

Although she was researching the lives of three 17th-century Europeans, Davis found a curious connection between one of her characters, Maria Sibylla Merian, and a Jewish physician in South America. Fixed on the project at hand, Davis "tucked the [Jewish doctor]" in the back of her mind, but filed away Merian's

By Eric Herschthal
August 17, 2006

More than a decade ago, pioneering historian Natalie Zemon Davis was trudging through German archives, performing research for her book "Women on the Margins: Three Seventeenth-Century Lives." Published in 1995 and universally praised, the book was seen as vintage Davis: scholarly, but not impenetrable; groundbreaking, but not immoderate.

Although she was researching the lives of three 17th-century Europeans, Davis found a curious connection between one of her characters, Maria Sibylla Merian, and a Jewish physician in South America. Fixed on the project at hand, Davis "tucked the [Jewish doctor]" in the back of her mind, but filed away Merian's

Columbine school shooter Dylan Klebold revealed he was Jewish when he mentioned dreading a family Passover seder — creating a tense moment with his fellow shooter, his mother said.

Dylan Klebold and Eric Harris had openly admired Adolf Hitler. They opened fire on students and teachers at Columbine High School in Columbine, Colorado, on the Nazi leader's birthday in 1999, killing 12 classmates and a teacher and wounding 23 people before taking their own lives.

U.S. Convicts its First-Ever Organ Trafficker

A Brooklyn man who pleaded guilty on Thursday to selling organs on the black market had a huge profit margin as he bought kidneys from Israelis for $10,000 and sold them to Americans for $120,000 or more.

A Brooklyn man who pleaded guilty on Thursday to selling organs on the black market had a huge profit margin as he bought kidneys from Israelis for $10,000 and sold them to Americans for $120,000 or more. It's a strong business model but the kink in his plan was that one of his clients was an FBI agent, Bloomberg reported. With his guilty plea, 60-year-old Levy Izhak Rosenbaum became the first person ever convicted of organ trafficking in the United States, which outlawed selling human organs in 1984. In spite of it being illegal, Rosenbaum's practice does sound like it was successful, Bloomberg reports.

Israel has admitted that in the 1990s, its forensic pathologists harvested organs from dead bodies, including Palestinians, without permission of their families.

The issue emerged with publication of an interview with the then-head of Israel's Abu Kabir forensic institute, Dr. Jehuda Hiss. The interview was conducted in 2000 by an American academic, who released it because of a huge controversy last summer over an allegation by a Swedish newspaper that Israel was killing Palestinians in order to harvest their organs. Israel hotly denied the charge.

Parts of the interview were broadcast on Israel's Channel 2 TV over the weekend. In it, Hiss said, "We started to harvest corneas ... Whatever was done was highly informal. No permission was asked from the family."

The Channel 2 report said that in the 1990s, forensic specialists at Abu Kabir harvested skin, corneas, heart valves and bones from the bodies of Palestinians and foreign workers, often without permission from relatives.

Concerns about 'organ theft' by Israel's forces from dead Palestinians were raised by Euro-Med Human Rights Monitor.

Israel's army has been accused of stealing organs from the dead in Gaza by an NGO, which called for an independent international investigation.

Euro-Med Human Rights Monitor said on Sunday it had "concerns" about possible organ theft from Palestinian corpses, following reports by medical professionals in Gaza who examined some bodies after they were released by Israel.

The NGO claimed it has documented Israeli forces confiscating dozens of dead bodies from the al-Shifa and Indonesian hospitals in northern Gaza, alongside others in the south.

Medical professionals reportedly found vital organs, such as livers, kidneys and hearts, alongside cochleas and corneas, were missing, which the Euro-Med Monitor called "evidence" of potential organ theft.

They also claimed Israel exhumed and confiscated corpses from a mass grave that was dug more than 10 days ago in a courtyard at al-Shifa.

A Fairfax County, Virginia, man was sentenced to life in federal prison Monday for his involvement in the 2019 murder of a 16-year-old.

Jose Henry Hernandez-Garcia, 29, was one of three members of the MS-13 street gang convicted in federal court on charges related to the killing of Jacson Pineda-Chicas, of Falls Church, Virginia.

Hernandez-Garcia, of Annandale, was convicted on charges of murder, racketeering and conspiracy in December 2022.

According to prosecutors, Jose Domingo Ordonez-Zometa — who they said was the leader of the MS-13 "clique" — held a meeting at his house in March 2019, where he discussed his suspicions that Pineda-Chicas was in contact with police about the gang's activities.

MEXICO CITY — The United States government imposed sanctions on three leaders of the Mara Salvatrucha street gang on Thursday as part of a broader effort to crack down on the transnational gang, which is based in El Salvador and runs human trafficking and drug operations into the United States.

The three men are all in prison in El Salvador but continue to give orders from there, according to a statement from the Treasury Department's Office of Foreign Assets Control.

The action allows the government to seize any assets the three may have in the United States and prohibits American companies and citizens from doing business with them.

One of the men, José Luis Mendoza Figueroa, is one of the founding members of the gang, known as MS-13. The other two, Élmer Canales Rivera and Eduardo Erazo Nolasco, are leaders of regional cells, known as "cliques," according to the Treasury Department.

Edinburgh - The body of a Scottish man who died in Israel was returned to his family without the heart, which had been removed during a post-mortem examination, a pathologist confirmed yesterday.

Now his family are believed to be questioning whether a heart sent later was the right one. Alistair Sinclair (47), from Selkirk, is believed to have hanged himself in jail in April after being arrested on suspicion of drug smuggling.

Israel sued over 'wrong heart'

Sinclair's brother made the claims in Tel Aviv

The family of a Scottish tourist who died in Israel say the authorities have returned the wrong heart.

Alistair Sinclair's relatives are suing Israel for one million shekels (£142,053) for removing his heart and thyroid for medical tests without their permission.

Sinclair, a musician from Selkirk in the Scottish borders, was arrested in Israel in April on his way out of the country. He was alleged to have been smuggling drugs.

Police found him the next morning hanging from his shoelaces in his cell. Police said it was suicide but Sinclair's family believe he was killed.

His body was returned for cremation, minus the heart which was removed during a post-mortem examination.

Transplant theory

A heart was later sent to the family, who ordered forensic tests in Glasgow to find out whether it matched genetic samples taken from the dead man's body before the funeral.

Speaking in Tel Aviv on Sunday, Sinclair's brother James said he believed Israel kept his brother's heart and may have even used it in an organ transplant.

Israel Steals Body Parts: Palestinians

September 13, 2009

The controversy triggered by a Swedish newspaper report about Israel's harvesting of Palestinian organs has salted the wounds of many Palestinian families haunted by the memories of loved ones who suffered the same fate.

"They claimed they came to arrest him, but in truth they came to murder him, which they did," Walid Masalmeh, a resident of the small West Bank town of Dura, 10 kilometer west of Al-Khalil (Hebron), said about his relative Bassam.

In 1995, Bassam was killed by the Israeli army at the village of Beit Awwa, located near the former armistice line between the West Bank and what is now Israel.
"But 24 hours later they returned the body with a huge scar running from the chin to the lower abdomen," Walid remembers.

"They took all the vital organs, including the heart, kidneys, Liver. Then they stuffed the empty cavities with garbage before sewing him up."

Several other Palestinians gave a similar narrative, recounting how they received the bodies of their murdered relatives, mostly men in their early twenties, with vital organs taken away by the Israeli authorities.

MS-13 gang leader Fredy Ivan Jandres-Parada was arrested at the San Ysidro Port of Entry in San Diego County on March 7 on narco-terrorism charges, authorities said. (Federal Bureau of Investigation)

Jandres-Parada's apprehension, first reported by Court Watch, comes more than three years after his indictment in December 2020 on terrorism offenses relating to the direction of MS-13's criminal activities in the U.S., El Salvador, Honduras and Mexico for nearly two decades, according to federal court documents.

He is a member of MS-13 's leadership council, initially known as the Twelve Apostles of the Devil and later renamed Ranfla Nacional, which controls thousands of MS-13 members worldwide, authorities said.

He and 13 other MS-13 leaders were indicted in the Eastern District of New York for their roles in dozens of killings, various other acts of violence, intimidation and material support of terrorists in El Salvador and throughout the United States, according to federal court documents.

(CNN) — After four years on the run, a senior leader of MS-13 – one of the largest transnational criminal organizations – was captured this month in Southern California on terrorism charges, court documents say.

Freddy Ivan Jandres-Parada was accused by federal prosecutors in the Eastern District of New York in December 2020 of being a member of MS-13's board of directors, known as the Ranfla Nacional, along with a dozen other MS-13 members, according to his indictment. Federal authorities have been searching for him since, offering a reward for his capture on the FBI's Most Wanted list.

Jandres-Parada was arrested on March 7 in San Diego by the FBI, according to federal officials. According to the detention order dated March 8, he waived his right to bail. CNN is working to identify a defense attorney for Jandres-Parada.

Federal prosecutors charged the alleged gang members with material support of terrorism and narco-terrorism, alleging the group ran "military-style training camps; obtained weapons, handguns, rifles, grenades, improvised explosive devices ('IEDs') and rocket launchers," and "directed acts of violence and murder in El Salvador, the United States and elsewhere," according to the indictment.

Jandres-Parada is one of a dozen of the Ranfla Nacional leaders who are charged with conspiracy to provide and conceal material support and resources to terrorists, conspiracy to commit acts of terrorism transcending national boundaries, conspiracy to finance terrorism and narco-terrorism conspiracy, according to the indictment.

As a member of the Ranfla Nacional, Jandres-Parada and others allegedly controlled the activities of MS-13 including approval of murders, assaults and kidnappings, extortion drug trafficking and other criminal activity, prosecutors say.

They were once America's cruelest, richest slave traders. Why does no one know their names?

The two most ruthless domestic slave traders in America had a secret language for their business.

Slave trading was a "game." The men, Isaac Franklin and John Armfield, were daring "pirates" or "one-eyed men," a euphemism for their penises. The women they bought and sold were "fancy maids," a term signifying youth, beauty and potential for sexual exploitation - by buyers or the traders themselves.

Rapes happened often.

"The payoff for Adelaide audiences will be not only the opera, directed by Neil Armfield and choreographed by Denni Sayers, who is coming to Adelaide from London for the Adelaide Festival centrepiece production, but also a Nussbaum Cohen solo recital at Adelaide Town Hall during the festival's second week... "This young performer has just turned heads, particularly across America," says Armfield, who is also the Adelaide Festival's co-Artistic Director, of Nussbaum Cohen. "He's right on the cusp of a very great career and he will be one of those voices, one of those performers, that you will remember for the rest of your lives."... "I'm very politically interested and engaged because that was my original career path," Aryeh says, pinpointing his first adult vote, for Barack Obama's re-election in 2012, as part of his political awakening... "To me it's just been so sad to see that [Donald] Trump and his enablers have taken advantage of the divisions that existed in the country... whipping up all this anger and resentment and xenophobia and all these horrible forces that as a Jew and a grandson of Holocaust survivors, it's a playbook that I'm very familiar with." "It's been just really sad to see. I'm hopeful that Biden can preside over taking us forward, but there's no question it's going to continue to be a hard time for America.""

Direction from Neil Armfield (who worked with Lapaglia on the film Holding the Man) director Theresa Borg is exemplary.

For a play that is all but three hours, there is no letdown. With few props, the action mo pace.

Its emotional resonance endures, all the more so given the current state of the world an it is for many to make ends meet.

The Sewanee Project on Slavery, Race, and Reconciliation recently brought Dr. Joshua Rothman, a professor of history at the University of Alabama and one of the foremost scholars on the domestic slave trade in the United States, to lecture on the life and historical significance of John Armfield. The lecture, titled, "'He has been for many years engaged in the traffic of human flesh': John Armfield and America's Domestic Slave Trade" explored Armfield's career and his connections with the University of the South.

Director of the Project and professor of history Woody Register (C'80) opened the event by saying that Rothman "is making history here" at Sewanee, taking special note of the fact that Rothman's lecture was the first public event to acknowledge and consider Armfield's legacy with the University.

"I've been teaching at Sewanee for many years, and for many of those many years, I've been telling my students about John Armfield," Register said. "So to me this history has been one that any student of Sewanee should or even must know. I feel very strongly about that."

Prosecutor Files Case Against Bosnian Serb Leader Dodik For Genocide Denial

Bosnia-Herzegovina's Prosecutor's Office has filed a case against Bosnian Serb leader Milorad Dodik for denial of genocide in the massacre of 8,000 men and boys at Srebrenica in eastern Bosnia in 1995.

According to Bosnian law, the office will conduct an investigation, after which th acting prosecutor will decide whether to file an indictment, officials said on March 6.

The International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) and the UN's top judicial authority, the International Court of Justice, each recognized th killings by Bosnian Serb forces commanded by Ratko Mladic at Srebrenica late i the 1992-95 Bosnian war as genocide.

Dodik has on multiple occasions denied genocide since the-then international high representative for Bosnia, Valentin Inzko, imposed the Law on Prohibition of Genocide Denial at the end of July 2021.

Police arrested Joseph Dodick early Sunday morning on drug charges — five years and two days after Dodick killed 20-year-old Michael Mikulin in a Thanksgiving Day car crash.

Dodick, 23, of Geneva, was driving on North Broadway at Depot Street when Officer Roger Wilt noticed the car's license plate was not illuminated, police reports show.

"The vehicle Dodick was driving had been seen several times at a residence with high drug activity," Wilt reported.

Wilt called sheriff's deputies for a canine backup. The dog alerted to the car, indicating narcotics were present, Wilt said.

Gangster Generation: Crime, Jews and the Problem of Assimilation

Rachel Rubin
University of Massachusetts Boston

"Gangster Generation: Crime, Jews, and the Problem of Assimilation" examines cultural representations of Jewish criminals over the course of the twentieth century. The essay seeks to demonstrate that for several successive generations following the mass immigration of Jews to the United States, these figures have been invoked and described as a kind of index to the possibility—and desirability—of Jewish assimilation into the American mainstream. Taking into its purview accounts of Jewish mobsters ranging from newspaper stories and nonfiction writing to memoir, movies, and a popular TV series, the essay shows that the Jewish gangster has proved to be a figure flexible enough to accommodate and reflect changes in the social position and the cultural needs of Jews in America.

According to legend, Meyer Lansky, one of the longest-lived and most powerful Jewish gangsters in U.S. history, once described his success in the following terms: "We're bigger than U.S. Steel." Whether Lansky ever actually said this—and whether it was literally true—is beside the point: Lansky's boast manages to convey not only the prominence of men such as Lansky, Dutch Schultz, Bugsy Siegel, Gyp the Blood, and scores of others, but also offers a way of evaluating these men's success that is pointedly American and deliberately conventional.

At very least, Lansky was right in principle. From its origin in the 1880s, to a peak of accomplishment during Prohibition, the Jewish underworld flourished in ghettos such as New York's Lower East Side, Chicago's West Side, or those in Detroit, Boston, Baltimore, and other places. During this time Jews contributed some of the United States' foremost bootleggers, racketeers, panderers, and professional killers, culminating most famously in the Jewish-Italian criminal syndicate dubbed "Murder, Inc." by contemporary journalists.

After a few lucrative and bloody decades, though, the heyday of the Jewish gangster was over. The end of Prohibition necessitated a restructuring of organized crime's business plan to emphasize other sources of income, gambling in particular. Furthermore, following World War I, Jews in huge numbers were leaving the old urban neighborhoods that had given birth to the gangsters; a result of these two factors was that Jewish gangsters became much less visible or even went "legit." By the 1950s, Jewish gangsters had disappeared from the newspaper headlines and political dis-

The Notorious Purple Gang: Detroit's All-Jewish Prohibition Era Mob

Robert A. Rockaway
Tel-Aviv University

During Prohibition (1920–1933), Jewish gangsters became major operatives in the American underworld and played prominent roles in the creation and extension of organized crime in the United States. At the time, Jewish gangs dominated illicit activities in a number of America's largest cities, including Cleveland, Detroit, Minneapolis, Newark, New York, and Philadelphia. One of the more notorious of these all-Jewish mobs was Detroit's Purple Gang. The gang dealt in bootlegging, gambling, extortion, drugs, and murder, and developed a reputation for being more ruthless than Al Capone's mob in Chicago. The Purple's decade-long reign of terror ended when most of the gang's members either went to prison or were murdered by rivals.

After World War I, Jewish gangsters became major operatives in the American underworld and played prominent roles in the creation and extension of organized crime in the United States. During the Prohibition era (1919–1933) 50 percent of the country's leading bootleggers were Jews, and Jewish criminals financed and directed much of the nation's narcotics traffic. Jewish gangs also dominated illicit activities in a number of America's largest cities, including Cleveland, Detroit, Minneapolis, Newark, New York and Philadelphia.[1] Perhaps the most notorious of these all-Jewish mobs was Detroit's Purple Gang.

In this Spanish name, the first or paternal surname is Méndez and the second or maternal family name is Vargas.

José de Jesús Méndez Vargas
Born	February 28, 1961 (age 63)[1] El Aguaje, Michoacán, Mexico
Other names	El Chango[2]
Occupation	Leader of La Familia Michoacana
Criminal status	Arrested $2.1 million USD bounty
Criminal charge	Drug trafficking, extortion, kidnapping, murder

José de Jesús Méndez Vargas (born 28 February 1974), commonly referred to by his alias El Chango ("The Ape"), is a Mexican drug lord and former leader of the now disbanded La Familia drug cartel, headquartered in the state of Michoacán.[3][4][5]

Méndez took control of the cartel after its former leader, Nazario Moreno, was allegedly killed in a shootout with Mexican Federal Police on December 9, 2010.[6] His protection was the responsibility of twelve gunmen he called the "Twelve Apostles".[7] His leadership, however, was disputed by Servando Gómez Martínez and Enrique Plancarte Solís who left the organization and formed the Knights Templar.

Kingpin Act sanction [edit]

On 25 February 2010, the United States Department of the Treasury sanctioned Méndez under the Foreign Narcotics Kingpin Designation Act (sometimes referred to simply as the "Kingpin Act"), for his involvement in drug trafficking along with twenty-one other international criminals and ten foreign entities.[8] The act prohibited U.S. citizens and companies from doing any kind of business activity with him, and virtually froze all his assets in the U.S.[9]

Arrest [edit]

Méndez was captured at a road checkpoint on June 21, 2011 by Mexican Federal police in the state of Aguascalientes.[10] The Mexican government had offered a $30 million pesos (US$2.1 million) bounty for information leading to Méndez's capture.[11] On 8 April 2014, a Mexican federal court rejected Méndez's writ of amparo (equivalent to an injunction) to prevent his extradition to the United States, where he is wanted in a New York federal court for drug trafficking offenses.[12]

Mexican police arrest alleged head of La Familia cartel

Swoop on José de Jesús Méndez Vargas is big blow to organised crime, says President Felipe Calderón

Mexican authorities say they have dealt a debilitating blow to major organised crime in the west of the country after apprehending the leader of the cult-like, pseudo-Christian La Familia cartel.

José de Jesús Méndez Vargas, known as El Chango, or The Monkey, was arrested in the central state of Aguascalientes without confrontation or casualties, according to federal security spokesman Alejandro Poire.

President Felipe Calderón lauded the arrest on Twitter, calling it a "big blow" to organised crime. After the death of La Familia founder and leader Nazario Moreno González in December, Poire said Méndez Vargas was the last remaining head of a criminal group responsible for homicides, kidnappings, extortion and corruption.

The 18th Street Gang, also known as Calle 18, Barrio 18, Mara 18, or simply 18 in North America,[1][12][13][14] is a multi-ethnic (largely Central American and Mexican) transnational criminal organization that started as a street gang in Los Angeles. It is one of the largest transnational criminal gangs in Los Angeles, with 30,000-50,000 members between the United States, Mexico, and Central America and is also allied with the Mexican Mafia, another US-based crime organization.[citation needed] A United States Department of Justice report featured the following statement regarding 18th Street and rival gang MS-13. "These two gangs have turned the Central American northern triangle into the area with the highest homicide rate in the world."[15]

History [edit]

The 18th Street Gang was formed in the Rampart District of Los Angeles in the 1960s by Mexican-Americans and other immigrant youths who were not accepted into existing Hispanic gangs.[1] They were originally part of Clanton 14 [further explanation needed] but wanted to make a separate "clique" called Clanton 18th Street and allow immigrants the opportunity to join. This proposal was rejected by the Clanton 14, which led to the formation of the 18th Street Gang.[3][16] The two gangs have been bitter rivals ever since.[16]

18th Street grew by expanding its membership to other nationalities and races, and it was among the first multiracial, multi-ethnic gangs in Los Angeles.[1] In the beginning, they were made up largely of second-generation Hispanics.[1] As the 18th Street Gang began to battle with more established Hispanic gangs, they began to recruit outside the Hispanic community. There are approximately 200 separate individual autonomous gangs operating under the same name within separate barrios in the San Fernando Valley specifically in North Hollywood, the San Gabriel Valley, South Bay, Riverside, East Los Angeles, South Los Angeles, Hollywood, Downtown Los Angeles, Northeast Los Angeles, Pico Union, Westlake, Koreatown, Inglewood, South Gate, Huntington Park, Maywood, Bellflower, Long Beach, Orange County, San Bernardino County, and Los Angeles' Westside or West LA, according to the latest figures from the NDIC. [citation needed] In the early 2000s, the Federal Bureau of Investigation initiated wide scale raids against known and suspected gang members, netting hundreds of arrests across the country.

PORTLAND, Ore. (KPTV) - A leader of a Portland gang will spend more than a decade behind bars for his role in a drug trafficking operation, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office - District of Oregon.

On Tuesday, Gustavo Torres-Mendez, leader of the 18th Street Gang, was sentenced to 14 years in federal prison, plus five years of supervised released.

The U.S. attorney's office says investigators obtained evidence by late summer 2022 that Torres-Mendez and a close associate were leading a criminal enterprise that was selling counterfeit Oxycodone pills containing fentanyl, methamphetamine and cocaine in and around the Portland metro area.

By early September 2022, investigators learned Torres-Mendez and several associates were trying to collect money for a large drug purchase and, within days, the group had collected more than $126,000.

Police stopped a car near Grants Pass on Sept. 7, 2022, that was connected to the gang and found more than 104 pounds of meth and eight pounds of cocaine, according to the U.S. attorney's office.

A Fairfax County, Virginia, man was sentenced to life in federal prison Monday for his involvement in the 2019 murder of a 16-year-old.

Jose Henry Hernandez-Garcia, 29, was one of three members of the MS-13 street gang convicted in federal court on charges related to the killing of Jacson Pineda-Chicas, of Falls Church, Virginia.

Hernandez-Garcia, of Annandale, was convicted on charges of murder, racketeering and conspiracy in December 2022.

According to prosecutors, Jose Domingo Ordonez-Zometa — who they said was the leader of the MS-13 "clique" — held a meeting at his house in March 2019, where he discussed his suspicions that Pineda-Chicas was in contact with police about the gang's activities.

MEXICO CITY — The United States government imposed sanctions on three leaders of the Mara Salvatrucha street gang on Thursday as part of a broader effort to crack down on the transnational gang, which is based in El Salvador and runs human trafficking and drug operations into the United States.

The three men are all in prison in El Salvador but continue to give orders from there, according to a statement from the Treasury Department's Office of Foreign Assets Control.

The action allows the government to seize any assets the three may have in the United States and prohibits American companies and citizens from doing business with them.

One of the men, José Luis Mendoza Figueroa, is one of the founding members of the gang, known as MS-13. The other two, Élmer Canales Rivera and Eduardo Erazo Nolasco, are leaders of regional cells, known as "cliques," according to the Treasury Department.

MASH UNITS WERE CONCEIVED AND DEVELOPED BY DEBAKEY AND THE SURGICAL CONSULTANTS IN THE FIRST YEARS OF WORLD WAR II

June 21, 2016 | Leave a comment

The auxiliary surgical hospitals (later called Mobile Army Surgical Hospitals) were conceived and developed by DeBakey and the Surgical Consultants in the first years of World War II. They greatly improved battlefield injury survival rates by getting surgical care closer to the front lines. Photos like this, taken during the Korean war (1950-1953), provide a closer look at the operations of the surgical units, including the addition of helicopters for transporting the wounded.

(Michael Ellis DeBakey)

OBITUARY NOTICE—

See index for CA sketch: Born September 7, 1908, in Lake Charles, LA; died July 11, 2008, in Houston, TX. Physician, surgeon, inventor, educator, administrator, and author. DeBakey is revered as one of America's greatest, and also longest-serving, physicians. His career began in the early 1930s when he invented a hand-operated roller pump that could replace human heart-lung operation during surgery without damaging the patient's red blood cells. When he walked out of the operating room for the last time nearly seventy years later, he had revolutionized the field of cardiovascular medicine. DeBakey performed tens of thousands of surgical procedures on patients from all walks of life, including movie stars and world leaders. His life-saving inventions included the roller pump, the Dacron vascular graft, and a partial artificial heart called the left ventricular assist device. He was one of the first Americans to perform a human heart transplant, to repair damaged arteries with Dacron grafts or with veins from the patient's own legs, and he made coronary bypass surgery a nearly routine procedure. DeBakey was affiliated with Baylor University for most of his career. He joined the faculty in Houston in 1948 and was instrumental in building the small, nearly bankrupt college of medicine into a world-famous complex of surgical and cardiovascular research centers. He became the chancellor of the medical college in 1969. DeBakey was also energetic outside the operating room and the classroom. He is credited with the concept for the first mobile army surgical hospitals (MASH units) that debuted during the Korean War. He transformed the National Library of Medicine from a chaotic collection of documents into a world-renowned treasury of medical knowledge. He advised presidents from Harry S Truman to George W. Bush, including the support he offered John F. Kennedy for the successful launch of the Medicare program. He was also an early campaigner against tobacco and smoking. DeBakey performed or assisted in surgeries into his late eighties or early nineties, but he never retired fully from medicine or teaching. A lingering topic of interest was his

Pioneers in Cardiothoracic Surgery: Dr. Michael Ellis DeBakey

By Susan Eymann, MS | 18 Jan 2017

Perhaps no one person embodies the advancements in the surgical treatment of cardiovascular diseases during the 20th century more than Dr. Michael Ellis DeBakey. As a world-renowned scientist, innovator, medical educator, administrator, author, medical statesman and humanitarian, his name has become synonymous with firsts in surgery, biomedical innovations and the establishment of several educational and medical institutions.

Michael Ellis DeBakey was born in Lake Charles, Louisiana in 1908 to Lebanese immigrant parents Shaker and Raheeja Dabaghi (later Anglicized to DeBakey). He received both his B.S. and M.D. degrees from Tulane University in New Orleans. While in medical school, DeBakey developed the roller pump, which later became an essential component of the heart-lung machine that led the way to open heart surgery.

DeBakey remained in New Orleans for his internship and residency at Charity Hospital before traveling to Europe to pursue surgical fellowships at the University of Strasbourg, France and the University of Heidelberg, Germany. Upon his return to the states in 1937, he joined the surgical faculty at Tulane Medical School. There, he and his mentor Dr. Alton Ochsner, were among the first to postulate a connection between cigarette smoking and lung cancer. DeBakey stayed at Tulane until his 1948 appointment at Baylor University College of Medicine in Houston where he remained and held various appointments for the remainder of his 75-year career.

During World War II, DeBakey volunteered to serve in the U.S. Army, where he helped to revolutionize wartime medicine by supporting the stationing of doctors closer to the front lines. This concept resulted in the development of Mobile Army Surgical Hospital (MASH) units that later saved countless lives during the Korean and Vietnam wars. His work with the U.S. Surgeon General's office also led to the Department of Veterans

BELLA ABZUG (CIARA PLANCARTE)

Bella Abzug was born Bella Savitzky on July 24, 1920 in New York, New York. She was a lawyer, politician and overall activist. Bella's interest in women's rights was prominent at a young age. Abzug's women's rights career was triggered by an observation at a synagogue; Bella realized that even in a synagogue, where each individual as seen as "equal", the women were forced to sit in the back pews. Again, Bella had to face gender discrimination when she was rejected by Harvard Law School because she was a woman. She then applied to Columbia University where she eventually graduated.

In the 1960's Bella was involved in many peace movements which ultimately led her to help organize the Women Strike for Peace (WSP). The topics the WSP were lobbying against job equality, sexism, etc. The WSP effectively challenged national policies which resulted in favor or Bella Abzug and her colleagues. She helped to establish the National Women's Political Caucus where she worked alongside Betty Friedan. In 1971, Bella became a congressman in the U.S. House of Representatives where she was determined to make an even greater impact on the policies the United States passed; ensuring women's rights were respected and recognized. Over the span of six years, Bella Abzug brought women's rights to the forefront of the U.S. congress; she left office in 1977. For decades Bella continued to be a dominant voice in protests against war and sexism. She even began the Women's Environmental Development Organization in 1990. Unfortunately, Bella Abzug later died on March 31, 1998.

Earlier today, in federal court in Houston, Jose Wilfredo Ayala-Alcantara, also known as "Indio de Hollywood," a high-ranking leader of La Mara Salvatrucha, also known as "MS-13," was transferred to the Eastern District of New York where he, together with 12 other high-ranking MS-13 leaders, are charged with directing the transnational criminal organization's criminal activities in the United States, El Salvador, Mexico, and elsewhere over the past two decades. Ayala-Alcantara was arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), Homeland Security Investigations (HSI), and the United States Marshals Service (USMS) on April 18, 2023 when he arrived at George Bush Intercontinental Airport in Houston, Texas. The Birth of the MS13's Mexico Program

by Carlos García 15 Feb 2022

On March 2, 2021, El Salvador police announced an unexpected arrest: that of Hugo Armando Quinteros Mineros, alias "Flaco," of the Francis Locos clique. His capture took authorities by surprise. For they believed Flaco was abroad, running one of the MS13's most ambitious projects: the Mexico Program.

On the day of his arrest, Flaco looked worn out, his drawn face worthy of his nickname, meaning "Skinny." He had plenty to worry about.

"This article is part of a four-part investigation, "MS13 & Co.," diving into how the MS13 grew from humble beginnings to become a business powerhouse with investments in numerous businesses, both legal and illegal, across the Northern Triangle. Read the complete investigation here or download the full PDF.

Flaco was among the most-wanted fugitives in El Salvador and the United States and was one of 14 gang leaders accused of terrorism by the US Department of Justice in January 2021.

The veteran gang member had spent a lengthy stint on the run after being deported from Mexico in 2019 and subsequently granted liberty by the Salvadoran court system for unclear reasons. Even now, the US has requested his extradition, but there have been no updates on his case since shortly after his arrest last March.

The MS13's Mexico program, meanwhile, has kept chugging along.

El Flaco

Flaco's reputation among the MS13 is legendary. He was one of the original emeeses (the phonetic spelling for MS13 members) who left El Salvador for California to avoid joining the military during the country's civil war in the 1980s.

The "golden age of alchemy", which fell on 13th-17th centuries, resulted in numerous alchemical treatises, created by medieval scholars, venturing clergymen and mysterious kabbalists. One of them - "Cabala Mineralis" - suggested using urine as a possible ingredient for the elixir of immortality. A manuscript, located at London British Museum, dates back to the middle of the XV century and is ascribed to Rabbi Simeon Ben Cantara.

Colourful illustrations of this book explain how urine of a young boy can be used as a source of ammonium: "Our ammoniac is not that of the vulgar". Ammonium then shall be used together with mercury as essential components of philosopher's stone.

Casper Holstein

Native Virgin Islander Casper Holstein, somewhere in the 1920s, had more than $2 million, even though some records suggest it could be higher. Whatever the actual figure, Holstein was for many years a wealthy businessman in Harlem.

Despite earning his riches from illegal gambling services, he was loved by many, especially people in African-American communities because he used his resources to support the poor and needy, including those back home in the Virgin Islands.

Born Egbert Joseph on December 7, 1876, in Christiansted, St. Croix, Danish West Indies, now known as the U.S. Virgin Islands, Holstein and his mother moved to New York in 1894. He lived in Harlem and attended high school in Brooklyn.

Manhattan College was founded by the De La Salle Christian Brothers in 1853. The College moved from Manhattan to the Riverdale/Kingsbridge area of the Bronx in 1923. In the 1960s, after the Vatican II document "Nostra Aetate," the New York Diocese and the Anti Defamation League planned to work together to improve Catholic-Jewish relations. The Archbishop requested that Manhattan College prepare for him a 60 page summary about Judaism. A young history professor, Frederick M. Schweitzer, was assigned the task. The 60 pages became a 300 page book, and a professor found his life's work. Dr. Schweitzer's study of Judaism, Anti-Semitism, and the Holocaust led to 4 books, numerous articles and lectures, and in 1996 the founding of the Manhattan College Holocaust Resource Center. The Manhattan College Holocaust Resource Center grew out of discussions between concerned faculty and administrators at the College led by Rose Santos-Cunningham, Brother Peter Drake, F. S. C., and Frederick Schweitzer and members of the Riverdale community, most notably Martin Spett, Lou Falkenstein, and the late Martin Richman during the 1995-1996 academic year. The Center's Charter was approved by the President of the College, Brother Thomas Scanlan, F. S. C. in 1996.

Dr. Schweitzer, the first Director of the Holocaust Resource Center, engaged in outreach to the Jewish community, scheduled lectures by Holocaust scholars, and conducted workshops for area teachers. He was later assisted by Dr. Jeff, a history professor, who became Director in 2007 after Dr. Schweitzer retired and became Director Emeritus. The beginning of the history of the Latin Kings goes back to the year 1954 in the Near West Side neighborhood at the intersection of Laflin and Van Buren. A young Cuban youth that was raised in Puerto Rico, Ramon Santos, put together a club of three boys (including himself) close to his age that included his step brother "Fast Eddie" who was Puerto Rican. The club was named the "Imperials" and was formed to defend against racial strife the boys faced against racist Italian and Greek gangs in the area that had deep anti-Puerto Rican sentiments.

The club quickly grew to include five members including King Papo, the other four members were Jose "Cadillac Joe" Rivera a Puerto Rican, Eddie "King Tiger" Rodriguez a Puerto Rican, and "Fast Eddie" a Puerto Rican and Joe Gunn a Mexican youth. Soon after that four more joined that included 19-year-old Julio "Compa" Munoz. The main symbol for the Imperials was a crown which gave birth to the crown the Latin Kings use today accept back then the crown only had three points.

The Imperials were a reclusive organization that mostly moved in silence to avoid the press and they did not seek social services like many other gangs in the neighborhood did at Hull House or other club houses.

Starting in the mid-1950s and escalating by the end of the decade many Puerto Rican families were fleeing the Near West Side community and the Old Towne neighborhood when the Carl Sandburg Village was built over the "La Clark" Puerto Rican settlement. La Clark and "La Madison" settlements began to clear out in 1959 as both settlements began moving into Wicker Park. Santos moved away from Laflin and Van Buren and came to Leavitt and Schiller in 1959 and many Imperials came with him. Other members would move into West Humboldt Park by Beach and Spaulding. Ramon Santos, now known as "King Papo" moved to Leavitt and Schiller right next to the playground at Albert R. Sabin elementary school located at 2216 W Hirsch St. while "Batman" moved to Beach and Spaulding in West Humboldt Park. The Imperials were the first Hispanic gang in Wicker Park or on the whole north side of Chicago in history! We'll pick up on this part of the story a little further down but first we need to look at another part of the story.

History

King Motherland Chicago faction

The Latin Kings were founded in the Humboldt Park area of Chicago in 1954 by Ramon Santos as the Imperials, a Puerto Rican progress movement with the goal of overcoming racial discrimination.[2] With the Latino community facing constant violence from Greek and Italian greaser gangs, the Imperials merged with various other Puerto Rican and Mexican street gangs to form the Latin Kings.[1] The gang was pivotal in the development of a broader gang culture in Humboldt Park that exists today. With its original focus being on fighting back against discrimination, the gang would later, however, devolve into a criminal enterprise operating throughout the United States. There are two umbrella factions: the King Motherland Chicago (KMC) – also known as King Manifesto and Constitution – and Bloodline, formed in New York City in 1986. All members of the gang identify themselves as Latin Kings.[3]

Latin Kings associating with the Motherland faction also identify themselves as "Almighty Latin King Nation" (ALKN); they make up more than 160 structured chapters operating in 158 cities in 31 states. The membership in Chicago is estimated to be 20,000 to 35,000.[27]

The Chicago faction of the Latin Kings is recognized as one of the largest Hispanic street gangs in the United States after the Sureños and Norteños, as well as MS-13 and the 18th Street gang, and one of the largest street gangs based in Chicago.[28] Their greatest membership is within the United States; in the city of Chicago alone, the gang has more than 25,000 members.[29] The Latin Kings have also organized chapters in numerous states and several Latin American and European countries.[30]

Columbine Shooter Had Jewish Roots — Dreaded Passover Seder

February 19, 2016

Columbine school shooter Dylan Klebold revealed he was Jewish when he mentioned dreading a family Passover seder — creating a tense moment with his fellow shooter, his mother said.

Dylan Klebold and Eric Harris had openly admired Adolf Hitler. They opened fire on students and teachers at Columbine High School in Columbine, Colorado, on the Nazi leader's birthday in 1999, killing 12 classmates and a teacher and wounding 23 people before taking their own lives.

Dylan's mother, Sue Klebold, confirmed to radio host Terry Gross on "Fresh Air" Tuesday that she is Jewish, and her now ex-husband, Dylan Klebold's father, is Lutheran, and said her son had not wanted to attend the family's Passover seder, which took place weeks before the shooting.

Bosnia-Herzegovina's Prosecutor's Office has filed a case against Bosnian Serb leader Milorad Dodik for denial of genocide in the massacre of 8,000 men and boys at Srebrenica in eastern Bosnia in 1995.

According to Bosnian law, the office will conduct an investigation, after which th acting prosecutor will decide whether to file an indictment, officials said on March 6.

The International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) and the UN's top judicial authority, the International Court of Justice, each recognized th killings by Bosnian Serb forces commanded by Ratko Mladic at Srebrenica late i the 1992-95 Bosnian war as genocide.

Dodik has on multiple occasions denied genocide since the-then international high representative for Bosnia, Valentin Inzko, imposed the Law on Prohibition of Genocide Denial at the end of July 2021.

Associated Press

Police arrested Joseph Dodick early Sunday morning on drug charges — five years and two days after Dodick killed 20-year-old Michael Mikulin in a Thanksgiving Day car crash.

Dodick, 23, of Geneva, was driving on North Broadway at Depot Street when Officer Roger Wilt noticed the car's license plate was not illuminated, police reports show.

"The vehicle Dodick was driving had been seen several times at a residence with high drug activity," Wilt reported.

Wilt called sheriff's deputies for a canine backup. The dog alerted to the car, indicating narcotics were present, Wilt said.

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

In this Spanish name, the first or paternal surname is Oseguera and the second or maternal family name is Cervantes.

Nemesio Rubén Oseguera Cervantes (Latin American Spanish: [neˈmesio oseˈɣera serˈβantes]; born 17 July 1966, or 17 July 1964), commonly referred to by his alias El Mencho ([elˈmentʃo]), is a Mexican drug lord and leader of the Jalisco New Generation Cartel (CJNG), an organized crime group based in Jalisco. He is the most-wanted person in Mexico and one of the most-wanted in the U.S. The US government, as well as the Mexican government, is offering $10 million and $30 million respectively for information leading to his arrest.

He is wanted for drug trafficking, organized crime involvement, and undocumented possession of firearms. El Mencho is allegedly responsible for coordinating global drug trafficking operations. Under his command, the CJNG became one of Mexico's leading criminal organizations.

Born into poverty in Mexico, El Mencho grew avocados and dropped out of primary school before immigrating illegally to the U.S. in the 1980s. After being arrested several times, he was deported to Mexico in the early 1990s and worked for the Milenio Cartel.[2] He eventually climbed to the top of the criminal organization and founded the CJNG after several of his bosses were arrested or killed.

His notoriety is also a result of his aggressive leadership and sensationalist acts of violence against both rival criminal groups and Mexican security forces alike. These attacks brought him increased government attention and an extensive manhunt. Security forces suspect he is hiding in the rural terrains of Jalisco, Michoacán, Nayarit, and/or Colima, and is guarded by mercenaries with former military training.

In February 2022 unconfirmed reports began to surface stating that El Mencho had died from respiratory arrest while undergoing treatment in a private hospital in Guadalajara.[3]

However, U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent Kyle Mori, who heads the search for El Mencho, denied rumors of his death in an interview he gave to KFI AM's in March 2023.[4]

The Jalisco New Generation Cartel (Spanish: Cártel de Jalisco Nueva Generación) or CJNG,[39][40][41][42] is a Mexican criminal syndicate, based in Jalisco and headed by Nemesio Oseguera Cervantes ("El Mencho").[43] The cartel has been characterized by extreme violence and public relations campaigns.[4] Though the CJNG is known for diversifying into various criminal rackets, drug trafficking (primarily cocaine and methamphetamine) remains its most profitable activity.[6][4] The cartel has been noted for cannibalizing some victims during the training of new sicarios or members, as well as using drones[7][44][27] and rocket-propelled grenades to attack enemies.[45]

CJNG started in 2009 as one of the splits of the Milenio Cartel, the other being La Resistencia. CJNG defeated La Resistencia and took control of Millenio's smuggling networks. CJNG expanded its operation network from coast to coast in six months, making it one of the criminal groups with the greatest operating capacity by 2012.[46][47] Following emergence of the cartel, homicides, kidnappings and discoveries of mass graves spiked in Jalisco.[4] By 2018, the CJNG was believed to have over 100 methamphetamine labs throughout Mexico. Based on average street value, its trade could net upwards of $8 billion for cocaine and $4.6 billion for crystal meth each year.[6][48][49][50][51][52][53][34] The CJNG are fighting the Nueva Plaza Cartel for control of Guadalajara; La Unión Tepito for Mexico City; Los Viagras and La Familia Michoacana for the states of Michoacán and Guerrero; Los Zetas in the states of Veracruz and Puebla; Cártel del Noreste in Zacatecas; the Sinaloa Cartel in Baja California, Sonora,[54] Ciudad Juárez, Zacatecas and Chiapas; as well as the Santa Rosa de Lima Cartel in Guanajuato.[55] They have an alliance with the Cártel del Golfo in Zacatecas and La Línea in Juárez.[20]

CJNG is considered by the Mexican government to be one of the most dangerous criminal organizations in Mexico[26] and second most powerful drug cartel after the Sinaloa Cartel.[56] CJNG is heavily militarized and more violent than other criminal organizations. It has a special operations group for specific types of warfare.[57] Its hitman training program is strict and Érick Valencia Salazar (Spanish pronunciation: [ˈerik βaˈlensɟa salaˈsar]; born 11 March 1977 or 19 November 1982), commonly referred to by his alias El 85, is a Mexican drug lord and high-ranking leader of the Nueva Plaza Cartel.[1][2][3] He previously served as a high-ranking leader of the Jalisco New Generation Cartel (CJNG), a criminal group based in Jalisco. The Mexican Army suspects he was responsible for supervising the CJNG's cocaine and ephedrine delivery shipments from Colombia and China to Mexico, and for coordinating attacks against rival groups like La Resistencia and Los Zetas in the 2010s. Before leading the CJNG, Valencia reportedly held a leadership role within the Milenio Cartel, the predecessor group where the CJNG originated from. When several of his superiors were arrested and/or killed, Valencia and several others from the Milenio Cartel reportedly formed the CJNG.

On 3 March 2012, the Mexican Army arrested Valencia in Zapopan, Jalisco. The arrest triggered a series of coordinated attacks carried out by the CJNG to try to rescue Valencia. Throughout the states of Jalisco and Michoacán, the CJNG hijacked 25 vehicles and set them on fire across multiple highways. Three people were killed and sixteen suspects were arrested. On 27 December 2017, Valencia was released from prison after a judge concluded there were violations in his due process and because of insufficient

Jewish liberal Claudia Sheinbaum likely to win this week's Mexican presidential election, polls show

BY PHILISSA CRAMER | MAY 30, 2024 | 9:33 AM

Claudia Sheinbaum vaulted to the top of the Mexican presidential polls last year when she was selected as the candidate for the left-wing Morena party, which has been led by the country's popular outgoing president, Andrés Manuel López Obrador.

Now, with the election days away, Sheinbaum's lead over Xóchitl Gálvez, her center-right opponent, has only widened — making it even more likely that the country will elect both its first woman president and the first leader from a Jewish family.

With a population of 127 million, Mexico would become the largest country by far to have a head of state with a Jewish background.

A former mayor of Mexico City, Sheinbaum is a respected scientist and political liberal who has taken credit for beating back crime. Unlike López Obrador, she comes from an affluent family, has lived in the United States and speaks English fluently. But she has been his political protege for decades, and her candidacy is widely understood as a way to extend his popular policies even though Mexico limits presidents to one term.

Sheinbaum's Jewish background has barely come up on the campaign trail. But she has always been open about her family's story: Sheinbaum had Ashkenazi grandparents who immigrated from Lithuania in the 1920s and Sephardic grandparents who left Sofia, Bulgaria, in the 1940s to escape the Holocaust. She has said that she celebrated holidays at her grandparents' houses, but at home with her political activist parents, her family life was secular.

Home to an estimated 50,000 Jews, Mexico is known for having multiple tight-knit Jewish communities, many of which don't mingle much. Sheinbaum — who married her second husband, Jesús María Tarriba, in November — is not part of any of them.

"She's not seen as, let's say, one of us," Daniel Fainstein, the dean of Jewish Studies at the Hebraica University in Mexico City, told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency last year. "I think that she's seen as someone from Jewish origins that is developing her work as an academician and then as a politician."

WEST COLUMBIA, S.C. — A convicted drug trafficker will spend the next three decades in prison following a conviction handed up in Lexington County.

According to the 11th Circuit Solicitor's Office, 29-year-old Israel Mendoza Cervantes was sentenced in general sessions court earlier in the week after being convicted of all charges brought against him.

The charges included trafficking heroin - 28 grams or more, possession of a weapon during the commission of a violent crime, and possession with intent to distribute cocaine.

Cervantes received a 25-year sentence for the trafficking conviction, a concurrent 15-year sentence for the possession with intent to distribute conviction, and a consecutive five-year sentence for the weapon charge which came to 30 years in all.

The conviction stems from an investigation that began in September 2018 when Richland County Sheriff's Department narcotics agents shared information with the neighboring Lexington County Sheriff's Department. Cervantes was one of two suspects in the case who

U.S. Attorney's Office, District of Kansas

KANSAS CITY, KAN. – A man was sentenced to 102 months in prison for his involvement in a Kansas City metro-based drug trafficking ring with ties to Mexico.

According to court documents, Edwar Salazar-Belleda, 34, pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to distribute and possess with intent to distribute 50 grams or more of methamphetamine.

Salazar-Belleda was part of an international drug trafficking ring operating with meth brought in from Mexico. The co-conspirators laundered illegal proceeds as wire payments destined for individuals in Mexico and California.

From August 2019 through May 2021, the Kansas Bureau of Investigation (KBI) and Homeland Security Investigations (HSI) led an undercover investigation which included multiple purchases of meth, heroin, and firearms. Romel Alvarado-Calderon, 27, of Kansas City, Kansas, was the head of the operation, and Salazar-Belleda acted as a broker.

Los Zetas (pronounced [los ˈsetas], Spanish for "The Zs") is a Mexican criminal syndicate, known as one of the most dangerous of Mexico's drug cartels.[17][18][19][20][21] They are known for engaging in brutally violent "shock and awe" tactics such as beheadings, torture, and indiscriminate murder.[22] While primarily concerned with drug trafficking, the organization also runs profitable sex and gun rackets.[23] Los Zetas also operate through protection rackets, assassinations, extortion, kidnappings and other illegal activities.[24] The organization is based in Nuevo Laredo, Tamaulipas, directly across the border from Laredo, Texas.[25] The origins of Los Zetas date back to the late 1990s, when commandos of the Mexican Army deserted their ranks and began working as the enforcement arm of the Gulf Cartel.[22][26] In February 2010, Los Zetas broke away and formed their own criminal organization, rivalling the Gulf Cartel.[27][28]

They were at one point Mexico's largest and most expansive drug cartel in terms of geographical presence, overtaking their rivals, the Sinaloa Cartel, in physical territory.[29] However, in recent times Los Zetas has become fragmented and seen its influence diminish.[30] As of March 2016, Grupo Bravo (Bravo Group) and Zetas Vieja Escuela (Old School Zetas) have formed an alliance with the Gulf Cartel against Cartel Del Noreste (Cartel of the Northeast).[31] In March 2019, Texas Republican congressman Chip Roy introduced a bill that would list the Cartel Del Noreste faction of Los Zetas, Jalisco New Generation Cartel and Gulf Cartel as foreign terrorist organizations. Former United States President Donald Trump had also expressed interest in designating cartels as terrorist organizations.[32] However such plans were halted at the request of Mexican President Andrés Manuel López Obrador.[33]

Was Dickens' guilt about Fagin a product of his Jewish family?

Documentary evidence, including contemporary copies of the JC, sheds fascinating new light on Dicken's Jewishness

This vintage image features Charles Dickens in his study.

The recent BBC series Dodger, a "prequel" to one aspect of Charles Dickens's story of Oliver Twist, has revived once more the eternal controversy over the malevolent figure of Fagin, and this character's role in the dark history of antisemitism.

In 1863, some 25 years after the publication of Oliver Twist, Dickens was taken to task by Eliza Davis, a middle aged Jewish woman who persuaded him to make at least some reparation for the damage he had caused. Their correspondence, which was published soon after his death, is held to be responsible for his decision to remove much of the most offensive material in the novel, as well as for inspiring the inclusion of the saintly Jewish character Riah, in Our Mutual Friend.

Eliza Davis's influence on Dickens can be said to have resulted in the restoration of his reputation in the eyes of the Anglo-Jewish community — or at least in the eyes of the editors of the Jewish Chronicle. The paper had accused Dickens of "pandering to a vitiated taste" in creating Fagin, and being "a contaminating influence". Yet after his death, he was described in terms of real affection, indeed something approaching reverence, and accompanied by a genuine sense of loss. The JC observed that the novelist's work had struck a chord, "broke it to a pure echo and

In this Spanish name, the first or paternal surname is Lehder and the second or maternal family name is Rivas.

Carlos Enrique Lehder Rivas (born 7 September 1949)[9] is a Colombian and German former drug lord who was co-founder of the Medellín Cartel. Born to a German father and Colombian mother,[10] he was the first high-level drug trafficker extradited to the United States, after which he was released from prison in the United States after 33 years in 2020.[11][12] Originally from Armenia, Colombia, Lehder eventually ran a cocaine transport empire on Norman's Cay island, 210 miles (340 km) off the Florida coast in the central Bahamas.[11][13]

Lehder was one of the founding members of Muerte a Secuestradores ("MAS"), a paramilitary group whose focus was to retaliate against the kidnappings of cartel members and their families[11] by the guerrillas.[14][15][16][17] His motivation to join the MAS was to retaliate against the M-19 guerrilla movement, which, in November 1981, attempted to kidnap him for a ransom; Lehder managed to escape from the kidnappers, though he was shot in the leg.[18] He was one place (Heaven, Nirvana, Elysium, etc.) or a negative place (Hell, Samsara, Tartarus, etc.). We should mention that Samsara is less a "place" and more the process of reincarnation as well as one's actions and consequences from the past, present, and future.

Religion can also impact what you value. Cherokee are taught to value the earth and the importance of keep balance with the earth. Some members of Judaic religions, on the other hand, view passages that give Adam the directive to "subdue" the earth, as an indication of a hierarchy placing humans in charge of the earth. As such, the value is more on what the earth can provide than on ensuring harmony with nature.

Religion can also impact what you view as "normal." Many religions stress the importance of female modesty, so it is normal for women to wear specific dress to ensure they do not show their figures or little to no skin. On the other hand, one branch of Raëlianism promotes a pro-sex feminist stance where nudity and sex work are normal and even celebrated.

Different religions have different rules that get created and handed down. For most Western readers, the most famous set of rules is probably the Judaic Tradition's Ten Commandments. Conversely, Hindus have a text of religious laws transmitted in the Vedas. Most major religions have, at some point or another, had religious texts that became enshrined laws within those societies.

Finally, these beliefs, values, norms, and rules ultimately impact how all of us interact and behave with others. The critical part to remember about these actual behaviors is that we often have no idea how (and to what degree) our culture influences our communica

Raëlian beliefs and practices are the concepts and principles of Raëlism, a new religious movement and UFO religion founded in 1974 by Claude Vorilhon, an auto racing journalist who changed his name to "Raël".[1][2][3][4] The followers of the International Raëlian Movement believe in an advanced species of extraterrestrial aliens called Elohim who created life on Earth.[1][5] Raëlians are individualists who believe in sexual self-determination.[1][6] As advocates of the universal ethic and world peace, they believe the world would be better if geniuses had an exclusive right to govern in what Rael terms Geniocracy.[1][7] As believers of life in outer space, they hope that human scientists will follow the path of the Elohim by achieving space travel through the cosmos and creating life on other planets.[1][5] As believers in the resurrection of Jesus through a scientific cloning process (which includes memory transfer) by the Elohim, they encourage scientific research to extend life through cloning;[1][8] however, critics outside are doubtful of its possibility.[9]

Active followers of Raëlianism have exhibited their sex-positive feminism and pacifism through outdoor contacts such as parades.[10][11] The major initiation rite in the Raëlian Church is the baptism or Transmission of the Cellular Plan and is enacted by upper-level members in the Raëlian clergy known as guides.[12]

Structure of the Universe [edit]

Raël says that "everything is in everything". He says that, inside the atoms of living things, are living things that are made of atoms, which themselves contain living things that are made of atoms, and so on, to the infinitely small. The universe itself is contained in an atom inside of another universe, and so on, to the infinitely large. Because of the difference of mass, the activity of life inside of a living thing's atoms would undergo many millennia before enough time passes for that living thing to take a single step. Raëlians believe that the universe is infinite, and thus lacks a center. Because of this, one could not imagine where an ethereal soul would go, due to the universe's infinite nature. They believe that infinity exists in time as well as in space, for all levels of life.[13]

Raëlians believe that humanity would be able to create life on other planets only if humanity is peaceful enough to stop war. In that case, humanity could travel the distances between stars[14] and create life on another planet.[15] Progress in terraforming, molecular biology,[16] and cloning would enable these teams to create continents and life from scratch.[17] Progress in social engineering would ensure that this creation would have a better chance of both surviving and having the potential to understand its creators.[18] Research on how civilization would occur on another planet would allow scientists to decide what traces of their origin should be left behind so that their role in life creation would someday be revealed.[19] The progress achieved by the science teams would ultimately sustain a perpetual chain of life.[20]

Intelligent Design [edit]

Creation of life on Earth by extraterrestrials [edit]

Further information: History of Raëlism

In his book The Message Given to me by Extraterrestrials (now republished as Intelligent Design: Message from the Designers 2006 ISBN 2-940252-20-3), Vorilhon claims that on 13 December 1973, he found a spacecraft shaped like a flattened bell that landed inside Puy de Lassolas, a volcano near the capital city of Auvergne. A 25,000-year-old human-like extraterrestrial inside the spacecraft named Yahweh said that Elohim was the name that

Ms. Quintero is not complaining, especially not after the Immigration Minister, Yuli Tamir, proposed late today that the Cubans get the help they are asking for.

Fingering her Star of David necklace, Ms. Quintero said she felt embarrassed that Israel's first glimpse of the Cuban community showed not their appreciation but their pent-up frustrations. She also regretted that Israelis might have got what she called a false impression that most of the Cubans see Israel as a way station to Miami or New York.

Television cameras could not help but focus today on one Cuban immigrant, Ester Mechulam, since she greeted them at the gate to

The Accountability Board exists as a body of accountability for the Congregation's Senior Leader. The Accountability Board may only be called upon by the rabbi for prayer or counsel as needed. The Board of Directors may contact the Accountability Board, only by unanimous vote (excepting the rabbi), if any matter of serious unrepentant biblical sin should arise concerning the senior leader. The Accountability Board is empowered to have authority over the senior leader. Their identity is known only to the senior rabbi, and the board of directors.

Now that their situation could be openly discussed, they said, they could make public a demand. They wanted, as Mr. Carpio put it, "to be treated like Ethiopians" in terms of Israeli aid to immigrants. They wanted Israel to recognize that they had forfeited all their possessions -- "down to the drinking glasses," Mr. Carpio said -- to the Cuban Government. They had arrived with nothing but a few battered suitcases and 48 pounds of clothes per family. They want to receive an "immigration basket" of money and services, they said, just like the Ethiopians and, to a less generous extent, the Russians.

"Hey, they're complaining," commented Avraham Burg, the Speaker of the Parliament. "That means they've really become Israelis."

Ms. Quintero is not complaining, especially not after the Immigration Minister, Yuli Tamir, proposed late today that the Cubans get the help they are asking for.

Fingering her Star of David necklace, Ms. Quintero said she felt embarrassed that Israel's first glimpse of the Cuban community showed not their appreciation but their pent-up frustrations. She also regretted that Israelis might have got what she called a false impression that most of the Cubans see Israel as a way station to Miami or New York.

Television cameras could not help but focus today on one Cuban immigrant, Ester Mechulam, since she greeted them at the gate to the center. "Brooklyn, Brooklyn," she was saying. "I dream of Brooklyn."

In contrast, Ms. Quintero said she and her husband considered themselves "die-hard Zionist Jews," even though, like everyone else, they left primarily because the opportunity presented itself.

"We have well-established family in New York, in New Jersey," she said. "We don't want to join them. We want them to join us here."

Rafael Caro Quintero: the historic head of the Sinaloa cartel is captured

Rafael Caro Quintero, the legendary narco leader of the 1980s, has been captured. Sources from the Marines confirmed to EL PAÍS that the former cartel leader, on whose head the United States Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) had placed the highest ever reward for a criminal, was detained on Friday. One of the founders of the legendary Guadalajara cartel, which later became the Sinaloa cartel, was arrested for the second time near his home territory, in the Sinaloa highlands.

The criminal previously entered prison in 1985 after the brutal murder of undercover DEA agent Kiki Camarena. In 2013, still with 12 years of his sentence left to serve, he was released in Mexico after a state court concluded that he had been tried improperly. The United States pressured Mexican authorities to recapture him. The old drug capo, far

Weaving science into Torah learning

There are many ways to interpret the Torah, but for Momentum sister Sherri Quintero, a biology teacher, one of her favorite ways to study is to look for the wonders of science and technology woven into the texts.

The recent holiday of Shavuot, a celebration of the day the Israelites received the Torah at Mount Sinai, is a perfect example. It is written in the Torah: "The smoke rose like the smoke of a kiln, and the whole mountain trembled violently. The blare of the horn grew louder and louder. As Moses spoke, God answered him in thunder." (Exodus 19:19-20)

For Sherri, who teaches at the Kellman Brown Academy, a Jewish Day School in New Jersey, it was an opportunity to explore with her students: Is it possible to see sound? What is a soundwave? Why does smoke always rise? What causes earthquakes?

A call for change

The Shavuot lesson is just one way that Sherri is taking an innovative approach towards combining Jewish learning and science, an idea that started coalescing during Sherri's MOMentum Trip to Israel in 2016. At the time, she was in the middle of her ninth year as

Dallas County Man Admits to Producing Child Pornography

DALLAS—A Hutchins, Texas, man, Servando Vega Cervantes, 24, appeared this morning before U.S. Magistrate Judge Paul D. Stickney and pleaded guilty to an indictment charging three counts of production of child pornography, announced John Parker, United States Attorney for the Northern District of Texas.

Cervantes faces a statutory penalty of not less than 15 years and not more than 30 years in federal prison, for each count. Each count also carries up to a $250,000 fine and up to a lifetime of supervised release. Cervantes has been in custody since his arrest in November 2014 on a related federal complaint. He is scheduled to be sentenced on May 28, 2015, by U.S. District Judge Jane J. Boyle.

According to documents filed in the case, the Hutchins Police Department contacted the FBI in May 2014 regarding questionable online communication between an 11-year-old victim, "John Doe #1," and the Facebook user profile of "Laura Ortiz." The victim's mother believed the user of the Ortiz profile was actually an adult male and not a 13-year-old female as described in chat conversations between John Doe #1 and Ortiz. The investigation revealed that the user profile "Laura Ortiz" belonged to Cervantes. The investigation also revealed that John Doe #1 knew

A high-ranking honcho and assassin for El Chapo's Sinaloa drug cartel has been shipped to the US to face drug, gun and conspiracy charges, federal officials said.

Nestor Isidro Perez Salas, a vicious sicario known as "El Nini," was a leading figure in the international narcotrafficking operation once run by Joaquin "El Chapo" Guzman and his family before he was picked by Mexican authorities last year and held for extradition.

"We allege El Nini was one of the Sinaloa Cartel's lead sicarios, or assassins, and was responsible for the murder, torture, and kidnapping of rivals and witnesses who threatened the cartel's criminal drug trafficking enterprise," US Attorney General Merrick Garland said in a statement.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — A registered sex offender from Jacksonville, Andrew David Salas, has been indicted and charged with multiple child sexual exploitation offenses, according to the United States Attorney's Office.

The United States Attorney's Office has charged Andrew David Salas, aged 35, with interstate travel with intent to engage in illicit sexual conduct with a minor child, interstate transportation of a minor child to engage in unlawful sexual activity, production, attempted production, and possession of child sexual abuse materials, and committing felony offenses involving a minor child while required to register as a sex offender.

Top Mexican cartel criminal El Nini, once among America's most wanted, extradited to the US

By Lauren Koenig and Priscilla Alvarez, CNN

Nestor Isidro Perez Salas, also known as 'El Nini.' United States Drug Enforcement Administration

(CNN) — A top Mexican cartel member known as 'El Nini,' who was one of America's most-wanted criminals for his alleged role in the fentanyl trade, has been extradited to the United States.

In a speech celebrating US-Mexico cooperation on the case, US President Joe Biden on Saturday hailed the extradition of El Nini – also known as Néstor Isidro Pérez Salas – as "a good day for justice."

"El Nini played a prominent role in the notorious Sinaloa cartel, one of the deadliest drug trafficking enterprises in the world. The United States has charged him for his role in illicit fentanyl trafficking and for murdering, torturing, and kidnapping numerous rivals, witnesses, and others," Biden said, thanking Mexican President Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador.

"Our governments will continue to work together to attack the fentanyl and synthetic drug epidemic that is killing so many people in our homelands and globally, and to bring to justice the criminals and organizations producing, smuggling, and selling these lethal poisons in both of our countries," he added.

According to the US Department of Justice, Néstor Isidro Pérez Salas "was one of the Sinaloa cartel's lead sicarios, or assassins" and was involved in the "production and sale of fentanyl" in the United States.

Biden has previously described El Nini as one of America's most-wanted criminals. Pérez Salas was charged in the US with cocaine and methamphetamine trafficking conspiracy, possession of machine guns and destructive devices, and witness retaliation in February 2021.

Earlier today, in federal court in Houston, Jose Wilfredo Ayala-Alcantara, also known as "Indio de Hollywood," a high-ranking leader of La Mara Salvatrucha, also known as "MS-13," was transferred to the Eastern District of New York where he, together with 12 other high-ranking MS-13 leaders, are charged with directing the transnational criminal organization's criminal activities in the United States, El Salvador, Mexico, and elsewhere over the past two decades. Ayala-Alcantara was arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), Homeland Security Investigations (HSI), and the United States Marshals Service (USMS) on April 18, 2023 when he arrived at George Bush Intercontinental Airport in Houston, Texas. The Birth of the MS13's Mexico Program

On March 2, 2021, El Salvador police announced an unexpected arrest: that of Hugo Armando Quinteros Mineros, alias "Flaco," of the Francis Locos clique. His capture took authorities by surprise. For they believed Flaco was abroad, running one of the MS13's most ambitious projects: the Mexico Program.

On the day of his arrest, Flaco looked worn out, his drawn face worthy of his nickname, meaning "Skinny." He had plenty to worry about.

"This article is part of a four-part investigation, "MS13 & Co.," diving into how the MS13 grew from humble beginnings to become a business powerhouse with investments in numerous businesses, both legal and illegal, across the Northern Triangle. Read the complete investigation here or download the full PDF.

Flaco was among the most-wanted fugitives in El Salvador and the United States and was one of 14 gang leaders accused of terrorism by the US Department of Justice in January 2021.

The veteran gang member had spent a lengthy stint on the run after being deported from Mexico in 2019 and subsequently granted liberty by the Salvadoran court system for unclear reasons. Even now, the US has requested his extradition, but there have been no updates on his case since shortly after his arrest last March.

The MS13's Mexico program, meanwhile, has kept chugging along.

El Flaco

Flaco's reputation among the MS13 is legendary. He was one of the original emeeses (the phonetic spelling for MS13 members) who left El Salvador for California to avoid joining the military during the country's civil war in the 1980s.

The "golden age of alchemy", which fell on 13th-17th centuries, resulted in numerous alchemical treatises, created by medieval scholars, venturing clergymen and mysterious kabbalists. One of them - "Cabala Mineralis" - suggested using urine as a possible ingredient for the elixir of immortality. A manuscript, located at London British Museum, dates back to the middle of the XV century and is ascribed to Rabbi Simeon Ben Cantara.

Colourful illustrations of this book explain how urine of a young boy can be used as a source of ammonium: "Our ammoniac is not that of the vulgar". Ammonium then shall be used together with mercury as essential components of philosopher's stone.

(CNN) — After four years on the run, a senior leader of MS-13 – one of the largest transnational criminal organizations – was captured this month in Southern California on terrorism charges, court documents say.

Freddy Ivan Jandres-Parada was accused by federal prosecutors in the Eastern District of New York in December 2020 of being a member of MS-13's board of directors, known as the Ranfla Nacional, along with a dozen other MS-13 members, according to his indictment. Federal authorities have been searching for him since, offering a reward for his capture on the FBI's Most Wanted list.

Jandres-Parada was arrested on March 7 in San Diego by the FBI, according to federal officials. According to the detention order dated March 8, he waived his right to bail. CNN is working to identify a defense attorney for Jandres-Parada.

Federal prosecutors charged the alleged gang members with material support of terrorism and narco-terrorism, alleging the group ran "military-style training camps; obtained weapons, handguns, rifles, grenades, improvised explosive devices ('IEDs') and rocket launchers," and "directed acts of violence and murder in El Salvador, the United States and elsewhere," according to the indictment.

Jandres-Parada is one of a dozen of the Ranfla Nacional leaders who are charged with conspiracy to provide and conceal material support and resources to terrorists, conspiracy to commit acts of terrorism transcending national boundaries, conspiracy to finance terrorism and narco-terrorism conspiracy, according to the indictment.

As a member of the Ranfla Nacional, Jandres-Parada and others allegedly controlled the activities of MS-13 including approval of murders, assaults and kidnappings, extortion drug trafficking and other criminal activity, prosecutors say.

BELLA ABZUG (CIARA PLANCARTE)

Bella Abzug was born Bella Savitzky on July 24, 1920 in New York, New York. She was a lawyer, politician and overall activist. Bella's interest in women's rights was prominent at a young age. Abzug's women's rights career was triggered by an observation at a synagogue; Bella realized that even in a synagogue, where each individual as seen as "equal", the women were forced to sit in the back pews. Again, Bella had to face gender discrimination when she was rejected by Harvard Law School because she was a woman. She then applied to Columbia University where she eventually graduated.

In the 1960's Bella was involved in many peace movements which ultimately led her to help organize the Women Strike for Peace (WSP). The topics the WSP were lobbying against job equality, sexism, etc. The WSP effectively challenged national policies which resulted in favor or Bella Abzug and her colleagues. She helped to establish the National Women's Political Caucus where she worked alongside Betty Friedan. In 1971, Bella became a congressman in the U.S. House of Representatives where she was determined to make an even greater impact on the policies the United States passed; ensuring women's rights were respected and recognized. Over the span of six years, Bella Abzug brought women's rights to the forefront of the U.S. congress; she left office in 1977. For decades Bella continued to be a dominant voice in protests against war and sexism. She even began the Women's Environmental Development Organization in 1990. Unfortunately, Bella Abzug later died on March 31, 1998.

Historically, Beth Israel Hospital was formed to create greater access to quality medical care for the local Jewish population. It has grown to broaden its care to the entire community, and beyond. But that history is meaningful to me. When you look at the names on our buildings and all the people on our boards who are ambassadors in the community, it's meaningful. Some have been serving BIDMC for generations, and today, are bringing the next generation along. That, to me, is terrific. Boston is blessed with really wonderful institutions, but institutions truly stand out because of the caring people who are involved with them, with BIDMC at the forefront.

ABC NEWS The drug lords behind Mexico's deadly turf war SHARE

Gulf cartel

The Gulf cartel is perhaps the oldest organised crime group in Mexico and is known for intimidating local civilians and being particularly violent.

Former allies of the Zetas, the Gulf cartel are now believed to be allied to the Sinaloa cartel.

Its founder Juan Guerra - considered to be the "godfather" of the cartel - smuggled alcohol into the US in the 1930s.

After the end of the Prohibition, Guerra, widely known as Don Juan, turned his focus to drug smuggling.

In the 1970s the command shifted to Guerra's nephew, Juan Garcia Abrego. He lead the lucrative business until his arrest and extradition to the US in 1996.

Juan Garcia Abrego is led out of an FBI office after his arrest in 1996. (Reuters)

After a series of internal battles Osiel Cardenas took over. As his cartel grew, he created Los Zetas, a new armed wing made up of military defectors.

The two groups were collectively known as The Company.

Los Zetas was designed to protect the Gulf

Juan Nepomuceno Guerra Cárdenas (July 18, 1915 – July 12, 2001) was a Mexican drug lord who founded and led the Gulf Cartel for over 50 years. He is often considered the "godfather" of U.S–Mexico border cartels.[2]

He began his criminal career in the 1930s by smuggling alcohol from Mexico during the Prohibition in the United States. He later diversified to other cross-border smuggling activities. He is the uncle of Juan García Ábrego, his successor in the cartel and once considered Mexico's most-wanted man.

Early life and career [edit]

During the 1930s he began smuggling whisky across the Mexico–United States border through south Texas. Through shrewd political connections he had fostered, Nepomuceno Guerra was able to control all the contraband moving across the Rio Grande. [3] In the 1970s, his nephew Juan García Abrego began utilizing those connections and developed the organization into a drug cartel primarily dedicated to the more lucrative business of smuggling cocaine.[4]

I have a lot of positive things to say about the high-level content in this book. It is a great resource for a serious person wanting to learn Biblical Hebrew in-depth. However, it could be somewhat hard for someone without some prior knowledge of the language. Once you have a basic understanding, you can use this book to enhance your knowledge. As a solution B, I recommend "Basics of Biblical Hebrew" by Gary D. Pratico as a secondary resource when starting from scratch.
By getting hold of these two books, you will have all the necessary tools to navigate through the complexities of grammar, which other books tend to make unnecessarily difficult and discouraging. The best part is that you can easily purchase them at a very competitive price on Amazon.

In this Spanish name, the first or paternal surname is Méndez and the second or maternal family name is Vargas.

José de Jesús Méndez Vargas
Born	February 28, 1961 (age 63)[1] El Aguaje, Michoacán, Mexico
Other names	El Chango[2]
Occupation	Leader of La Familia Michoacana
Criminal status	Arrested $2.1 million USD bounty
Criminal charge	Drug trafficking, extortion, kidnapping, murder

José de Jesús Méndez Vargas (born 28 February 1974), commonly referred to by his alias El Chango ("The Ape"), is a Mexican drug lord and former leader of the now disbanded La Familia drug cartel, headquartered in the state of Michoacán.[3][4][5]

Méndez took control of the cartel after its former leader, Nazario Moreno, was allegedly killed in a shootout with Mexican Federal Police on December 9, 2010.[6] His protection was the responsibility of twelve gunmen he called the "Twelve Apostles".[7] His leadership, however, was disputed by Servando Gómez Martínez and Enrique Plancarte Solís who left the organization and formed the Knights Templar.

Kingpin Act sanction [edit]

On 25 February 2010, the United States Department of the Treasury sanctioned Méndez under the Foreign Narcotics Kingpin Designation Act (sometimes referred to simply as the "Kingpin Act"), for his involvement in drug trafficking along with twenty-one other international criminals and ten foreign entities.[8] The act prohibited U.S. citizens and companies from doing any kind of business activity with him, and virtually froze all his assets in the U.S.[9]

Arrest [edit]

Méndez was captured at a road checkpoint on June 21, 2011 by Mexican Federal police in the state of Aguascalientes.[10] The Mexican government had offered a $30 million pesos (US$2.1 million) bounty for information leading to Méndez's capture.[11] On 8 April 2014, a Mexican federal court rejected Méndez's writ of amparo (equivalent to an injunction) to prevent his extradition to the United States, where he is wanted in a New York federal court for drug trafficking offenses.[12]

Mexican police arrest alleged head of La Familia cartel

Mexican authorities say they have dealt a debilitating blow to major organised crime in the west of the country after apprehending the leader of the cult-like, pseudo-Christian La Familia cartel.

José de Jesús Méndez Vargas, known as El Chango, or The Monkey, was arrested in the central state of Aguascalientes without confrontation or casualties, according to federal security spokesman Alejandro Poire.

President Felipe Calderón lauded the arrest on Twitter, calling it a "big blow" to organised crime. After the death of La Familia founder and leader Nazario Moreno González in December, Poire said Méndez Vargas was the last remaining head of a criminal group responsible for homicides, kidnappings, extortion and corruption.

Ralph Hubert "Sonny" Barger Jr. (October 8, 1938 – June 29, 2022) was an American outlaw biker who was a founding member of the Oakland, California chapter of the Hells Angels Motorcycle Club in 1957.[3] After forming the Oakland chapter, Barger was instrumental in unifying various disparate Hells Angels chapters and had the club incorporated in 1966.[4] He emerged as the Hells Angels' most prominent member during the counterculture era and was reputed by law enforcement and media to be the club's international president, an allegation he repeatedly denied.[5] The author Hunter S. Thompson called Barger "the Maximum Leader" of the Hells Angels,[6] and Philip Martin of the Phoenix New Times described him as "the archetypical Hells Angel", saying he "didn't found the motorcycle club ... but he constructed the myth".[7] He authored five books, and appeared on television and in film.

Barger served a total of 13 years in prison, following a conviction for heroin trafficking in 1974, and a 1988 conviction for conspiracy to bomb the clubhouse of a rival motorcycle gang, the Outlaws.[8] He was also acquitted of murder in 1972, and of racketeering in 1980.[9] Barger rejected accusations from law enforcement characterizing the Hells Angels as an organized crime syndicate, and maintained that the club should not be held accountable for crimes committed by individual members.[1]

Numerous police and international intelligence agencies classify the Hells Angels Motorcycle Club (HAMC) as a motorcycle gang and contend that members carry out widespread violent crimes, including drug dealing, trafficking in stolen goods, gunrunning, extortion, and prostitution operations.[50][51] Members of the organization have continuously asserted that they are only a group of motorcycle enthusiasts who have joined to ride motorcycles together, to organize social events such as group road trips, fundraisers, parties, and motorcycle rallies, and that any crimes are the responsibility of the individuals who carried them out and not the club as a whole.[52][53] Members of the club have been accused of crimes and/or convicted in many host nations.

Now this one has quite the mystery. It all started with the 1972 attack on the Munich Olympics, perpetrated by Palestinian terrorist group Black September, which ended in the murder of 11 Israeli athletes, reports the Times of Israel. Mossad, the Israel Intelligence agency, wouldn't let that go unpunished, successfully and dramatically launching "Operation Wrath of God," looking to eliminate those behind the Munich Massacre (via Daily Mail).

But Ali Hassan Salameh, the "Red Prince," evaded them five times, and, eventually, undercover agents in Beirut, Lebanon, tracked his movements, planting a large bomb sure to kill him. Their ace-in-the-hole was Erika Chambers, a Mossad agent posing as "Penelope," an artistic cat-lover living in a nearby apartment building. On Jan. 22, 1979, she was the one holding the detonator, setting off the bomb that killed Salameh, his bodyguards, and a bunch of innocent bystanders. Then, Chambers completely fell off the map.

A Star Historian Opens a New Chapter: Jewish Slaveowners

By Eric Herschthal
August 17, 2006

More than a decade ago, pioneering historian Natalie Zemon Davis was trudging through German archives, performing research for her book "Women on the Margins: Three Seventeenth-Century Lives." Published in 1995 and universally praised, the book was seen as vintage Davis: scholarly, but not impenetrable; groundbreaking, but not immoderate.

Although she was researching the lives of three 17th-century Europeans, Davis found a curious connection between one of her characters, Maria Sibylla Merian, and a Jewish physician in South America. Fixed on the project at hand, Davis "tucked the [Jewish doctor]" in the back of her mind, but filed away Merian's

After a three-month trial, a federal jury in the Eastern District of Michigan convicted three members of the Devils Diciples Motorcycle Gang today for their participation in various criminal acts, including Racketeering Conspiracy, methamphetamine production and trafficking, marijuana trafficking, subornation of perjury and obstruction of justice, and other federal offenses. Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Barbara L. McQuade of the Eastern District of Michigan and Special Agent in Charge David P. Gelios of the FBI's Detroit Division made the announcement. "These defendants were responsible for violence and trafficking in methamphetamine in Macomb County and across the country," said U.S. Attorney McQuade. "We are grateful for the work of the investigating agencies and the jury to bring them to justice." "The defendants in this case ran an illegal enterprise spanning multiple states, and specialized in violent and criminal activity," said Special Agent in Charge Gelios. "Today's convictions, coupled with prior judicial outcomes, have dramatically impacted the ability of this criminal organization to operate, and are the result of a strong partnership of our federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies and the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Michigan." Devils Diciples members Victor Carlos Castano, a/k/a "Vic," of Warren, Michigan, Michael Kenneth Rich, a/k/a "Tatu," of Anniston, Alabama and David Randy Drozdowski, aka "D," 39 of Fair Haven, Michigan, were all found guilty by a jury of engaging in a RICO conspiracy. Both Castano and Rich were found guilty of suborning perjury, obstruction of justice and conspiracy to obstruct justice as well. Both Castano and Drozdowski were found guilty of engaging in a methamphetamine trafficking conspiracy, with Drozdowski being found guilty of a separate count of manufacturing methamphetamine, and Castano being found guilty of engaging in a marijuana trafficking conspiracy. Castano was found not guilty of possession of meth

David Barksdale (born Donise David Barksdale; May 24, 1947 – September 2, 1974), also known as King David, was an American gangster and activist from Chicago, Illinois. He was the founder of the Black Disciples. He and Larry Hoover (leader of the Gangster Disciples) decided to merge and create the Black Gangster Disciple Nation. Barksdale was seen as a hero in the black community because he operated a free breakfast program in Englewood to poor children, and he and the Disciples marched with Martin Luther King Jr. in Marquette Park. He was a close friend of Fred Hampton. Barksdale died on September 2, 1974, due to kidney failure, at the age of 27.

Biography [edit]

Born Donise David Barksdale in Sallis, Mississippi to parents Virginia and Charlie Barksdale, he was the tenth of thirteen children. His family moved to Chicago, Illinois in 1957.

Within three years of arriving, Barksdale had become a notorious gang leader. By 1966, his gang absorbed several others and became known as the Black Disciple Nation. Tensions grew between the Black Disciples and other gangs such as the Black Stone Rangers. In the late 1960s, King David, as he had become known, started to lead the Black Disciples into activism, serving breakfast to school children and marching with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in Marquette park during the Chicago Freedom Movement. He

The Gangster Disciple Nation (often abbreviated as the GD's; formally, GDN), also known as Growth & Development, is an African American street and prison gang founded by former rivals David Barksdale and Larry Hoover; in 1968, the two came together to form the Black Gangster Disciple Nation (BGDN).

Post-1989, following growing tension between the two over declining leadership, the BGDN split into two new factions—Hoover's Gangster Disciple Nation (GDN) and Barksdale's Black Disciple Nation (BDN), respectively. As of 2022, following Hoover's departure, the GDN has no full-time leadership role.[10]

History [edit]

The origins of the Gangster Disciples began in Englewood (in Chicago, Illinois's South Side) in 1964, when then 13-year-old Larry 'The King' Hoover joined a small street gang called the 'Supreme Gangsters'. For years, the Supreme Gangsters had an outstanding war with the Black Disciples Nation, led by David Barksdale.[11] In 1969, Hoover and Barksdale agreed to a ceasefire. This resulted in the creation of the Black Gangster Disciple Nation.[12][13] By the early 1970s, the BGDN dominated the Chicago gang scene. Barksdale died of kidney failure in 1974, at the age of 27.[14] Following his death, Hoover assumed full control of the Black Gangster Disciples.

Folks Nation [edit]

In 1978, the BGDN began to splinter into three distinct factions: Black Gangsters, Black Disciples and Gangster Disciples; however, Hoover (at the time incarcerated on murder charges) prevented it by quickly setting up an alliance of all street and prison gangs in his interest into one family.[15][16]

The alliance consisted of Gangster Disciples, Black Disciples, Satan Disciples, Latin Disciples, Spanish Gangster Disciples, Ambrose, Two-Two Boys, Two-Sixers/Two-Six Boys, Simon City Royals, North Side Insane Popes, La Raza, Spanish Cobras, Imperial Gangsters, Harrison Gents, and the Latin Eagles.

Native Virgin Islander Casper Holstein, somewhere in the 1920s, had more than $2 million, even though some records suggest it could be higher. Whatever the actual figure, Holstein was for many years a wealthy businessman in Harlem.

Despite earning his riches from illegal gambling services, he was loved by many, especially people in African-American communities because he used his resources to support the poor and needy, including those back home in the Virgin Islands.

Born Egbert Joseph on December 7, 1876, in Christiansted, St. Croix, Danish West Indies, now known as the U.S. Virgin Islands, Holstein and his mother moved to New York in 1894. He lived in Harlem and attended high school in Brooklyn.

History [edit]

The 18th Street Gang was formed in the Rampart District of Los Angeles in the 1960s by Mexican-Americans and other immigrant youths who were not accepted into existing Hispanic gangs.[1] They were originally part of Clanton 14 [further explanation needed] but wanted to make a separate "clique" called Clanton 18th Street and allow immigrants the opportunity to join. This proposal was rejected by the Clanton 14, which led to the formation of the 18th Street Gang.[3][16] The two gangs have been bitter rivals ever since.[16]

18th Street grew by expanding its membership to other nationalities and races, and it was among the first multiracial, multi-ethnic gangs in Los Angeles.[1] In the beginning, they were made up largely of second-generation Hispanics.[1] As the 18th Street Gang began to battle with more established Hispanic gangs, they began to recruit outside the Hispanic community. There are approximately 200 separate individual autonomous gangs operating under the same name within separate barrios in the San Fernando Valley specifically in North Hollywood, the San Gabriel Valley, South Bay, Riverside, East Los Angeles, South Los Angeles, Hollywood, Downtown Los Angeles, Northeast Los Angeles, Pico Union, Westlake, Koreatown, Inglewood, South Gate, Huntington Park, Maywood, Bellflower, Long Beach, Orange County, San Bernardino County, and Los Angeles' Westside or West LA, according to the latest figures from the NDIC. PORTLAND, Ore. (KPTV) - A leader of a Portland gang will spend more than a decade behind bars for his role in a drug trafficking operation, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office - District of Oregon.

On Tuesday, Gustavo Torres-Mendez, leader of the 18th Street Gang, was sentenced to 14 years in federal prison, plus five years of supervised released.

The U.S. attorney's office says investigators obtained evidence by late summer 2022 that Torres-Mendez and a close associate were leading a criminal enterprise that was selling counterfeit Oxycodone pills containing fentanyl, methamphetamine and cocaine in and around the Portland metro area.

By early September 2022, investigators learned Torres-Mendez and several associates were trying to collect money for a large drug purchase and, within days, the group had collected more than $126,000.

Police stopped a car near Grants Pass on Sept. 7, 2022, that was connected to the gang and found more than 104 pounds of meth and eight pounds of cocaine, according to the U.S. attorney's office.

A Brooklyn man who pleaded guilty on Thursday to selling organs on the black market had a huge profit margin as he bought kidneys from Israelis for $10,000 and sold them to Americans for $120,000 or more. It's a strong business model but the kink in his plan was that one of his clients was an FBI agent, Bloomberg reported. With his guilty plea, 60-year-old Levy Izhak Rosenbaum became the first person ever convicted of organ trafficking in the United States, which outlawed selling human organs in 1984. In spite of it being illegal, Rosenbaum's practice does sound like it was successful, Bloomberg reports.

Israel has admitted that in the 1990s, its forensic pathologists harvested organs from dead bodies, including Palestinians, without permission of their families.

The issue emerged with publication of an interview with the then-head of Israel's Abu Kabir forensic institute, Dr. Jehuda Hiss. The interview was conducted in 2000 by an American academic, who released it because of a huge controversy last summer over an allegation by a Swedish newspaper that Israel was killing Palestinians in order to harvest their organs. Israel hotly denied the charge.

Parts of the interview were broadcast on Israel's Channel 2 TV over the weekend. In it, Hiss said, "We started to harvest corneas ... Whatever was done was highly informal. No permission was asked from the family."

The Channel 2 report said that in the 1990s, forensic specialists at Abu Kabir harvested skin, corneas, heart valves and bones from the bodies of Palestinians and foreign workers, often without permission from relatives.

Concerns about 'organ theft' by Israel's forces from dead Palestinians were raised by Euro-Med Human Rights Monitor.

Israel's army has been accused of stealing organs from the dead in Gaza by an NGO, which called for an independent international investigation.

Euro-Med Human Rights Monitor said on Sunday it had "concerns" about possible organ theft from Palestinian corpses, following reports by medical professionals in Gaza who examined some bodies after they were released by Israel.

The NGO claimed it has documented Israeli forces confiscating dozens of dead bodies from the al-Shifa and Indonesian hospitals in northern Gaza, alongside others in the south.

Medical professionals reportedly found vital organs, such as livers, kidneys and hearts, alongside cochleas and corneas, were missing, which the Euro-Med Monitor called "evidence" of potential organ theft.

They also claimed Israel exhumed and confiscated corpses from a mass grave that was dug more than 10 days ago in a courtyard at al-Shifa.

Edinburgh - The body of a Scottish man who died in Israel was returned to his family without the heart, which had been removed during a post-mortem examination, a pathologist confirmed yesterday.

Now his family are believed to be questioning whether a heart sent later was the right one. Alistair Sinclair (47), from Selkirk, is believed to have hanged himself in jail in April after being arrested on suspicion of drug smuggling.

Israel sued over 'wrong heart'

Sinclair's brother made the claims in Tel Aviv

The family of a Scottish tourist who died in Israel say the authorities have returned the wrong heart.

Alistair Sinclair's relatives are suing Israel for one million shekels (£142,053) for removing his heart and thyroid for medical tests without their permission.

Sinclair, a musician from Selkirk in the Scottish borders, was arrested in Israel in April on his way out of the country. He was alleged to have been smuggling drugs.

Police found him the next morning hanging from his shoelaces in his cell. Police said it was suicide but Sinclair's family believe he was killed.

His body was returned for cremation, minus the heart which was removed during a post-mortem examination.

Transplant theory

A heart was later sent to the family, who ordered forensic tests in Glasgow to find out whether it matched genetic samples taken from the dead man's body before the funeral.

Speaking in Tel Aviv on Sunday, Sinclair's brother James said he believed Israel kept his brother's heart and may have even used it in an organ transplant.

Israel Steals Body Parts: Palestinians

September 13, 2009

The controversy triggered by a Swedish newspaper report about Israel's harvesting of Palestinian organs has salted the wounds of many Palestinian families haunted by the memories of loved ones who suffered the same fate.

"They claimed they came to arrest him, but in truth they came to murder him, which they did," Walid Masalmeh, a resident of the small West Bank town of Dura, 10 kilometer west of Al-Khalil (Hebron), said about his relative Bassam.

In 1995, Bassam was killed by the Israeli army at the village of Beit Awwa, located near the former armistice line between the West Bank and what is now Israel.
"But 24 hours later they returned the body with a huge scar running from the chin to the lower abdomen," Walid remembers.

"They took all the vital organs, including the heart, kidneys, Liver. Then they stuffed the empty cavities with garbage before sewing him up."

Several other Palestinians gave a similar narrative, recounting how they received the bodies of their murdered relatives, mostly men in their early twenties, with vital organs taken away by the Israeli authorities.

Occupation	Drug lord
Height	1.94 m (6 ft 4 in)

Early life [edit]

Born on a ranch in Bellavista, on the outskirts of Culiacán, Sinaloa, Félix Gallardo graduated from high school and studied business in college. He took a job as a Mexican Federal Judicial Police agent.[1] He worked as a family bodyguard for the governor of Sinaloa state Leopoldo Sánchez Celis, whose political connections helped Félix Gallardo to build his drug trafficking organization. He was also the godfather of Sánchez Celis' son, Rodolfo.[2][3][4]

Félix Gallardo started working for drug traffickers brokering corruption of state officials, and together with Rafael Caro Quintero and Ernesto Fonseca Carrillo, who previously worked in the Avilés criminal organization, took control of the trafficking routes after Avilés was killed in a police shootout. [citation needed]

Connections to Colombian cartels [edit]

In the early 1980s, drug interdiction efforts increased throughout Florida, which was then the major shipping destination for illegal drug traffickers. As a result, the Colombian cartels began to utilize Mexico as their primary trans-shipment point.

Juan Matta-Ballesteros was the Guadalajara Cartel's primary connection to the Colombian cartels, as he had originally introduced Félix Gallardo's predecessor, Alberto Sicilia Falcón, to Santiago Ocampo of the Cali Cartel, one of the largest Colombian drug cartels.[5] Rather than taking cash payments for their services, the smugglers in the Guadalajara Cartel took a 50% cut of the cocaine they transported from

How did you meet?
We matched on SawYouAtSinai, a Jewish dating website for Orthodox and traditional couples. Our matchmaker was Susie Fishbein, famed cookbook author of the "Kosher by Design" series. I (Alana) flew out to meet (Aharon) in-person in Los Angeles in January 2020, and he planned the best first date weekend which got derailed slightly because I broke my knee about two weeks before the trip. He pushed me around in a wheelchair all weekend at an aquarium and a beach resort.

Do you have any interesting stories to share about getting to know one another?

Harvey Weinstein, the powerhouse film producer whose downfall over sexual misconduct ignited a global movement, was found guilty of two felony sex crimes on Monday after a trial at which six women testified that he sexually assaulted them.

A Manhattan jury convicted Mr. Weinstein of rape and criminal sexual act but acquitted him on three other counts, including the two most serious charges against him: being a sexual predator.

The assassination of William 'Red' Stevens: a violent entrepreneur who symbolized South Africa's evolving gang culture.

On 2 February 2021, William 'Red' Stevens – a 'general' in the notorious 27s gang – was sitting outside his home in Kraaifontein, a northern Cape Town suburb, when three gunmen shot him dead. On the night following the assassination, the area saw shootouts between rival gangs, with videos shared widely on social media.[1] These were reportedly reprisals sparked by the hit on Stevens: in the words of one source familiar with the workings of the 'number' gangs, '[Stevens's] blood must be picked up'.[2] Albert Fritz, the Minister of Community Safety in Western Cape, called for calm in Kraaifontein.[3]

Steven's death is a significant one. His criminal career, his death and its aftermath not only reveal much about the mythology and traditions of the number gangs, but also show how individual gangsters such as Stevens can bend those traditions in establishing their own criminal enterprise.

How Hugh Hefner Commercialized Sex

The Playboy founder—who died at the age of 91—peddled an American dream that was as much about money as desire.

In 1953, Hugh Hefner was living out a stereotypical version of the American Dream. At the age of 27, he had a job (as a cartoonist and copywriter), a wife, and a baby daughter. As Elizabeth Fraterrigo notes in her 2009 book Playboy and the Making of the Good Life in Modern America, Hefner's home life was so picture-perfect that it was photographed for a two-page story in the Chicago Daily News. In one image, Hefner sits on the floor of a tidy, modern living room holding baby Christie, while his wife, Millie, watches from the couch, holding a magazine.

LOS ANGELES — Hugh Hefner turned silk pajamas into a work uniform, women into centerfolds and sexual desire into a worldwide multimedia empire that spanned several generations of American life.

With Playboy, he helped slip sex out of the confines of plain brown wrappers and into mainstream conversation.

In 1953, a time when states could legally ban contraceptives and the word "pregnant" was not allowed on "I Love Lucy," Hefner published the first issue of Playboy, featuring naked photos of Marilyn Monroe and an editorial promise of "humor, sophistication and spice."

The Great Depression and World War II were over and Playboy soon became forbidden fruit for teens and a bible for men with time and money, primed for the magazine's prescribed evenings of dimmed lights, hard drinks, soft jazz, deep thoughts and deeper desires. Within a year, circulation neared 200,000. Within five years, it had topped 1 million.

Avraham Heffner (Hebrew: אברהם הפנר; 7 May 1935 – 19 September 2014) was an Israeli film and television director, screenwriter, author and Professor Emeritus at the Tel-Aviv University. He was a recipient of the Ophir Award for lifetime achievements.

Avraham Heffner

Heffner in Tel-Aviv, October 2009

Born	7 May 1935 Haifa, Mandatory Palestine
Died	19 September 2014 (aged 79) Tel Aviv, Israel
Occupation(s)	Film director, screenwriter, author, lecturer

Biography [edit]

Heffner graduated from the Hebrew Reali School in Haifa and served in the IDF with the Nahal Army Band. After his IDF service, he studied French literature at the Sorbonne, Paris. His love for the cinema began, according to him, at the age of 17. He began his career as an actor (in Uri Zohar's Hor BaLevana).

His first movie as director was Slow Down (1967), an adaptation of a short story by Simone de Beauvoir, which won him the Silver Lion Award at the 1969 Venice Film Festival. In the 1960s and the 1970s he was among the Israeli directors creating more personal and social films (in the "New Sensitivity" genre), films that were influenced from the Avant-garde-European cinema. The most significant example for these type of films is Heffner's first feature, But Where Is Daniel Wax?, which he wrote and directed. But Where Is Daniel Wax?, Heffner's most important and famous film, is considered by film critics and Israeli film researchers to be the best Israeli movie of all time.

Two other films of his, Aunt Clara (1977) and Laura Adler's Last Love Affair, are considered to be a eulogy to the old Yiddish speakers, European Jews who live in Israel. Aunt Clara, a semi-autobiographical film about Heffner's own family, tells the story of three Poland-born aunts in Israel, who are looking after their young nieces. Laura Adler's Last Love Affair is a eulogy to the Israeli Yiddish theater and its old actors.

The television film he created in 1998, Eretz Ktana, Ish Gadol [Small Country, Great Man], is a cynical look at the ever-changing State of Israel of the 1990s and the Zionist myths, which in Heffner's opinion, are now gone.

Heffner lectured for many years on filmmaking and screenwriting at the Tel Aviv University.[1][2]

In 2004, Heffner won the Ophir Award for his life-time of achievements in Israeli Cinema. His films are held at the Jewish film archives.[3]

Heffner died on 19 September 2014.[4][5]

Influence [edit]

Heffner was a screenwriting lecturer in the mid-1970s at the Tel Aviv University, and influenced many well-known Israeli filmmakers such as Eitan Green, Renen Shor, Ari Folman, Hagai Levi, Menashe Noy and Dover Kosashvili.

Hugh Hefner, who created Playboy magazine and spun it into a media and entertainment-industry giant — all the while, as its very public avatar, squiring attractive young women (and sometimes marrying them) well into his 80s — died on Wednesday at his home, the Playboy Mansion, in the Holmby Hills area of Los Angeles. He was 91.

His death was announced by Playboy Enterprises.

Hefner the man and Playboy the brand were inseparable. Both advertised themselves as emblems of the sexual revolution, an escape from American priggishness and wider social intolerance. Both were derided over the years — as vulgar, as adolescent, as exploitative and

For conspiracy theories surrounding the assassination, see Martin Luther King Jr. assassination conspiracy theories.

Martin Luther King Jr., an African-American clergyman and civil rights movement leader, was fatally shot at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tennessee, on April 4, 1968, at 6:01 p.m. CST. He was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he died at 7:05 p.m. He was a prominent leader of the civil rights movement and a Nobel Peace Prize laureate who was known for his use of nonviolence and civil disobedience.

James Earl Ray, a fugitive from the Missouri State Penitentiary, was arrested on June 8, 1968, at London's Heathrow Airport, extradited to the United States and charged with the crime. On March 10, 1969, he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 99 years in the Tennessee State Penitentiary.[1] He later made many attempts to withdraw his guilty plea and to be tried by a jury, but was unsuccessful. Ray died in prison in 1998.[2]

The King family and others believe that the assassination was the result of a conspiracy involving the U.S. government, the mafia, and Memphis police, as alleged by Loyd Jowers in 1993. They believe that Ray was a scapegoat. In 1999, the family filed a wrongful death lawsuit against Jowers for the sum of $10 million. During closing arguments, their attorney asked the jury to award damages of $100, to make the point that "it was not about the money". During the trial, both sides presented evidence alleging a government conspiracy. The accused government agencies could not defend themselves or respond because they were not named as defendants. Based on the evidence, the jury

Brief History: Playboy

2 MINUTE READ

JOSH SANBURN

JANUARY 24, 2011 12:00 AM EST

Playboy has long been a part of the American man's private life. On Jan. 10, the magazine became a more private part of Hugh Hefner's life as the publication's founder announced plans to buy the remaining Playboy Enterprises stock he did not already own in a $207 million deal. The purchase, he said, would allow the company to "[return] to its roots" as a private entity.

Those roots took hold in 1953 in a Chicago apartment when Hefner set about starting his own magazine after being denied a $5 raise as an Esquire copywriter. He raised $8,000 (including $1,000 from his mother) to produce Playboy's first issue. The main hook: nude photos of Marilyn Monroe. It sold 54,000 copies, and the magazine was an instant hit. As its popularity grew, Playboy tried to maintain an air of sophistication, with fiction from authors like John Updike and Vladimir Nabokov bumping up against topless centerfolds. Despite helping spearhead the 1960s sexual revolution, Playboy felt the heat from newer, racier publications like Penthouse and, later, Hustler. Hefner briefly toyed with more explicit pictorials but chose to stick with a more tasteful approach. Heading into the 1970s, an estimated one-fourth of college men bought Playboy. The company went public in 1971, and the magazine's circulation peaked in 1972 at more than 7 million.

But those glory days are long gone. The proliferation of online pornography and upstart men's mags like Maxim and FHM severely weakened Playboy. Debt of $115 million prompted Hefner's buyout of the company's stock. The brand has now shifted its energy toward licensing clubs, mansions and even bedsheets around the world–especially in growing markets in Asia. Sure, it's a far cry from nudes and Nabokov, but Hef's betting the bunny never loses her appeal.

Alexander Hamilton Stephens[a] (February 11, 1812 – March 4, 1883) was an American politician who served as the first and only vice president of the Confederate States from 1861 to 1865, and later as the 50th governor of Georgia from 1882 until his death in 1883. A member of the Democratic Party, he represented the state of Georgia in the United States House of Representatives before and after the Civil War.

Stephens attended Franklin College and established a legal practice in his hometown of Crawfordville, Georgia. After serving in both houses of the Georgia General Assembly, he won election to Congress, taking his seat in 1843. He became a leading Southern Whig and strongly opposed the Mexican–American War. After the war, Stephens was a prominent supporter of the Compromise of 1850 and helped draft the Georgia Platform, which opposed secession. A proponent of the expansion of slavery into the territories, Stephens also helped pass the Kansas–Nebraska Act. As the Whig Party collapsed in the 1850s, Stephens eventually joined the Democratic Party and worked with President James Buchanan to admit Kansas as a state under the pro-slavery Lecompton Constitution (which was overwhelmingly rejected by voters in a referendum in that state).

Stephens declined to seek re-election in 1858 but continued to publicly advocate against secession. After Georgia and other Southern states seceded and formed the Confederate States of America, Stephens was elected as the Confederate Vice President. Stephens's Cornerstone Speech of March 1861 defended slavery; enumerated contrasts between the American and Confederate foundings, ideologies, and constitutions; and laid out the Confederacy's rationale for seceding.[2] In the course of the war, he became increasingly critical of President Jefferson Davis's policies, especially Confederate conscription and the suspension of habeas corpus.[3] In February 1865, he was one of the commissioners who met with Abraham Lincoln at the abortive Hampton Roads Conference to discuss peace terms.

After the war, Stephens was imprisoned until October 1865. The following year, the Georgia legislature elected Stephens to the U.S. Senate, but the Senate declined to seat him due to his role in the Civil War. He won election to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1873 and held that office until 1882, when he resigned from Congress to become governor of Georgia. Stephens served as governor until his death in March 1883.

Sam DeStefano - Wikipedia

Samuel "Mad Sam" DeStefano (September 13, 1909 – April 14, 1973) was an American mobster who was associated with the Chicago Outfit. He was one of the organization's most notorious loan sharks and sociopathic killers. Chicago-based Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) agents, such as William F. Roemer Jr., considered DeStefano to be the worst torture-murderer in the history of the United States.[1] The Outfit used the mentally unstable and sadistic DeStefano for the torture-murders of Leo Foreman and Arthur Adler, the murder of DeStefano's younger brother, Michael DeStefano (an Outfit enforcer), and many others. At least one Outfit insider, Charles Crimaldi, claimed DeStefano was a devil worshipper.[2]

The De Stefano 'ndrina, or the De Stefano family or De Stefano-Tegano family, is one of the most powerful clans of the 'Ndrangheta, a criminal and mafia-type organisation in Calabria, Italy. The 'ndrina hailed from the Archi neighbourhood in Reggio Calabria. Several of its members were included in the list of most wanted fugitives in Italy. According to prosecutor Salvatore Boemi, the De Stefanos are the representation of the manager-criminal controlling a crime multinational with joint ventures with Raffaele Cutolo from the Camorra and Nitto Santapaola and Francesco Ferrera from Cosa Nostra in Catania.[1]

Origins [edit]

The De Stefano brothers, Paolo, Giovanni, Giorgio and Orazio would come to prominence as members of the 'Ndrangheta clan of Domenico Tripodo, the old boss (capobastone) of Reggio Calabria, who had acquired considerable financial resources through tobacco smuggling. Within two years (as a result of the first 'Ndrangheta war in 1974-1976) they moved from being simple 'Ndranghetisti to being the new "lords" of Reggio Calabria.[2]

Max "Big Maxie" Greenberg (1883–1933) was an American bootlegger and organized crime figure in Detroit, Michigan, and later a member of Egan's Rats in St. Louis. He oversaw the purchasing of sacramental wine from Orthodox rabbis, then allowed under the Volstead Act, which were sold to bootleggers in the St. Louis–Kansas City, Missouri area during Prohibition. He was also associated with mobsters in this particular method of acquiring illegal liquor including Waxey Gordon, Meyer Lansky and Arnold Rothstein.[1]

Other names	Big Maxie Greenberg Big Head Greenberg
Occupation	Bootlegger

By the early 1910s, Greenberg had joined the Egan's Rats and become one of their best members. Max, his brother Morris, and two others were suspected in the murder of Sam Mintz on December 5, 1914. It was disclosed that Mintz had informed on the gang in a fire insurance scam they were running; Greenberg managed to avoid being caught.[2] Greenberg was also believed to have played a key role in the Rats' first known bank robbery, that of the Baden Bank on April 10, 1919, during which the robbers took $59,000.[3]

Soon after the Baden bank heist, Greenberg, Ben Milner, and Edward "Big Red" Powers were sentenced to Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary on an interstate theft charge, stemming from the Egan-sponsored robbery of some railroad cars in Danville, Illinois. Egan gang boss William Egan and Missouri State Senator Michael Kinney managed to finagle the three men pardons from none other than President Woodrow Wilson himself.[4]

Soon after their release, Greenberg and Milner decided to go into the bootlegging racket for themselves. They accomplished this by betraying the very same man who had saved them from prison: Willie Egan. Egan gave Greenberg $2,000 to make a deal with a Mexican smuggler for a load of whiskey. Greenberg, it later turned out, paid the smuggler but kept the whiskey for himself. Egan was furious and demanded that Greenberg reimburse him, but Greenberg claimed the whiskey barge had sunk in the Mississippi River. These bad feelings came to a head in the early morning hours of October 16, 1920, when Greenberg and his friends engaged the rest of the Egan's Rats in a huge brawl at Egan's Franklin Avenue saloon. One of the men severely injured was attorney John Sweeney. A month later, Milner would be shot and killed during a running gun battle with the Russo Gang. After these two incidents his bootleg business fell into disarray, forcing Greenberg to leave St. Louis for Detroit.[5]

In the fall of 1920, he was introduced to Rothstein by Waxey Gordon and asked for a $175,000 loan to purchase speedboats to bring in alcohol from Ontario to Detroit as well as additional funds for graft payoffs. Rothstein liked the idea, but instead decided to take up rum-running to New York where the demand was the highest in the country. Gordon was allowed to run the operation as a junior partner while Greenberg, in order not to be cut out entirely, was allowed to take part in the deal under the condition that he mortgage all his personal property to Rothstein and take out an expensive life insurance policy with Rothstein's insurance company.[6]

In March 1921, Greenberg returned to St. Louis to lay the groundwork for his new business

Kidnapping of Edward Bremer

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The kidnapping of Edward Bremer was the last major criminal enterprise of the Barker-Karpis gang. Though successful in netting the gang a large ransom, it brought down the full force of the FBI on the gang, resulting in the death or capture of its main members in the months afterwards. The kidnapping was ordered by St. Paul Jewish-American organized crime boss Harry Sawyer, and carried out by Fred Barker, Alvin Karpis, Arthur Barker, Volney Davis and Chicago Outfit mobster George Goetz-Ziegler.

The successful capture and prosecution of the kidnappers greatly enhanced the reputation of the FBI. The strong evidence that the city's police were working with the criminals helped fuel campaigns against police corruption.

Edward Bremer, Jr.

Nationality	American
Known for	kidnap victim

Background [edit]

The Barker-Karpis gang operated in St. Paul, Minnesota under the protection of mobbed up police chief Tom Brown and local organized crime figures Jack Peifer and Harry Sawyer. Sawyer had orchestrated their previous successful kidnapping of William Hamm. He now proposed that Edward Bremer should be their next target. Bremer was 34, and was president of Commercial State Bank. His father, Adolph Bremer, was also a banker and the owner of the Schmidt beer brewery.[1]

It is thought that Bremer was not chosen simply because of his wealth, but also because of a personal vendetta, possibly linked to the ending of the prohibition era. Schmidt breweries were widely believed to have survived in the prohibition era by working with bootleggers such as Sawyer. With prohibition over, the Bremers severed ties with their criminal associates. According to Sawyer's wife, her husband and Ed Bremer "got into a dispute over alcohol."[2] Alvin Karpis later said that Sawyer had some sort of "beef" with the victim and that he "sure didn't like Bremer".[2] When the FBI investigated the kidnapping, they discovered that Bremer had many enemies. An FBI report noted that he "is very much disliked, not only by his family, but generally. He has an uncontrollable temper, is very selfish, and has few friends".[3]

Kidnapping [edit]

On January 17, 1934 Bremer was kidnapped from the streets of St. Paul, Minnesota. He was on his way to work, having just dropped his daughter off at school when he was approached by two men, one of whom was Arthur "Doc" Barker. Barker repeatedly punched and pistol-whipped him, forcing him into the back of Bremer's car and placing blindfolding goggles over his eyes. After having some difficulty starting the vehicle, the kidnappers forced the bleeding Bremer to show them the starter button, then drove off, later switching to another car. The blood-stained vehicle was later recovered, leading to fears that Bremer had been killed.[4]

Arthur "Doc" Barker

Bremer was held captive in Bensenville, Illinois.[5] He was kept in a small room and was told that his family would be killed if he said anything to the police. He was also told to provide the names of people who could act as intermediaries. Messages demanding $200,000 were left with the Bremers' trusted business associate and former chauffeur Walter Magee. Through Tom Brown, the gang learned that Magee had informed the police, despite the gang's demand that he should keep quiet. They threatened to kill him and Bremer. Adolph Bremer, the victim's father, refused to pay up unless the kidnappers provided proof of life. Edward was forced to write another note pleading to be returned to his wife and children. When Adolph also tried to reduce the ransom money, Fred Barker became enraged and suggested they should kill Edward. His brother Arthur and Karpis overruled him. In the end the ransom was paid by dropping off a bag full of cash, which was collected by George Zieger. Edward was driven to a deserted road by Ziegler and released on February 7, left on the empty road with a small amount of cash. He had to make his own way back home.

Arrests and deaths [edit]

The FBI had recorded the serial numbers of all the cash used to pay the ransom. They launched an intensive investigation, declaring Alvin Karpis, presumed leader of the gang, to be "Public Enemy No. 1". Bremer, completely traumatized and worried about the safety of his wife and children, refused to cooperate with the FBI. When they threatened to reveal what they believed about his links to organized crime, he admitted what he knew about the kidnappers, and his suspicions about their connection to Sawyer.

The gang knew that they needed to launder the money, but the intensity of the FBI pressure meant that most of their criminal contacts refused to participate. Ziegler was gunned down in a drive-by killing by unknown assailants in March. Sawyer claimed that

The Barker–Karpis Gang was one of the longest-lived criminal gangs during the Depression Era, spanning from 1931 to 1935. The gang was founded by Fred Barker and Alvin Karpis, and later joined by Fred's brother Arthur "Doc" Barker. Along with the three core members, the gang's network spanned up to 25 members at one point.

Although not as well known as their contemporaries the Dillinger Gang, or the Barrow Gang, the Barker–Karpis Gang was perhaps more ruthless, not only committing bank robberies, but also extending the activities into kidnapping.[1] It is best known for the myth that it was run by the Barker brothers' mother, Kate, usually referred to as "Ma Barker".

The Barker–Karpis gang was put together by Fred Barker and Alvin Karpis in March 1931. Barker and Karpis had met in the Kansas State Penitentiary, and upon Karpis's release in March 1931, started to form the gang. The gang began robbing banks starting in mid-1931, but on December 19 of that year, they killed Howell County Sheriff Calvin Roy Kelly in West Plains, Missouri. They fled to Joplin, and then to Saint Paul, Minnesota, where Jewish-American organized crime boss Harry Sawyer (born Harry Sandlovich) found them a house at 1031 Roberts Road, owned by Helen Hannegraff. They used the name "Anderson", but a few weeks later, Helen's son Nick recognized Alvin's and Fred's photos in a copy of True Detective Magazine, and contacted the police. St. Paul's corrupt chief of police, Thomas Brown, tipped the Barkers off and they left town. Doc Barker later joined the gang in 1932 after he was paroled from the Oklahoma State Penitentiary in McAlester, where he had been serving a life sentence for the murder of night watchman Thomas J. Sherrill in 1921. The gang was led by the three of them, although many others rotated in and out of the gang including Chicago Outfit mobster Fred Goetz and Volney Davis. The gang continued their bank robbing activities until mid-1933, when they decided that robbing banks was becoming risky, and therefore decided to diverge into the field of kidnapping.[2] Their graduation to more serious crime was mentored by Detective Brown.[3]

Hamm and Bremer kidnappings [edit]

On June 15, 1933, the Barker–Karpis gang kidnapped William Hamm of Hamm's Brewery and released him on June 19, 1933. The ransom from this kidnapping netted $100,000. They then kidnapped Edward Bremer in daylight in St. Paul in January 1934, releasing him in February. The ransom from this kidnapping turned out to be $200,000. However, these kidnappings brought too much negative publicity, due to the recent Urschel and Lindbergh Kidnappings, and the fact that the father of Bremer Jr. was a personal friend of President Roosevelt, who mentioned the kidnappings in a fireside chat. On November 27, 1934, Lester "Baby Face Nelson" Gillis, at that time the Public Enemy No. 1, was mortally wounded in a gun battle with the FBI and died later that night. The next day, Alvin Karpis was declared Public Enemy No. 1, which brought the full force of the FBI down on the Barker–Karpis Gang.[4][5]

Downfall [edit]

The gang had faced problems. George "Shotgun" Ziegler had been gunned down in Cicero, Illinois in March 1934, possibly due to the mob's dislike of the gang's activities. Gang member William J. Harrison was killed on January 6 by fellow members of the gang. Following the declaration of Alvin Karpis as Public Enemy No. 1, Doc Barker was arrested on January 8, 1935, along with Byron Bolton. Russell "Slim Gray" Gibson was killed resisting the arrest. Along with his arrest came a map and letters to a cottage near Lake Weir, Florida, near Ocklawaha, in which Fred Barker and his mother, Kate "Ma" Barker were hiding under an assumed name. After a four-hour shootout on January 16, 1935,

Gangster Generation: Crime, Jews and the Problem of Assimilation

Rachel Rubin
University of Massachusetts Boston

"Gangster Generation: Crime, Jews, and the Problem of Assimilation" examines cultural representations of Jewish criminals over the course of the twentieth century. The essay seeks to demonstrate that for several successive generations following the mass immigration of Jews to the United States, these figures have been invoked and described as a kind of index to the possibility—and desirability—of Jewish assimilation into the American mainstream. Taking into its purview accounts of Jewish mobsters ranging from newspaper stories and nonfiction writing to memoir, movies, and a popular TV series, the essay shows that the Jewish gangster has proved to be a figure flexible enough to accommodate and reflect changes in the social position and the cultural needs of Jews in America.

According to legend, Meyer Lansky, one of the longest-lived and most powerful Jewish gangsters in U.S. history, once described his success in the following terms: "We're bigger than U.S. Steel." Whether Lansky ever actually said this—and whether it was literally true—is beside the point: Lansky's boast manages to convey not only the prominence of men such as Lansky, Dutch Schultz, Bugsy Siegel, Gyp the Blood, and scores of others, but also offers a way of evaluating these men's success that is pointedly American and deliberately conventional.

At very least, Lansky was right in principle. From its origin in the 1880s, to a peak of accomplishment during Prohibition, the Jewish underworld flourished in ghettos such as New York's Lower East Side, Chicago's West Side, or those in Detroit, Boston, Baltimore, and other places. During this time Jews contributed some of the United States' foremost bootleggers, racketeers, panderers, and professional killers, culminating most famously in the Jewish-Italian criminal syndicate dubbed "Murder, Inc." by contemporary journalists.

After a few lucrative and bloody decades, though, the heyday of the Jewish gangster was over. The end of Prohibition necessitated a restructuring of organized crime's business plan to emphasize other sources of income, gambling in particular. Furthermore, following World War I, Jews in huge numbers were leaving the old urban neighborhoods that had given birth to the gangsters; a result of these two factors was that Jewish gangsters became much less visible or even went "legit." By the 1950s, Jewish gangsters had disappeared from the newspaper headlines and political dis-

The Notorious Purple Gang: Detroit's All-Jewish Prohibition Era Mob

Robert A. Rockaway

During Prohibition (1920–1933), Jewish gangsters became major operatives in the American underworld and played prominent roles in the creation and extension of organized crime in the United States. At the time, Jewish gangs dominated illicit activities in a number of America's largest cities, including Cleveland, Detroit, Minneapolis, Newark, New York, and Philadelphia. One of the more notorious of these all-Jewish mobs was Detroit's Purple Gang. The gang dealt in bootlegging, gambling, extortion, drugs, and murder, and developed a reputation for being more ruthless than Al Capone's mob in Chicago. The Purple's decade-long reign of terror ended when most of the gang's members either went to prison or were murdered by rivals.

After World War I, Jewish gangsters became major operatives in the American underworld and played prominent roles in the creation and extension of organized crime in the United States. During the Prohibition era (1919–1933) 50 percent of the country's leading bootleggers were Jews, and Jewish criminals financed and directed much of the nation's narcotics traffic. Jewish gangs also dominated illicit activities in a number of America's largest cities, including Cleveland, Detroit, Minneapolis, Newark, New York and Philadelphia.[1] Perhaps the most notorious of these all-Jewish mobs was Detroit's Purple Gang.

illegal drug sales and witness intimidation using kites at times smuggled in the rectums of gangsters who violate their parole in order to gain temporary entry to county jail, she said.

"They are literally using the bodies of their members as mules to run their gang," she said.

The messages, written in English with in micro-lettering on tiny pieces of paper, sometimes use codes, such as female names in place of specific men and even the titles of popular films, according to prosecutors.

One note stated, "Cynthia tells Shirley to see 'Titanic,'" which meant to say that two gang members took part in a shooting together, McKeown said.

Another kite threatened someone to do a "removal," a term for murder, saying, "You are to conduct a removal within two or three weeks and if you don't, you will face violence," she said.

Some kites allude to orders from the alleged top crime boss of the gang, Antonio "Chuco" Guillen, who commands the criminal enterprise from within a secure facility at the Pelican Bay State Prison up north in Crescent City, where he is serving a life sentence for murder, she said.

Guillen is highest ranking among three gang generals, all housed at Pelican Bay, she said.

"He is the granddaddy of the Nortenos in California," McKeown said.

The Nuestra Familia gang, based on evidence from captured kites, even has an internal code of conduct. In one case, a gang member who threatened a man in front of the man's wife and children was ordered by gang leaders to pay a $500 fine, she said.

Aside from Barba, those indicted as a result of Operation Red October were Arlindo "Gino" Silva, 44; Benjamin "Big Happy" Mendez, 37; Carlos Roman, 40; Cassey Klauer, 27; Colleen Dunn, 51; Daniel "Bird" Millich, 37; Diego "Chucky"

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Nuestra Familia (Spanish for "our family") is a criminal organization of Mexican American (Chicano) prison gangs with origins in Northern California.[7] While members of the Norteños gang are considered to be foot soldiers of Nuestra Familia, being a member of Nuestra Familia itself does not signify association as a Norteño. Some law enforcement agents speculate that the Nuestra Familia gang, which operates in and out of prisons, influences much of the criminal activity of thousands of Norteño gang members in California.[8] The gang's main sources of income are distributing cocaine, heroin, marijuana, and methamphetamine within prison systems as well as in the community and extorting drug distributors on the streets.[9]

History [edit]

Origins [edit]

Nuestra Familia was organized at Correctional Training Facility in Soledad, California in 1960.[1] In the late 1960s, Mexican-American inmates of the California state prison system began to separate into two rival groups, Nuestra Familia[7] and the 1957-formed Mexican Mafia, according to the locations of their hometowns (the north-south dividing line is Bakersfield, California). The inmates who formed the Nuestra Familia gang banded together to protect themselves from the Mexican Mafia but then grew to be involved in drug dealing, extortion and robbery.[10]

Nuestra Familia are prison enemies of the Southern Chicanos who consisted of La eMe, better known as the Mexican Mafia. While the Mexican Mafia had initially been created to protect Mexicans in prison, there was a perceived level of abuse by members of La eMe towards the imprisoned chicanos from rural farming areas of Northern California.[11] The spark that led to the ongoing war between Nuestra Familia and members of the Mexican Mafia involved a situation in 1965 in which a member of La eMe stole a pair of shoes from a Northerner at Deuel Vocational Institute in Tracy. This event put into motion the longest-running gang war in the state of California.

The Nuestra Familia was not recognized as a prison gang by the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation until 1979.[12]

Renewed organization [edit]

Since the written constitution of the Norteños stated that the gang's leaders resided in Pelican Bay State Prison in California; the relocation of the five leaders led to turmoil among its members. The leadership vacuum resulted in a power struggle between prospective generals.[13]

Eventually, three new generals came to power at Pelican Bay, yet two were demoted, leaving only David "DC" Cervantes as the highest-ranking member of the gang in California.[13] Cervantes' rise marked the first time in decades that the Norteños had a single leader at the helm of their criminal organization.[13] The remaining leadership of the organization in Pelican Bay consists of Daniel "Stork" Perez, Anthony "Chuco" Guillen and George "Puppet" Franco. While all Nuestra Familia soldiers and captains in California are expected to follow the orders of Cervantes, a small percentage of the gang remains loyal to the former generals and captains imprisoned in Colorado.[13] Former California Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger had complained that keeping

Owen Vincent "Owney" Madden (December 18, 1891 – April 24, 1965) was an American gangster who was a leading underworld figure in New York during Prohibition. Nicknamed "The Killer", he garnered a brutal reputation within street gangs and organized crime. He ran the Cotton Club in Manhattan and was a leading boxing promoter. After increased attention from law enforcement in New York, Madden moved to Hot Springs, Arkansas, in 1935, where he remained until his death from natural causes in 1965.

Early life [edit]

Owen Vincent Madden was born into a working-class family at 25 Somerset Road in Leeds, England, on December 18, 1891, the son of Irish immigrants Francis Madden and Mary Madden (née O'Neil.)[1] After his mother became a widow she emigrated to New York to become a maid, leaving Owen and his sister Mary and brother Martin in a British orphanage. In 1896. Owen's mother saved up enough money to take them out of the orphanage and get them tickets to join her in New York City.[1][2]

The young Madden grew up on the streets of New York where he learned how to use blackjacks, knuckledusters, bats, pipes, knives, and stilettoes. By the age of 21 years old, Madden had become the leader of a feared New York street gang known as the Gopher Gang. He earned the nickname, "The Killer" for getting away with two brazen murders. On September 6, 1911, he shot dead a gang member of the rival Hudson Dusters in the heart of Dusters' territory around 30th Street. In February 1912, Madden was on a crowded street trolley, arguing with a store clerk named William Henshaw about a woman, and Madden shot Henshaw in the face. Henshaw was not a gang member, and as he was dying, he named Owney Madden as his killer. Despite the police having his name, and there being eyewitnesses to the crime, Madden never went to trial—witnesses in both killings were intimidated, and disappeared.[2]

In 1915, he eventually went to prison for ordering the killing of William "Little Patsy Doyle" Moore, who had been waging a three-year vendetta campaign against Madden and the Gopher Gang.[2]

Prohibition [edit]

After serving seven years of a 10-to-20-year sentence for Moore's manslaughter,[3] Madden was released on parole in 1923. The Gopher Gang had broken up, and many members of his own faction were either in Sing Sing or working for bootlegging gangs.[4]

NYPD mug shot of Madden (first published in 1920)

The Cotton Club [edit]

Madden purchased the Club Deluxe from former heavyweight boxing champion Jack Johnson and reopened it a year later. Nightclub patrons flooded into Harlem from downtown Manhattan to catch performers such as Cab Calloway, Duke Ellington, Louis Armstrong, Lena Horne, Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, and the Nicholas Brothers. Madden and his partners, Big Bill and George Jean "Big Frenchy" DeMange, also muscled their way into a piece of the exclusive Stork Club, where the influential gossip columnist Walter Winchell held court and everyone who was

The Dead Rabbits were a street gang in Lower Manhattan in the 1850s, whose members were mostly Irish. The were also named the “Mulberry Boys” and the “Mulberry Street Boys” by the NYPD because they did also operate along Mulberry Street in the Five Points.

They were founded by Shang Allen, one of many disgruntled gang members of the Roach Guards, they became the largest Irish crime organization at the time in mid 19th-century Manhattan, having well over 100 members when called up for action. Its said they got the name the Dead Rabbits after a dead rabbit was thrown into the center of the room during a gang meeting, some members of the gang saw this as an omen and formed an independent gang.

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Avraham Heffner (Hebrew: אברהם הפנר; 7 May 1935 – 19 September 2014) was an Israeli film and television director, screenwriter, author and Professor Emeritus at the Tel-Aviv University. He was a recipient of the Ophir Award for lifetime achievements.

Avraham Heffner

Born	7 May 1935 Haifa, Mandatory Palestine
Died	19 September 2014 (aged 79) Tel Aviv, Israel
Occupation(s)	Film director, screenwriter, author, lecturer

Biography [edit]

Heffner graduated from the Hebrew Reali School in Haifa and served in the IDF with the Nahal Army Band. After his IDF service, he studied French literature at the Sorbonne, Paris. His love for the cinema began, according to him, at the age of 17. He began his career as an actor (in Uri Zohar's Hor BaLevana).

His first movie as director was Slow Down (1967), an adaptation of a short story by Simone de Beauvoir, which won him the Silver Lion Award at the 1969 Venice Film Festival. In the 1960s and the 1970s he was among the Israeli directors creating more personal and social films (in the "New Sensitivity" genre), films that were influenced from the Avant-garde-European cinema. The most significant example for these type of films is Heffner's first feature, But Where Is Daniel Wax?, which he wrote and directed. But Where Is Daniel Wax?, Heffner's most important and famous film, is considered by film critics and Israeli film researchers to be the best Israeli movie of all time.

Two other films of his, Aunt Clara (1977) and Laura Adler's Last Love Affair, are considered to be a eulogy to the old Yiddish speakers, European Jews who live in Israel. Aunt Clara, a semi-autobiographical film about Heffner's own family, tells the story of three Poland-born aunts in Israel, who are looking after their young nieces. Laura Adler's Last Love Affair is a eulogy to the Israeli Yiddish theater and its old actors.

The television film he created in 1998, Eretz Ktana, Ish Gadol [Small Country, Great Man], is a cynical look at the ever-changing State of Israel of the 1990s and the Zionist myths, which in Heffner's opinion, are now gone.

Heffner lectured for many years on filmmaking and screenwriting at the Tel Aviv University.[1][2]

In 2004, Heffner won the Ophir Award for his life-time of achievements in Israeli Cinema. His films are held at the Jewish film archives.[3]

Heffner died on 19 September 2014.[4][5]

Influence [edit]

Heffner was a screenwriting lecturer in the mid-1970s at the Tel Aviv University, and influenced many well-known Israeli filmmakers such as Eitan Green, Renen Shor, Ari Folman, Hagai Levi, Menashe Noy and Dover Kosashvili.

Hugh Hefner, who created Playboy magazine and spun it into a media and entertainment-industry giant — all the while, as its very public avatar, squiring attractive young women (and sometimes marrying them) well into his 80s — died on Wednesday at his home, the Playboy Mansion, in the Holmby Hills area of Los Angeles. Larry Claxton Flynt Jr. (/flɪnt/; November 1, 1942 – February 10, 2021) was an American publisher and the president of Larry Flynt Publications (LFP). LFP mainly produces pornographic magazines, such as Hustler, pornographic videos, and three pornographic television channels named Hustler TV. Flynt fought several high-profile legal battles involving the First Amendment, and unsuccessfully ran for public office. He was paralyzed from the waist down due to injuries sustained in a 1978 assassination attempt by serial killer Joseph Paul Franklin.[1]:170–71 In 2003, Arena magazine listed him at No. 1 on the "50 Powerful People in Porn" list.[2]

Early life [edit]

Flynt was born in Lakeville, Magoffin County, Kentucky, the first of three children of Larry Claxton Flynt Sr. (1919–2005), a sharecropper,[3] and Edith (née Arnett; 1925–1982), a homemaker.[4] He had two younger siblings: sister Judy (1947–1951) and brother Jimmy Ray Flynt (born 1948). His father served in the United States Army in the European theatre of World War II. Due to his father's absence, Flynt was raised solely by his mother and maternal grandmother for the first three years of his life.[1]:12 Flynt was raised in poverty, and said Magoffin County was the poorest county in the nation during the Great Depression.[5] In 1951, Flynt's sister, Judy,[6] died of leukemia at age four.[7] The death provoked his parents' divorce one year later; Flynt was then raised by his mother in Hamlet, Indiana, and his brother, Jimmy, was raised by his maternal grandmother in Magoffin County. Two years later, Flynt returned to live in Magoffin County with his father because he disliked his mother's new boyfriend.[8]:285[1]:12

Flynt attended Salyersville High School (now Magoffin County High School) in the ninth grade. However, he ran away from home and, despite being only 15 years old, joined the United States Army using a counterfeit birth certificate.[1]:16–17 It was around that time that he developed a passion for the game of poker. After being honorably discharged, Flynt returned to his mother in Indiana and found employment at the Inland Manufacturing Company, an affiliate of General Motors. However, there was a union-led slowdown and he was laid off after only three months.[1]:21 He then returned to his father in Kentucky. For a brief period, he became a bootlegger but stopped when he learned that county deputies were searching for him.[1]:22–23 After living on his savings for two months, he enlisted in the United States Navy in July 1960. He became a radar operator on USS Enterprise. He was the operator on duty when the ship was assigned to recover John Glenn's space capsule.[1]:38 He was honorably discharged in July 1964.

SIMCHAT TORAH SERVICE

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 8, 2023 • 23 TISHREI 5784

9:30 AM - 12:00 PM
South Campus: 6025 Valley Circle Blvd, Woodland Hills

On Simchat Torah morning, HAMAKOM honors those who helped lead us to our newly merged community. It is a special honor to be called up for the aliyah of the final verses of Deuteronomy and the beginning verses of Genesis.

For the final verses of the Torah we will honor Debbie Strom and Ofer Ho, the last presidents of Temple Aliyah and Shomrei Torah Synagogue.

For the beginning verses of Genesis, we will honor Ellen Cervantes and Steve Sevran, the co-chairs of the Joint Steering Committee. The Joint Steering Committee was responsible for articulating the issues that needed to be resolved, working with consultants, and ultimately providing recommendations for the merger. HAMAKOM would not have happened without the work of this committee and the many congregants engaged on the task teams.

Serbian man convicted of series of rapes in Berlin

Published 7:19 AM CDT, April 19, 2021

Share

BERLIN (AP) — A Berlin court on Monday convicted a 30-year-old man over a series of rapes that occurred in and around the German capital last summer.

The court sentenced the defendant, a Serbian national whose name wasn't released for privacy reasons, to 14 years in prison. Judges deemed him a dangerous offender, meaning he can be held in prison after his sentence has been served.

During the trial, the man admitted to the allegations of six rapes, one attempted rape, bodily harm and attempted robbery, the German news agency dpa reported. The victims were aged between 14 and 27.

The crimes were carried out in wooded areas of southwest Berlin and neighboring Brandenburg state.

L.A. City Councilman Denounces Airbnb's Israel Policy

Los Angeles City Councilman Paul Koretz has joined the chorus of pro-Israel voices denouncing hospitality company Airbnb for its decision to delist properties located in the West Bank.

In a Dec. 20 letter to Airbnb CEO Brian Chesky, Koretz said Airbnb's actions demonstrate "prejudice, ignorance and hypocrisy. Simply put, this is an act of anti-Semitism and sets a double standard."

"Airbnb, Inc. currently lists properties in Northern Cyprus, Tibet, the Western Saharan region, and other disputed territories where people have been displaced," the letter continues. "However, Jewish settlements are being singled out for delisting by Airbnb, Inc. The decision made by your company is based on the position of taking one side in a two-sided conflict. There is no reason to ban the Israeli side's listings and not the others, except on the basis of anti-Semitic sentiment."

Former CEO of KB Home Convicted of Federal Fraud Charges Related to Stock Option Backdating in Which He Awarded Himself Millions of Dollars in Compensation

U.S. Attorney's Office
April 21, 2010

Central District of California
(213) 894-0434

LOS ANGELES—Bruce E. Karatz, a former CEO and chairman of the board of KB Home, was convicted today of four felony counts related to a stock option backdating scheme in which he awarded himself and other KB executives millions of dollars in undisclosed stock-based compensation.

Karatz, 64, of Bel Air Estates, was found guilty of two counts of mail fraud, one count of making false statements in a quarterly report filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and one count of making false statements to KB's outside accounting firm, Ernst & Young. The convictions stem from Karatz's attempts in 2006 to cover-up the fact that he had been backdating his own and other executive's stock options for the preceding seven years. The cover-up included failures to disclose the stock-option backdating in filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission and to KB's outside auditors.

As a result of today's guilty verdicts, Karatz faces a statutory maximum sentence of 80 years in federal prison. United States District Judge Otis D. Wright II, who presided over a six-week trial, is scheduled to sentence Karatz on September 8. Karatz was convicted of concealing a backdating scheme in which he participated, a scheme that hid the true nature and value of stock-based compensation KB had actually been awarding to Karatz and other KB executives through its stock-option granting practices. During the backdating scheme, Karatz caused below-market exercise prices to be selected for stock options granted to him and other KB executives by using hindsight to backdate the grant date of these options to the date with the lowest price point for KB's stock.

After KB commenced an internal investigation into its option-granting practice in May 2006, Karatz concealed that he had backdated KB's stock option grants during the preceding seven years. Among other things, Karatz caused a false and misleading internal report to be presented to KB's Audit Committee and to Ernst & Young. The false report said there was "no evidence of the backdating of options or other manipulation by management." KB's Audit Committee and other members of KB's management relied on this false and misleading internal report when filing a Form-10Q for the second quarter of 2006 that failed to disclose any irregularities in KB's past option-granting practices.

After KB discovered irregularities in its reporting, KB was unable to timely file its third quarter 10Q in October 2006. When KB ultimately filed its 2006 third quarter Form-10Q and its 2006 Form-10K in February 2007, the company was forced to recognize, for the first time, more than $36 million in additional stock-based compensation expenses and a total increase of more than $70 million in accrued

So Are the Neanderthals Still Jews?

And other revelations culled from history's big secrets.

BY CHARLES PAUL FREUND
AUG 02, 1997 • 3:30 AM

You read the press reports in July about the DNA of Neanderthals, and you quickly grasped how the new findings suggest that this branch of humanoids is much more distantly related to modern Homo sapiens than you may have believed–they are not even direct human ancestors. Now you must apply these findings, and examine their implications for the world around you. Specifically, you must weigh their effect on certain theories in circulation, among them that Neanderthals still walk–or lumber–among us, and indeed that they have maintained their cohesion through the ages and still constitute a group apart. And, most importantly, that this group of living, lumbering Neanderthals is the Jews.

What Are Jewish Genetic Diseases?

As many as 1 in 3 Ashkenazi Jews are estimated to be carriers for one of about 19 genetic diseases.

Jewish genetic diseases are a group of rare autosomal recessive disorders that are far more prevalent among people with Jewish ancestry than in the general population. Autosomal recessive diseases are transmitted genetically by carrier parents who themselves do not suffer from the disorder but carry the genes that can cause the disease. When two carriers of a genetic mutation associated with a particular disorder have children together, each of their offspring has a one in four chance of developing the disease and a 50 percent chance of becoming carriers themselves.

As many as one in three Ashkenazi Jews are estimated to be carriers for one of about 19 genetic diseases. In all, Jews have higher carrier rates for more than 40 genetic diseases. These include better-known disorders such as within just a few weeks, then two more necessary inferences could be added to the six facts above...

- 7. Since Isaac was 37 at his mother's death, he was 37 when Rebekah was born.
- 8. Since Isaac was 40 when he married Rebekah, Rebekah would be 3 when the marriage took place (because 40-37=3)

But these last two inferences are spurious, because they are based not on what the scripture says in Genesis 22 and 23, but rather what is said in non-biblical tradition.

MISHNA: One may perform everything necessary for circumcision on the Sabbath, as circumcising, tearing open, sucking out the blood, applying a plaster or caraway seed. If the latter had not been ground before the Sabbath, one may masticate it with the teeth and then apply it. If one had not mixed wine with oil before the Sabbath, he may apply each separately. One must not prepare an actual bandage (on the Sabbath), but may apply an old piece of linen; and if such had not been prepared before the Sabbath, the circumciser may bring it with him tied around his finger and even from another court (yard).

New edition of the Babylonian Talmud

Genesis 25

The Contemporary Torah, JPS, 2006

19 וְאֵלֶּה תּוֹלְדֹת יִצְחָק בֶּן־אַבְרָהָם אַבְרָהָם הוֹלִיד אֶת־יִצְחָק׃

This is the story of Isaac, son of Abraham. Abraham begot Isaac.

20 וַיְהִי יִצְחָק בֶּן־אַרְבָּעִים שָׁנָה בְּקַחְתּוֹ אֶת־רִבְקָה בַּת־בְּתוּאֵל הָאֲרַמִּי מִפַּדַּן אֲרָם אֲחוֹת לָבָן הָאֲרַמִּי לוֹ לְאִשָּׁה׃

21 וַיֶּעְתַּר יִצְחָק לַיהוָה לְנֹכַח אִשְׁתּוֹ כִּי עֲקָרָה הִוא וַיֵּעָתֶר לוֹ יְהוָה וַתַּהַר רִבְקָה אִשְׁתּוֹ׃

Commentary

בן ארבעים שנה FORTY YEARS OLD — For when Abraham came from Mount Moriah he received the news that Rebecca was born (22:20). Isaac was then thirty-seven years old, because at that time Sarah died and from the birth of Isaac until the Binding — when Sarah died — there were 37 years since she was 90 years old when Isaac was born and 127 when she died, as it is said, (23:1) "And the life of Sarah was [one hundred and twenty seven years]" — thus Isaac was then 37 years old. At that period Rebecca was born and he waited until she was fit for marriage — 3 years — and then married her (Seder Olam).

Investigation into child exploitation on Meta platforms leads to arrests of three men

By Clare Duffy, CNN

An investigation into safety risks for children on Meta's platforms has led to the arrests of three men accused of attempting to sexually abuse children. Justin Sullivan/Getty Images

New York (CNN) — An investigation by the New Mexico Attorney General into the potential dangers of Meta's platforms has resulted in the arrests of three men charged with attempted sexual abuse of children.

The arrests came after a months-long investigation by the attorney general's office into the risks of sexual exploitation of children on Facebook and Instagram. That investigation also formed the basis of a lawsuit against Meta, filed in December, accusing the tech giant of creating a "breeding ground" for child predators.

ST. LOUIS — They thought his own words would be enough to convict him.

"This kind of stuff, if we were the same age, would have been no problem," Jim Wilder is heard saying on an audio recording.

In 2013, after more than a decade of silence, Emilie Morris worked up the courage to go to the police.

She told them Wilder, her former Lindbergh cross country coach, committed sex crimes against her when she was still a student.

Police asked Morris to wear a wire and Wilder was arrested and charged with multiple sex crimes.

But just before his case was set to go to trial, Morris was found dead in her apartment and her case was dropped. Her cause of death - inconclusive.

When 5 On Your Side first reported her story in 2018, Emilie's family was still hoping her case could be reopened.

UPDATE: The Missouri Department of Secondary and Elementary Education is responding to a 5 On Your Side Cover Story about a former Lindbergh cross country coach caught on a secret recording confessing to sex crimes against a student.

That confession came nearly twenty years after former coach James Wilder had sexual contact with Emilie Morris who was 16 at the time.

Because of the recording, Wilder was arrested and charged but when Emilie passed away before he went to trial his case was dropped.

Wilder resigned from Lindbergh when the district said police turned over "new evidence" of the incident. But he was able to keep his state teaching license.

A Lindbergh spokesperson said the license is the responsibility of the state, and a state official said because Wilder's license was not revoked because he was never convicted.

However, 5 On Your Side has found a state statute that says a teacher can be disciplined or a certificate "not renewed" if there is "evidence of incompetence, immorality, or neglect of duty by the certificate holder."

Reward to Capture FBI 'Ten Most Wanted Fugitives' Increased to Up to $250K

The FBI has increased the rewards offered to capture individuals on its Ten Most Wanted Fugitives list to up to $250,000. Alejandro "Alex" Castillo was added to the list in October 2017.

Click on the image above to view Alejandro Castillo's Ten Most Wanted Fugitive webpage.

Castillo is accused of killing 23-year-old Truc Quan "Sandy" Ly Le. Her body was found in Cabarrus County, North Carolina, on August 17, 2016. The case initially began as three separate missing person reports for Castillo, Ly Le, and another person. The three had worked together at a Charlotte restaurant. The investigation uncovered evidence Ly Le had lent Castillo money. On August 15, 2016, the victim's vehicle was found in Phoenix, Arizona, parked at a bus station. On August 16, 2016, Castillo was seen on surveillance video crossing the border from Nogales, Arizona, into Mexico.

Castillo, who is now 24 years old, may be living in the Mexican state of Aguascalientes, where he has relatives. FBI agents and Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police Department detectives believe someone, perhaps more than one person, has been helping Castillo evade capture. Castillo speaks English and Spanish.

A state arrest warrant was issued in the District Court of North Carolina for Mecklenburg County on November 2, 2016, charging Castillo with first-degree murder. On February 10, 2017, a federal arrest warrant was issued in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of North Carolina, Charlotte, North Carolina, charging Castillo with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Yousef al-Khattab helped change the way young Muslims were radicalized by spewing extreme Islamist propaganda on a YouTube channel.

Yousef al-Khattab helped found Revolution Muslim, a website that published extreme Islamist propaganda. Al-Khattab, who was born Joseph Cohen and was raised in a Jewish family in New Jersey, faces sentencing Friday after pleading guilty to terrorism charges.

Now al-Khattab, who was born Joseph Leonard Cohen and was brought up in New Jersey and in Brooklyn in a Jewish home, tells NPR he made a big mistake and describes himself as a "failure." He's scheduled to appear in a federal court in Alexandria, Va., on Friday to be sentenced on terrorism charges.

The case is significant because al-Khattab, now in his mid-40s, is one of the founders of a radical Islamist group called Revolution Muslim, which became a gateway for young jihadists in the U.S. looking to join violent Islamist groups overseas.

Mohammed Yusuf (29 January 1970 – 30 July 2009), also known as Ustaz Mohammed Yusuf, was a Nigerian terrorist who founded the Islamist militant group Boko Haram in 2002. He was its leader until he was killed during the 2009 Boko Haram uprising.[1]

Born in Girgi village, in Jakusko, present-day Yobe State, Nigeria, Yusuf received a University education.[2] Later he studied more of Islam and became a Salafi.[3]

Education and beliefs

[edit]

According to scholar Paul Lubeck of the University of California at Santa Cruz, as a young man Yusuf was instructed in Shiasm and associated with Salafism and the teachings of Ibn Taymiyyah.[4] He had the equivalent of a graduate education, according to Nigerian academic Hussain Zakaria. Yusuf was never as proficient in English as was reported. He believed in the strict application of Islamic law, which represented his ideal of justice according to the teachings of the Islamic prophet, Muhammad. Boko Haram hitmen would murder members of other Muslim sects like the Salafist Izala and the Sufi Tidjaniyya and Qadiriya fraternities.[5] In a 2009 BBC interview, Yusuf stated his belief that the concept of a spherical Earth is contrary to Islamic teaching and should be rejected. He also rejected Darwinian evolution, and the concept of the condensation cycle that produces rain.[6] In the interview he said:

> There are prominent Islamic preachers who have seen and understood that the present Western-style education is mixed with issues that run contrary to our beliefs in Islam, he said.
> Like rain. We believe it is a creation of God rather than an evaporation caused by the sun that condenses and becomes rain.
> Like saying the world is a sphere. If it runs contrary to the teachings of Allah, we reject it. We also reject the theory of Darwinism.

The son of one of the founders of Hamas has blasted the terror group's student supporters in the United States, accusing them of participating in Hamas' brutal crimes and declaring they "need to go to a mental asylum."

Mosab Hassan Yousef, the son of Hamas founder Sheikh Hassan Yousef, made the remarks as he appeared on "Dr. Phil Primetime" last week to debate two anti-Israel student activists from the University of Michigan.

"It's very disappointing to see Americans supporting Hamas and thinking that Hamas is a cool thing, while Hamas does not respect any of those followers," Yousef said on the April 2 episode.

Who Was Ted Bundy?

Ted Bundy was a serial killer, rapist, and necrophiliac who admitted to killing 30 women in the 1970s, though some experts believe his actual victim count might be over 100. He was arrested for good in February 1978 and received three separate death sentences for the murders of two Chi Omega sorority members at Florida State University and a 12-year-old girl. Bundy's charming appearance helped him become somewhat of a celebrity during his trial, and his case has since inspired many novels and movies about serial killers. He was executed in January 1989 at age 42.

Description:
The HX-20 was the world's first production laptop computer. Since it was manufactured by Epson, it is not surprising that this machine included a built-in printer, even though that was unusual for a computer of this era, particularly one so small. The machine received much favorable publicity, but did not establish a place for Epson in the global computer market. Over time, Epson concluded that it had little unique ability to bring to this market, and scaled back to producing computers only for specialty markets.

Details About Hunter Biden's Dating Site Scandal

By Precious Gibson • June 2, 2024 11:00 am EST

Hunter Biden has had his fair share of drama. From the paternity suit filed by exotic dancer Lunden Roberts to his admitted history of drug abuse, Hunter has found himself in many controversial situations. However, his dating site scandal may have been among the most surprising.

ADVERTISEMENT

The Ashley Madison data breach of July 2015 exposed the names of millions of people who signed up for the website in hopes of having an extramarital affair. Several famous people were outed in the breach, including Biden. A profile registered to his full name, Robert Hunter Biden, and email address had been a member of Ashley Madison since 2014. The page also stated that he was actively seeking "anything goes," which alluded to him being open to any form of relationship. At the time, Biden was still married to his first wife Kathleen Buhle. While the evidence suggested that he was actively seeking a mistress, Biden maintained that there was a logical explanation for his presence on the platform.

Rafael "Rafa" Caro Quintero (born October 24, 1952) is a Mexican drug lord who co-founded the now-disintegrated Guadalajara Cartel with Miguel Ángel Félix Gallardo and other drug traffickers in the late 1970s. He is the brother of fellow drug trafficker Miguel Caro Quintero, founder and former leader of the defunct Sonora Cartel.

Having formed the Guadalajara Cartel in the 1970s, Caro Quintero worked with Gallardo, Ernesto Fonseca Carrillo, and Pedro Avilés Pérez by shipping large quantities of marijuana to the United States from Mexico. He was responsible for the kidnapping of United States Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) agent Enrique "Kiki" Camarena, Camarena's pilot Alfredo Zavala Avelar, the American writer John Clay Walker, and dentistry student Alberto Radelat in 1985. After the murders, Caro Quintero fled to Costa Rica but later that year was arrested and extradited back to Mexico, where he was sentenced to 40 years in prison for murder.[1] Following his arrest, the Guadalajara Cartel disintegrated, and its leaders were incorporated into the Tijuana Cartel, Sinaloa Cartel, and Juárez Cartel.

After serving 28 years in prison, Caro Quintero was freed from jail in August 2013, after a state court concluded that he had been tried improperly. The day after his release, amid pressure from the United States government to re-arrest him, a Mexican federal court issued an arrest warrant against Caro Quintero. Caro Quintero was wanted for his involvement in drug trafficking as well as the 1985 murders. He was at large as a wanted fugitive in Mexico, the United States, and several other countries. The United States offered a 20-million-dollar reward for information leading to his capture, the highest value among fugitives currently listed on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted Fugitives list.

The world's most powerful internet porn company is owned by a shadowy businessman who barely exists online, a new report says.

Bernard Bergemar is the biggest owner of MindGeek, the Luxembourg-based conglomerate behind popular porn sites such as Pornhub, YouPorn and Brazzers, a Financial Times investigation found.

MindGeek had long kept Bergemar's identity a closely held secret that only a handful of company executives and their advisers knew about, according to the paper. Before Thursday, his name only appeared in three Google search results related to his past role as an executive at RedTube, a porn platform MindGeek now owns.

While he's not mentioned in the company's corporate filings, the Financial Times revealed that Bergemar is MindGeek's largest beneficiary thanks in part to a "complex network of subsidiaries" in which he owns a large chunk of the shares.

OnlyFans' profits have skyrocketed in the past year and news that its owner earned more than $300m (£238m) in dividends has ignited fresh questions about the pornography mogul.

Leonid Radvinsky is a 41-year-old Ukrainian-American entrepreneur with an estimated net worth of $2.1bn.

He bought the company in 2018 from father and son team, Guy and Tim Stokely, who had started it two years earlier with a £10,000 ($12,500) investment.

He's thought to have paid millions of pounds for it. But who is he, and where has his money come from?

What do we know about him?

Among the parts found in the group's possession were kits to assemble six rotary machine guns that could fire 6,000 rounds per minute. Authorities also found six assault rifles, the release says.

Prosecutors said Santillan's son, Marco Santillan Jr., 29, was allegedly seen in a Facebook video holding a stack of $100 bills and bragging about selling guns to the cartel.

In a message on the platform, he allegedly said the cartel is "buying everything."

The Mexican organization's leader, Nemesio Rubén Oseguera Cervantes, known as "El Mencho," has remained elusive to authorities – despite a $10 million reward from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency.

After the 2016 capture of the rival Sinaloa Cartel's leader, officials said the Cártel Jalisco Nueva Generación unleashed a wave of violence against other groups, leaving decapitated bodies hanging from bridges and mutilated torsos in the streets.

The group has continued to traffic tons of methamphetamine and fentanyl to the U.S. each month, authorities have said.

Lawyers for Santillan and the other suspects did not immediately respond to requests for comment Monday.

Jordan Maurice Caine Neely[43] was a 30-year-old black man who grew up in Bayonne, New Jersey.[46] Said to be a talented dancer,[47] throughout his teens and twenties he was a locally known Michael Jackson impersonator.[48][49] He performed in Times Square, on subways, and in subway stations.[46][50][51]

In 2007, when Neely was 14 years old, his mother was murdered by a man with whom she had been in an abusive relationship. Her body was found in a suitcase on the side of the Henry Hudson Parkway. Neely was called to testify at the trial.[52][53] According to his aunt, Neely developed major depression, schizophrenia, and post-traumatic stress disorder after the murder of his mother.[50] He was placed in foster care as a youth.[46]

Neely had an extensive criminal record, including 42 arrests on charges including petty larceny, jumping subway turnstiles, theft, and three unprovoked assaults on women in the subway between 2019 and 2021.[54] He was frequently homeless and had been involuntarily hospitalized for mental issues in the past. According to The Guardian, once Neely became homeless he slipped "into a cycle of mental health crises, arrests and hospitalization that would continue until his death".[55] He had been a client of the Bowery Residents' Committee, which attempted to find him permanent shelter.[48][46] From 2019 until the time of his death, he was included on what was informally known as the "Top 50 List", a city-maintained roster of homeless people considered to be most in need of assistance and treatment, to which they are often resistant.[48]

Neely's funeral was held on May 19 at Mount Neboh Baptist Church in Harlem. At least 200 people were present, while a small group of peaceful protesters gathered

Asenath Barzani[1] (Hebrew: אסנת ברזאני, 1590–1670),[2] was a Kurdish Jewish female rabbinical scholar and poet who lived near Duhok, Kurdistan.[3][4]

Asenath Barzani
Born	1590
Died	1670 Mosul, Mosul Eyalet, Ottoman Empire
Occupation(s)	Rabbinical scholar, poet
Years active	Around 1630-1670
Known for	First recorded female Rabbinical scholar, early historical Kurdish woman

Biography [edit]

Family background [edit]

Asenath was born in 1590 into the Barzani family, a well-known Jewish family in Northern Kurdistan.[3] Her grandfather, Netanel HaLevi, was a rabbi and the leader of the Jewish community in Mosul, and considered to be a holy man in the local Jewish community and its environs. Due to the honor of his teachings, he was addressed as Adoni (Hebrew, lit. 'my lord').[5] His son and Asenath's father, Shemuel Barzani, a rabbi and mystic, was troubled by the status of the Torah among the Jews of Kurdistan and by the lack of spiritual leaders and halakhic decisors. He established several yeshivas in Barzan, Akre, Amedi, and Mosul to cultivate wise students who could serve the public as rabbis, hazzans, and shokhets (kosher slaughterers).[3][6] The education of such students were supported by donations from Jewish philanthropists.[3]

Life [edit]

As Shemuel had no sons, he taught his daughter Torah and Talmud to prepare her as his successor. According to Asenath herself, she did not learn any other craft, trade, or vocation, as she spent all her time learning Torah.[7] She described her upbringing as such:

> I never left the entrance to my house or went outside; I was like a princess of Israel ... I grew up on the laps of scholars, anchored to my father of blessed memory. I was never taught any work but sacred study.[7]

Istanbul (CNN) — Turkey's military carried out airstrikes targeting Kurdish militants in northern Iraq on Sunday, just hours after the Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK) claimed responsibility for a deadly bombing in the capital in the latest attack of its nearly four-decade long insurgency.

In a statement, the Turkish Defense Ministry said its warplanes destroyed 20

1992–2005 [edit]

After the 1992 parliamentary election resulted in the two main parties, the Kurdistan Democratic Party (KDP) and the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan (PUK), each holding 50 out of 100 seats, they decided to create a unity government (which was not recognized by the Ba'athist Iraq, led by Saddam Hussein).[3]

The unity government soon collapsed and in 1994 a civil war broke out, which lasted until 1998. This resulted in the establishment of two Kurdistan Regional Governments in 1996, a KDP-controlled one in Erbil and a PUK-controlled one in Sulaymaniyah, each with their own president.[3] within just a few weeks, then two more necessary inferences could be added to the six facts above...

- 7. Since Isaac was 37 at his mother's death, he was 37 when Rebekah was born.
- 8. Since Isaac was 40 when he married Rebekah, Rebekah would be 3 when the marriage took place (because 40-37=3)

But these last two inferences are spurious, because they are based not on what the scripture says in Genesis 22 and 23, but rather what is said in non-biblical tradition.

and is in consequence regarded as a thirteenfold commandment, which must under all circumstances be observed. Hence the necessity for the twofold instruction.

MISHNA: One may perform everything necessary for circumcision on the Sabbath, as circumcising, tearing open, sucking out the blood, applying a plaster or caraway seed. If the latter had not been ground before the Sabbath, one may masticate it with the teeth and then apply it. If one had not mixed wine with oil before the Sabbath, he may apply each separately. One must not prepare an actual bandage (on the Sabbath), but may apply an old piece of linen; and if such had not been prepared before the Sabbath, the circumciser may bring it with him tied around his finger and even from another court (yard).

*The Hebrew word "Veanvehu" is interpreted by the Talmud to signify "and I will beautify him," while in the translation of the Bible, by I. Leeser, it is translated, "I will sing his praise," and the reference made to the verse by the Talmud accepts the term in its Talmudical sense.

Genesis 25
The Contemporary Torah, JPS, 2006

19 וְאֵלֶּה תּוֹלְדֹת יִצְחָק בֶּן־אַבְרָהָם אַבְרָהָם הוֹלִיד אֶת־יִצְחָק׃

This is the story of Isaac, son of Abraham. Abraham begot Isaac.

20 וַיְהִי יִצְחָק בֶּן־אַרְבָּעִים שָׁנָה בְּקַחְתּוֹ אֶת־רִבְקָה בַּת־בְּתוּאֵל הָאֲרַמִּי מִפַּדַּן אֲרָם אֲחוֹת לָבָן הָאֲרַמִּי לוֹ לְאִשָּׁה׃

Isaac was forty years old when he took to wife Rebekah, daughter of Bethuel the Aramean of Paddan-aram, sister of Laban the Aramean.

21 וַיֶּעְתַּר יִצְחָק לַיהוָה לְנֹכַח אִשְׁתּוֹ כִּי עֲקָרָה הִוא וַיֵּעָתֶר לוֹ יְהוָה וַתַּהַר רִבְקָה אִשְׁתּוֹ׃

Commentary

בן ארבעים שנה FORTY YEARS OLD — For when Abraham came from Mount Moriah he received the news that Rebecca was born (22:20). Isaac was then thirty-seven years old, because at that time Sarah died and from the birth of Isaac until the Binding — when Sarah died — there were 37 years since she was 90 years old when Isaac was born and 127 when she died, as it is said, (23:1) "And the life of Sarah was [one hundred and twenty seven years]" — thus Isaac was then 37 years old. At that period Rebecca was born and he waited until she was fit for marriage — 3 years — and then married her (Seder Olam).

Narcoterrorism in Turkey: The Financing of PKK-KONGRA GEL From Illicit Drug Business (From Understanding and Responding to the Terrorism Phenomenon: A Multi-Dimensional Perspective, P 140-152, 2007, Ozgur Nikbay and Suleyman Hancerli, eds. -- See NCJ-225118)

Annotation
This study examined links between the PKK-KONGRA GEL, a Turkish-Kurdish separatist terrorist organization, and transnational organized illicit drug trafficking organizations.

Abstract
The study concludes that the PKK-KONGRA GEL covertly financed its growing militant and propaganda activities from the illicit drug business in cooperation with several Kurdish organized crime networks. The PKK-KONGRA GEL initially extorted taxes from the heroin traffickers and cannabis cultivators in northwestern Iran, northern Iraq, and southeastern Turkey. After the 1990s, however, intelligence reports showed the PKK-KONGRA GELs direct involvement in drug trafficking, heroin production, street delivery of drugs, money laundering, and the assassination of rival drug network members. This comprehensive involvement in the illicit drug business was facilitated by the wide network of organization from Central Asia to Western Europe. This analysis of the PKK-KONGRA GELs involvement in and dependence on the illicit drug business as a funding source for its terrorist activities was launched in 2003 under the title of the Narcoterrorism Project. The project was promoted by the head of Turkey's

The Kurdish mafia is led by ethnic Kurds from all over Kurdistan, although the majority are from Turkish Kurdistan.[1][note 1] The main source of income for the Kurdish mafia is allegedly drug and arms trafficking, as well as contract killing.[2][3] The Kurdish mafia smuggles weapons and hard drugs all across Europe, and Süleyman Soylu accused them of making over US$1.5 billion per year for the PKK.[4] A British police report revealed that the Tottenham Boys, a Kurdish gang from London, did funnel their profits to the PKK.[5]

Afghanistan was a stronghold of the Kurdish mafia.[6] Kurdish criminals smuggled opiates from Afghanistan into Iranian Kurdistan, Iraqi Kurdistan, and Syrian Kurdistan, which they would later smuggle into Turkish Kurdistan, and then transport it to Western Europe or Russia through the Balkans.[7][8] In 2015, the Kurdish mafia trafficking of Afghan opiates were disrupted by the unrest in Turkish Kurdistan.[9][10] Turkish police cracked down on the Kurdish mafia in the process.[10] The Taliban

Khadija Cohen (née Patman), better known as Yasmeena Ali (Dari: یاسمینه علی), is a British-Afghan pornographic actress. She is perhaps best known for her involvement in a 2020 criminal case, in which her father and his cousin planned to kill her because of her choice of career and they believed she had converted from Islam to Judaism.[1]

Yasmeena Ali
Born	Khadija Patman 1 December 1993 (age 31) Kabul, Afghanistan
Occupation	Pornographic actress
Spouse	David Cohen

Biography [edit]

Ali was born Khadija Patman[2][3] in a Taliban-controlled area of Kabul on 1 December 1993. When she was seven years old, she moved with her family to England. Yasmina and her education was quite successful and was able to attend college and attain a social workers degree.[2] Her parents raised her as Muslim but Yasmin wasn't a fan of religious education due to lack of interest, Yasmina at the age of 19 developed a friendship with a Jewish boy which caused family controversy and issues, she was kicked out of the family home for dating a Jewish boy and as result her family stripped contact from her.[2]

Ali launched her career when she met pornographic director David Cohen, whom she later married.[4] The two previously lived in Austria and moved to Slovakia in 2017.[2] Ali became embroiled in a criminal case in 2020 when her father and his cousin were arrested for plotting to murder her because she had left Islam and had "disgraced the family" with her choice of career.[2][3] The British National Crime

USS Liberty incident

Coordinates: 31.39°N 33.38°E

The USS Liberty incident was an attack on a United States Navy technical research ship (a spy ship), USS Liberty, by Israeli Air Force jet fighter aircraft and Israeli Navy motor torpedo boats, on 8 June 1967, during the Six-Day War.[2] The combined air and sea attack killed 34 crew members (naval officers, seamen, two marines, and one civilian NSA employee), wounded 171 crew members, and severely damaged the ship.[3] At the time, the ship was in international waters north of the Sinai Peninsula, about 25.5 nautical miles (47.2 km; 29.3 mi) northwest from the Egyptian city of Arish.[1][4]

Israel apologized for the attack, saying that USS Liberty had been attacked in error after being mistaken for an Egyptian ship.[5] Both the Israeli and U.S. governments conducted inquiries and issued reports that concluded the attack was a mistake due to Israeli confusion about the ship's identity.[6] Others, including survivors of the attack, have rejected these conclusions and maintain that the attack was deliberate.[7][8] Thomas Hinman Moorer, 7th Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, accused President Lyndon B. Johnson of having covered up that the attack was a deliberate act.[9]

In May 1968, the Israeli government paid US$3.32 million (equivalent to US$29.1 million in 2023) to the U.S. government in compensation for the families of the 34 men killed in the attack. In March 1969, Israel paid a further $3.57 million ($29.6 million in 2023) to the men who had been wounded. In December 1980, it agreed to pay $6 million ($22.2 million in 2023) as the final settlement for material damage to the ship plus 13 years of interest.[10]

The massive mansion standing on the edge of a nature reserve is testament to the millions of dollars to be made from porn, as the company faces claims it was facilitating the exploitation of children and sex trafficking victims.

For this is the house that porn built — the brand-new chateau in Montreal that Pornhub boss Feras Antoon will soon call home.

Syrian-born Antoon, 45, bought two lots of land next to the Bois-de-Saraguay nature park on the northern edge of Montreal for CAN$2.3 million (US$1.8 million) cash four years ago and spent millions more building the home of his dreams ever since.

Gulf Cartel drug lord Juan Garcia Abrego had the distinction of being the first drug smuggler to make the FBI's list. Wanted by authorities since 1986 on money-laundering and drug-possession charges, he was listed in 1995 and nabbed by Mexican authorities the following year. Abrego was tried on 22 counts of money laundering and narcotics trafficking, including masterminding the smuggling of nearly 15 tons of cocaine from Mexico to the U.S. Convicted on all counts, he is currently serving 11 life terms in the U.S.

Historically, Beth Israel Hospital was formed to create greater access to quality medical care for the local Jewish population. It has grown to broaden its care to the entire community, and beyond. But that history is meaningful to me. When you look at the names on our buildings and all the people on our boards who are ambassadors in the community, it's meaningful. Some have been serving BIDMC for generations, and today, are bringing the next generation along. That, to me, is terrific. Boston is blessed with really wonderful institutions, but institutions truly stand out because of the caring people who are involved with them, with BIDMC at the forefront.

Both lauded and criticized by feminists of the era, the media icon convinced Hollywood starlets to reveal more of themselves on his pages than perhaps anywhere else. The interviews were great, too.

Avraham Heffner (Hebrew: אברהם הפנר; 7 May 1935 – 19 September 2014) was an Israeli film and television director, screenwriter, author and Professor Emeritus at the Tel-Aviv University. He was a recipient of the Ophir Award for lifetime achievements.

Biography [edit]

Heffner graduated from the Hebrew Reali School in Haifa and served in the IDF with the Nahal Army Band. After his IDF service, he studied French literature at the Sorbonne, Paris. His love for the cinema began, according to him, at the age of 17. He began his career as an actor (in Uri Zohar's Hor BaLevana).

His first movie as director was Slow Down (1967), an adaptation of a short story by Simone de Beauvoir, which won him the Silver Lion Award at the 1969 Venice Film Festival. In the 1960s and the 1970s he was among the Israeli directors creating more personal and social films (in the "New Sensitivity" genre), films that were influenced from the Avant-garde-European cinema. The most significant example for these type of films is Heffner's first feature, But Where Is Daniel Wax?, which he wrote and directed. But Where Is Daniel Wax?, Heffner's most important and famous film, is considered by film critics and Israeli film researchers to be the best Israeli movie of all time.

Abstract

Struggling to survive in post-World War II Germany, Beate Uhse-Rotermund (1919–2001)—a former Luftwaffe pilot, war widow, and young mother—turned to selling goods on the black market. A self-penned guide to the rhythm method found eager buyers and started Uhse-Rotermund on her path to becoming the world's largest erotica entrepreneur. Battling restrictive legislation, powerful churches, and conservative social mores, she built a mail-order business in the 1950s that sold condoms, sex aids, self-help books, and more. The following decades brought the world's first erotica shop, the legalization of pornography, the expansion of Uhse-Rotermund's business into eastern Germany, and web-based commerce. Uhse-Rotermund was only one of many erotica entrepreneurs who played a role in the social and sexual revolution accompanying Germany's transition from Nazism to liberal democracy. Tracing the activities of entrepreneurs, customers, government officials, and citizen-activists, this book examines the profound social, legal, and cultural changes that attended the growth of the erotica sector. Readings of governmental and industry records, oral histories, and the erotica industry's products uncover the roots of today's sexual marketplace and the ways in which sexual expression and consumption have become intertwined.

Keywords: rhythm method, erotica entrepreneur, church, mail-order business, self-help books, web-based commerce, Nazism, liberal democracy, government records, industry records

The Scofield Bible—The Book That Made Zionists of America's Evangelical Christians

By Maidhc Ó Cathail

"For a nation to commit the sin of anti-Semitism brings inevitable judgement."

—The New Scofield Study Bible

Since it was first published in 1909, the Scofield Reference Bible has made uncompromising Zionists out of tens of millions of Americans. When John Hagee, the founder of Christians United for Israel (CUFI), said that "50 million evangelical bible-believing Christians unite with five million American Jews standing together on behalf of Israel," it was the Scofield Bible that he was talking about.

Although the Scofield Reference Bible contains the text of the King James Authorized Version, it is not the traditional Protestant bible but Cyrus I. Scofield's annotated commentary that is problematic. More than any other factor, it is Scofield's notes that have induced generations of American evangelicals to believe that God demands their uncritical support for the modern State of Israel.

Mexico and the US are working together bring down Mexico's newest, most violent drug cartel. Last month, 303 alleged La Familia members were arrested in 38 US cities. Fifteen members were indicted Friday in Chicago.

Mario Mendoza Reyes was at this church in Apatzingan, Mexico, when 200 federal troops searching for a leader of La Familia swooped in and arrested him and 32 other men. The Mexican Army has been criticized for heavy-handed tactics, and claims of abuse have soared.

According to Stratokru, Solomon's "excuse" for owning such a site while being a rabbi is to "make it a better place," by removing content that includes underage individuals doing heinous acts and pedophilia. He found the only way this would improve is by demanding age verification from users who would want to post on the notorious

The Jewish Family Making Billions From The Opioid Crisis

October 17, 2017 | By Aiden Pink

If you've ever been to a famous art museum or glanced around a prestigious university, you've probably seen a wing or building named after a member of the Sackler family. But many may not know that the family's fortune comes from selling pharmaceuticals—most notably OxyContin, the addictive painkiller at the center of America's opioid epidemic.

A new profile in Esquire chronicles the life and business practices of Arthur, Mortimer and Raymond Sackler, three brothers from a Jewish immigrant family who built a medical empire. Their descendants privately own Purdue Pharma, which was instrumental in using lobbying and advanced marketing techniques to convince doctors of the need to manage patients' pain—and then prescribe OxyContin to manage it.

All the Laws Concerning Betrothal of a Minor • 27 Paragraphs
The father may betroth his daughter without her consent, all the time she is a minor. Likewise when she is a na'arah[47] the father has control over her and the betrothal money belongs to him. Likewise he is entitled to her finds, to the production of her hands, and to her wedding contract.[48] If she be widowed or divorced from the betrothal, he is entitled to everything until she comes of age. Therefore the father accepts the betrothal money, etc. of his daughter from the day she is born until she comes of age. Even if she was a deaf-mute or insane and the father betrothed her, behold she is a fully married woman. If she were three years old and one day she may be betrothed by means of Bi'ah[49] with the consent of her father. If she is younger than this, if her father hands her over for intercourse, she is not betrothed. [Note: There are those who say that there is no binding betrothal with a non-viable infant, [50] if his father accepted for her a betrothal and the one who betrothes her later betrothes her sister, she needs a bill of divorce.] (Or Zarua)

Rav Oshaya raised an objection to the opinion of Rav from the mishna: With regard to an adult man who engaged in intercourse with a minor girl less than three years old, or a minor boy less than nine years old who engaged in intercourse with an adult woman, or a woman who had her hymen ruptured by wood or any other foreign object, the marriage contract for each of these women is two hundred dinars. This is the statement of Rabbi Meir. And the Rabbis say: The marriage contract of a woman whose hymen was ruptured by wood is one hundred dinars. Contrary to Rav's opinion, the Rabbis distinguish between the halakha in the case of the intercourse of a minor boy and the halakha in the case of a woman whose hymen was ruptured by wood.

Rava said that this is what the mishna is saying: An adult man who engaged in intercourse with a minor girl less than three years old has done nothing, as intercourse with a girl less than three years old is tantamount to poking a finger into the eye. In Rav Pappa objects to this opinion: On the contrary, a woman, whose typical manner of intercourse is vaginal, is rendered liable for lying with an animal only in that manner; she is not rendered liable for something else, i.e., for engaging in anal intercourse with an animal. It is taught in a baraita in accordance with neither of their opinions: One who engages in homosexual intercourse with a male aged nine years and one day, or one who engages in intercourse with an animal, whether in a typical manner, or in an atypical manner, i.e., anal intercourse, and similarly, a woman who engages in intercourse with an animal, whether in a typical manner or in an atypical manner, are liable. Evidently, there is no difference between the nature of the transgression of a woman who engages in bestiality and a man who engages in bestiality in this regard.

According to the Commission of Detainees and Ex-Detainees Affairs and the Palestinian Prisoners Club, the batch who were freed included 69 girls and women and 21 children, with 76 from the West Bank and 14 from East Jerusalem.

Over the next 42 days, as part of the first phase of the ceasefire deal, around 1,900 Palestinian prisoners will be freed in exchange for 33 Israeli captives.

Some of those released on Sunday night recounted facing horror stories during their time in captivity.

Accounts from Palestinian prisoners released from Israeli prisons have always depicted stories of being subjected to systematic violence, rape, and torture - often deadly - at the hands of Israeli prison guards.

A whopping 56 Palestinian prisoners have died of torture, starvation, or medical neglect in Israeli jails as prison guards instituted a reign of terror against detainees after the start of Israel's genocidal war on the Gaza Strip in October 2023.

On Sunday afternoon, hours before the latest batch of Palestinian prisoners were reunited with their loved ones in East Jerusalem and the West Bank, the Commission for Detainees and Ex-Detainees Affairs and the Palestinian Prisoners Club announced the death of detainee Mohammed Yassin Khalil Jaber, 22, in an Israeli prison as a result of medical neglect.

Jewish law, Talmud and Racism

It is an urgent topic, but somehow the wikipedia still lacks any serious discussion about this issue. I came across some site that even concludes that this Holy Book ("The Talmud") is the "Mein Kampf" of the "Chosen People".

well, it seems like an extreme accusation, so it is natural to ask, are there any controversial laws in the Talmud or it is much ado about nothing.

So, with your king permission, let me just quote and discuss some issues in halacha, that in my humble opinion are sort of relevant here.

- "A Jew who rapes a gentile 3 year old girl, because he raped her viciously, this girl is put to death, because she "brought" shame on the Jewish people, like a case a Jew coupling with an animal, the animal is to be executed as mentioned elsewhere. (Maimonides, chapter 12 of The Laws of Forbidden Relationships, halacha 8-9).[1]
- "Ones' ox that injured a pregnant maidservant and she miscarried, the owner of the ox is exempt from payment for her offspring, for this is similar to injuring a pregnant she-ass".(Maimonides in chapter 11 of The Laws of Monetary Damage, halacha 4).[2]

(This revered scholar even explains himself very well, here is an exact quotation:

"This is our law! And do not find it difficult, and don't be surprised by it, just as one is not surprised about the slaughter of animals even though they have done no harm, for, one in whom human characteristics are not complete is not truly a man, and his end purpose is only for 'man' (i.e. the Jew)".

Joseph Vissarionovich Stalin[c] (born Ioseb Besarionis dze Jughashvili);[d] (18 December 1878 – 5 March 1953) was a communist revolutionary and politician who led the Soviet Union from 1924 to his death.

In the Soviet Union, Stalin created a totalitarian political system now called Stalinism. He also used Marxism–Leninism and made it the Soviet Union's official political ideology.

After World War II, Stalin gained control over all of Eastern Europe, including part of Germany. There he set up a series of loyal Marxist-Leninist single-party states. This made the Soviet Union a superpower. Stalin's policies turned the Soviet Union into a powerful, relatively modern country that was the largest on Earth.

Stalin was known as a brutal leader who was responsible for the deaths of over 20 million people in what was called the Holodomor.

Known as Los Narcosatánicos, the group killed at least 16 victims and are suspected of possibly 10 more murders during a three-year period ending in 1989.

The Narcosatanists formed when the Hernández family, a Matamoros-based drug dealing clan, met a Cuban living in Mexico named Adolfo Constanzo. Constanzo apparently convinced the family that he could reverse their recent bad luck in the trafficking business through black magic.

Aldrete, a seemingly mild-mannered student who crossed the bridge daily to attend classes at a university in Brownsville, got pulled into the group through her relationship with a drug dealer who was linked to the Hernández family. She quickly became a top leader. The group called Constanzo "El Padrino," the Godfather, while Aldrete was known as "La Padrina"—the Godmother.

A former president of Honduras, Juan Orlando Hernández, has pleaded not guilty to drugs and weapons charges in a court in New York.

Mr Hernández, who governed the Central American nation until January, was extradited to the US on 21 April, less than three months after his second term in office ended.

The ex-leader has denied wrongdoing.

He says he is innocent and argues that disgruntled drug traffickers are trying to frame him.

The glamorous model wife of billionaire Pornhub tycoon Bernd Bergmair has today made an extraordinary public put down of her husband's site, as she urged him to think of the children who could be exposed to explicit videos.

Brazilian fashion blogger Priscila Bergmair said she 'really hopes' her elusive porn baron husband will sever ties with the sex video website that his company owns.

Mr Bergmair, 52, is a majority owner of Montreal-based porn firm MindGeek, the company behind Pornhub.

The world's most powerful internet porn company is owned by a shadowy businessman who barely exists online, a new report says.

Bernard Bergemar is the biggest owner of MindGeek, the Luxembourg-based conglomerate behind popular porn sites such as Pornhub, YouPorn and Brazzers, a Financial Times investigation found.

Its Shiner Bock is a famous dark lager that you can get across the country, named for the town in which it was founded in 1909.

Spoetzl was opened as The Shiner Brewing Association by Czech and German immigrants in Shiner, Texas. They resolved to brew the beers they grew up drinking i their home countries. Family heritage [edit]

Berg's maternal grandfather was John Lincoln Brandt (1860–1946), a Disciples of Christ minister, author, and lecturer of Muskogee, Oklahoma.[2] Brandt had a dramatic conversion in his mid-twenties and immediately entered full-time Christian service. For years he was a Methodist circuit rider. He later became a leader of the Alexander Campbell movement of the Disciples of Christ, a restoration movement that developed into the current Protestant denomination Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).[3]

Early years (1919–1969) [edit]

Berg was born on February 18, 1919, in Oakland, California.[4] During his early years, he u lived in or around Florida.[5]

He was the youngest of three children born to Hjalmar Emmanuel Berg and Virginia Lee Bi Christian evangelists.[6] His father was Swedish.[7]

Virginia and Hjalmar were expelled from the Disciples of Christ after publicly testifying of he healing, which was contrary to church doctrine. They subsequently joined a new denomina Christian and Missionary Alliance, shortly before David's birth. In later years, their missiona and disdain for denominational politicking often set them at variance with the conservative that church's hierarchy, causing them to work largely as independent pastors and evangeli

A survivor of one of the most controversial cults shared her harrowing experiences, highlighting the religious movement's exploitation of children, her advocacy against extremism, and the psychology behind cults

36-year-old Daniella Mestyanek Young detailed the abuse she suffered as a child growing up in the Children of God cult, exposing how the so-called "free love" ideals of the group promoted the sexual abuse of children.

Daniella escaped what has been labeled a "sex cult" at 15 and has since been working as a self-described "scholar of cults, extreme groups, and extremely bad leadership."

In a bombshell exposé with The Sun, published on Sunday (March 10), Daniella, a daughter of high-ranking members who was shuffled between compounds in the US, Mexico, and Brazil, explained that when the cult was in its prime, it brought in hundreds of millions of dollars, adding that her grandfather — a senior leader — "still runs the money."

In 1968, former priest David Berg founded Teens for Christ, which evolved to become the infamous Children of God cult, characterized by allegations of rape, child abuse, and religious prostitution.

The Children Of God: 5 Disturbing Facts About The Pro-Pedophilia Sex Cult

David Brandt Berg, a charismatic preacher, formed The Children of God in 1968. He believed the apocalypse was near and urged believers to survive on basic necessities by giving up their money and personal possessions to the group's leaders. He also infamously taught that God is love and love is sex.

In 1974, a New York attorney general's office report labeled The Children of God a cult, and its members were accused of sexual abuse, assault, incest and other crimes, The Guardian reported.

In one instance, the report stated, "a 14-year-old runaway who spent nine days at a COG commune testified that she was raped and because of her refusal to cooperate with the elders, was held in solitary confinement on no less than three separate occasions."

Despite the accusations, The Children of God continued to flourish for decades. Berg changed the cult's name to The Family of Love following the 1978 Jonestown mass suicide, and, in 2004, the group became known as The Family International.

Ahead are five other facts about the cult that imploded just over 40 years after it

Carlos Enrique Lehder Rivas (born 7 September 1949)[5] is a German Colombian former drug lord who was co-founder of the Medellín Cartel. HOUSTON, Texas (KTRK) -- Two MS-13 gang members convicted of killing a teenage girl in an alleged satanic ritual in 2017 have each been sentenced to 40 years in prison.

Diego Hernandez-Rivera, 22, otherwise known as "Scary," faced a judge on Monday, where he pleaded guilty to the murder of 15-year-old Genesis Cornejo. In exchange to pleading guilty, Hernandez-Rivera received 40 years in prison. He also pleaded guilty to aggravated assault with a deadly weapon in exchange for 12 years in prison.

Hernandez-Rivera's sentences will run concurrently.

In spring 2020, Velasquez Larin, also known as "Agresor," "Saturno," and "Paco," allegedly arranged for Fulton clique members from Maryland to travel to New York to assist in the search for rival gang members in Elmont, according to prosecutors.

Bran, who served as the leader of MS-13's Sailors Locos Salvatrucha clique suspected that Hernandez-Gonzalez had violated MS-13 rules by aiding a rival gang. Based upon this suspicion, Bran created a ruse to lure Hernandez-Gonzalez to the "Pony Pasture" area on the banks of the James River.

MS-13 gang leader sentenced to 21 years in prison

BOSTON (AP) — A leader of the MS-13 gang in Massachusetts has been sentenced to 21 years in prison after pleading guilty to racketeering charges.

Federal prosecutors say German Hernandez Escobar was a leader of MS-13's Everett Loco Salvatrucha clique that sold marijuana to finance its criminal operations.

The 30-year-old, who prosecutors say was nicknamed "Terible," was sentenced Monday in Boston federal court. He reached a plea deal with prosecutors just as he was to stand trial in March.

Hernandez Escobar was among 61 people indicted in a 2016 raid targeting MS-13 in Massachusetts. The operation remains the largest takedown of MS-13 in U.S. history.

History of Ladino

In the 1492 diaspora, when the Jews were expelled from Spain, they took with them Spanish of the late 15th century and expanded the lexicon with language influences from the Mediterranean, primarily where they settled.

Foreign words that mixed with Old Spanish derive mainly from Hebrew, Arabic, Turkish, Greek, French, and to a lesser extent from Portuguese and Italian.

The Ladino community population took a large hit when the Nazis destroyed most of the communities in Europe where Ladino had been the first language among Jews.

Very few of the people who speak Ladino are monolingual. Ladino language advocates fear that it could die out as speakers more often use the languages of the cultures around them.

It is estimated that about 200,000 people can understand or speak Ladino. Israel has one of the largest Ladino-speaking communities, with many words borrowed from Yiddish. Traditionally, Ladino was written in the Hebrew alphabet, writing and reading right to left. In the 20th

Muslims account for 85 percent of casualties in al Qaeda attacks

BY ALEXANDER MAYER | December 9th, 2009 |

The Combating Terrorism Center at West Point recently released a stunning report which found that Muslims have accounted for 85 percent of the casualties from al Qaeda attacks between 2004-2008. Even more astounding, during the last two years of the study (2006-2008), the percentage of al Qaeda's Muslim victims skyrocketed to an almost-unbelievable 98 percent.

Al Qaeda's affiliate in Syria claims another suicide attack

BY BILL ROGGIO | December 13th, 2012 | @billroggio

The Al Nusrah Front for the People of the Levant, al Qaeda in Iraq's affiliate in Syria, claimed credit for yesterday's complex attack against the Syrian Interior Ministry in Damascus. Five people were killed in the bombings.

The Al Nusrah Front said two of its suicide bombers "parked their two vehicles in front of the building, and then stormed and clashed with those inside and killed a lot of them," according to the SITE Intelligence Group, which obtained the statements from the Al Nusrah that were published on Twitter (the jihadist forums were not accessible). After the suicide bombers launched their attack, the two car bombs "were blown up remotely."

Five people were reported to have been killed in the blasts, and the force of the explosions collapsed several walls of the building.

The terror group, which was designated as such by the US on Dec. 11, has now claimed credit for 43 of the 52 suicide attacks that have taken place in Syria in the past 12 months [see LWJ report, US adds Al Nusrah Front, 2 leaders to terrorism list, for information on the designation].

The group has become one of the most powerful and

- The 2003 Riyadh compound bombings occurred on 12 May 2003, in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. Al-Qaeda gunmen stormed building complexes inhabited by Western expatriates, killing 39 people and wounding over 160.[20]
- The 2003 Casablanca bombings occurred on May 16, 2003, in Casablanca, Morocco. 45 people were killed as a result of these attacks (12 suicide-bombers and 33 victims).
- The 2003 Marriott Hotel bombing occurred on August 5, 2003, in Jakarta, Indonesia. A suicide bomber detonated a car bomb outside the lobby of the newly opened JW Marriott luxury hotel, killing twelve people and injuring 150. Those killed were mostly Indonesian, with the exception of one Dutch.
- The 2003 Istanbul bombings were four truck bomb attacks carried out on November 15, 2003, and November 20, 2003, in Istanbul, Turkey, leaving 57 people dead, and 700 wounded. The attacks targeted two synagogues, a British consulate, and a British bank in Istanbul.

- Four Al-Qaeda gunmen carried out the 2004 Khobar attacks on May 29, 2004.[21]

2005 [edit]

- The November 2005 Amman bombings were suicide attacks on 3 hotels in Jordan during a Palestinian wedding. 57 people were killed and another 115 were injured.

2007 [edit]

- Al-Qaeda in the Islamic Maghreb (AQIM) launched two car bomb attacks on 11 April 2007, which targeted the government palace and a police station located in Algiers.
- Al-Qaeda is believed to have been responsible for the failed assassination attempt on former Pakistani prime minister Benazir Bhutto on 7 October 2007.[22]
- al-Qaeda in the Islamic Maghreb launched two car bomb attacks on 11 December 2007, which targeted Algerian Constitutional court and a UN office in Algiers.

- Al-Qaeda claimed responsibility for the bombing of the Danish embassy in Pakistan on June 2, 2008.[23] Mustafa Abu al-Yazid, a high-ranking member of Al-Qaeda, issued a statement after the bombing, claiming that the attack was a response to the 2005 publication of the Muhammed Cartoons.[24]
- The Battle of Wanat occurred on July 13, 2008, when forces including Al-Qaeda and Taliban guerrillas attacked NATO troops near the village of Wanat in the Waygal district in Afghanistan's far eastern province of Nuristan. The Battle of Wanat has been described as the "Black Hawk Down" of the War in Afghanistan, as one of the bloodiest attacks of the war and one of several attacks on remote outposts.[8] In contrast to previous roadside bombs and haphazard attacks and ambushes, this attack was well coordinated with fighters from many insurgent and terrorist groups with an effort that was disciplined and sustained which was able to target key assets such as the TOW launcher with precision.

- Shortly after the arrest of Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab in the December 25, 2009, following an attempted bombing on Northwest Airlines Flight 253, the suspect reportedly told officials he had traveled to Yemen for training by Al-Qaeda, although British counterterrorism officials dismissed the claims.[25] President Barack Obama's top security official Janet Napolitano on December 27 stated "Right now we have no indication it's part of anything larger", warning it would be "inappropriate to speculate" that Al-Qaeda had sent Abdulmutallab on a suicide mission. OUR HISTORY

A RICH HISTORY OF MAKING HISTORY.

Swisher traces its roots back to 1861 when David Swisher, a merchant out of Newark, Ohio, received a small cigar business in settlement of a debt. David and his four sons began to sell cigars across the Midwest from their "rolling stores" or wagons. The cigars were rolled by hand every day in a one-room "manufactury" in Newark. In 1888, David's sons, John and Harry, bought the company from their father and renamed it Swisher Brothers. The company experienced great growth, and by 1895 the business had grown into three factories that employed over 1,000 people who hand-rolled as many as 300,000 cigars per day.

U.S. Convicts its First-Ever Organ Trafficker

A Brooklyn man who pleaded guilty on Thursday to selling organs on the black market had a huge profit margin as he bought kidneys from Israelis for $10,000 and sold them to Americans for $120,000 or more. It's a strong business model but the kink in his plan was that one of his clients was an FBI agent, Bloomberg reported. With his guilty plea, 60-year-old Levy Izhak Rosenbaum became the first person ever convicted of organ trafficking in the United States, which outlawed selling human organs in 1984. In spite of it being illegal, Rosenbaum's practice does sound like it was successful, Bloomberg reports.

Israel has admitted that in the 1990s, its forensic pathologists harvested organs from dead bodies, including Palestinians, without permission of their families.

The issue emerged with publication of an interview with the then-head of Israel's Abu Kabir forensic institute, Dr. Jehuda Hiss. The interview was conducted in 2000 by an American academic, who released it because of a huge controversy last summer over an allegation by a Swedish newspaper that Israel was killing Palestinians in order to harvest their organs. Israel hotly denied the charge.

Parts of the interview were broadcast on Israel's Channel 2 TV over the weekend. In it, Hiss said, "We started to harvest corneas ... Whatever was done was highly informal. No permission was asked from the family."

The Channel 2 report said that in the 1990s, forensic specialists at Abu Kabir harvested skin, corneas, heart valves and bones from the bodies of Palestinians and foreign workers, often without permission from relatives.

Concerns about 'organ theft' by Israel's forces from dead Palestinians were raised by Euro-Med Human Rights Monitor.

Israel's army has been accused of stealing organs from the dead in Gaza by an NGO, which called for an independent international investigation.

Euro-Med Human Rights Monitor said on Sunday it had "concerns" about possible organ theft from Palestinian corpses, following reports by medical professionals in Gaza who examined some bodies after they were released by Israel.

The NGO claimed it has documented Israeli forces confiscating dozens of dead bodies from the al-Shifa and Indonesian hospitals in northern Gaza, alongside others in the south.

Medical professionals reportedly found vital organs, such as livers, kidneys and hearts, alongside cochleas and corneas, were missing, which the Euro-Med Monitor called "evidence" of potential organ theft.

They also claimed Israel exhumed and confiscated corpses from a mass grave that was dug more than 10 days ago in a courtyard at al-Shifa.

David Barksdale (born Donise David Barksdale; May 24, 1947 – September 2, 1974), also known as King David, was an American gangster and activist from Chicago, Illinois. He was the founder of the Black Disciples. He and Larry Hoover (leader of the Gangster Disciples) decided to merge and create the Black Gangster Disciple Nation. Barksdale was seen as a hero in the black community because he operated a free breakfast program in Englewood to poor children, and he and the Disciples marched with Martin Luther King Jr. in Marquette Park. He was a close friend of Fred Hampton. Barksdale died on September 2, 1974, due to kidney failure, at the age of 27.

Biography [edit]

Born Donise David Barksdale in Sallis, Mississippi to parents Virginia and Charlie Barksdale, he was the tenth of thirteen children. His family moved to Chicago, Illinois in 1957.

Within three years of arriving, Barksdale had become a notorious gang leader. By 1966, his gang absorbed several others and became known as the Black Disciple Nation. Tensions grew between the Black Disciples and other gangs such as the Black Stone Rangers. In the late 1960s, King David, as he had become known, started to lead the Black Disciples into activism, serving breakfast to school children and marching with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in Marquette park during the Chicago Freedom Movement. He

The Gangster Disciple Nation (often abbreviated as the GD's; formally, GDN), also known as Growth & Development, is an African American street and prison gang founded by former rivals David Barksdale and Larry Hoover; in 1968, the two came together to form the Black Gangster Disciple Nation (BGDN).

Post-1989, following growing tension between the two over declining leadership, the BGDN split into two new factions—Hoover's Gangster Disciple Nation (GDN) and Barksdale's Black Disciple Nation (BDN), respectively. As of 2022, following Hoover's departure, the GDN has no full-time leadership role.[10]

History [edit]

The origins of the Gangster Disciples began in Englewood (in Chicago, Illinois's South Side) in 1964, when then 13-year-old Larry "The King" Hoover joined a small street gang called the "Supreme Gangsters". For years, the Supreme Gangsters had an outstanding war with the Black Disciples Nation, led by David Barksdale.[11] In 1969, Hoover and Barksdale agreed to a ceasefire. This resulted in the creation of the Black Gangster Disciple Nation.[12][13] By the early 1970s, the BGDN dominated the Chicago gang scene. Barksdale died of kidney failure in 1974, at the age of 27.[14] Following his death, Hoover assumed full control of the Black Gangster Disciples.

Folks Nation [edit]

In 1978, the BGDN began to splinter into three distinct factions: Black Gangsters, Black Disciples and Gangster Disciples; however, Hoover (at the time incarcerated on murder charges) prevented it by quickly setting up an alliance of all street and prison gangs in his interest into one family.[15][16]

The alliance consisted of Gangster Disciples, Black Disciples, Satan Disciples, Latin Disciples, Spanish Gangster Disciples, Ambrose, Two-Two Boys, Two-Sixers/Two-Six Boys, Simon City Royals, North Side Insane Popes, La Raza, Spanish Cobras, Imperial Gangsters, Harrison Gents, and the Latin Eagles.

Expansions [edit]

Tel Aviv – It's a tense stakeout, waiting for Jimmy Julius Karow to appear. He is a wanted man and is considered dangerous. Accused of sexually assaulting a 9-year-old girl in Oregon in 2000, he fled to Israel before authorities in the U.S. could apprehend him or figure out where he went. Karow has been running from U.S. law enforcement ever since. Currently INTERPOL, an inter-governmental policing organization that works with 194 countries, has a Red Notice to alert police worldwide that he's a fugitive.

Mohammed Yusuf (29 January 1970 – 30 July 2009), also known as Ustaz Mohammed Yusuf, was a Nigerian terrorist who founded the Islamist militant group Boko Haram in 2002. He was its leader until he was killed during the 2009 Boko Haram uprising.[1]

Born in Girgi village, in Jakusko, present-day Yobe State, Nigeria, Yusuf received a University education.[2] Later he studied more of Islam and became a Salafi.[3]

According to scholar Paul Lubeck of the University of California at Santa Cruz, as a young man Yusuf was instructed in Shiasm and associated with Salafism and the teachings of Ibn Taymiyyah.[4] He had the equivalent of a graduate education, according to Nigerian academic Hussain Zakaria. Yusuf was never as proficient in English as was reported. He believed in the strict application of Islamic law, which represented his ideal of justice according to the teachings of the Islamic prophet, Muhammad. Boko Haram hitmen would murder members of other Muslim sects like the Salafist Izala and the Sufi Tidjaniyya and Qadiriya fraternities.[5] In a 2009 BBC interview, Yusuf stated his belief that the concept of a spherical Earth is contrary to Islamic teaching and should be rejected. He also rejected Darwinian evolution, and the concept of the condensation cycle that produces rain.[6] In the interview he said:

> There are prominent Islamic preachers who have seen and understood that the present Western-style education is mixed with issues that run contrary to our beliefs in Islam, he said.
> Like rain. We believe it is a creation of God rather than an evaporation caused by the sun that condenses and becomes rain.

The son of one of the founders of Hamas has blasted the terror group's student supporters in the United States, accusing them of participating in Hamas' brutal crimes and declaring they "need to go to a mental asylum."

Mosab Hassan Yousef, the son of Hamas founder Sheikh Hassan Yousef, made the remarks as he appeared on "Dr. Phil Primetime" last week to debate two anti-Israel student activists from the University of Michigan.

"It's very disappointing to see Americans supporting Hamas and thinking that Hamas is a cool thing, while Hamas does not respect any of those followers," Yousef said on the April 2 episode.

Yousef al-Khattab helped change the way young Muslims were radicalized by spewing extreme Islamist propaganda on a YouTube channel.

Now al-Khattab, who was born Joseph Leonard Cohen and was brought up in New Jersey and in Brooklyn in a Jewish home, tells NPR he made a big mistake and describes himself as a "failure." He's scheduled to appear in a federal court in Alexandria, Va., on Friday to be sentenced on terrorism charges.

The case is significant because al-Khattab, now in his mid-40s, is one of the founders of a radical Islamist group called Revolution Muslim, which became a gateway for young jihadists in the U.S. looking to join violent Islamist groups overseas.

Yousef al-Khattab helped found Revolution Muslim, a website that published extreme Islamist propaganda. Al-Khattab, who was born Joseph Cohen and was raised in a Jewish family in New Jersey, faces sentencing Friday after pleading guilty to terrorism charges.

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

LaVeyan Satanism is the name given to the form of Satanism promoted by American occultist and author Anton LaVey (1930–1997). LaVey founded the Church of Satan (CoS) in 1966 in San Francisco. Although LaVey is thought to have had more influence with his Satanic aesthetics of "colourful" rites and "scandalous" clothes that created a "gigantic media circus",[1] he also promoted his ideas in writings, such as the popular Satanic Bible. LaVeyan Satanism has been classified as a new religious movement and a form of Western esotericism by scholars of religion. LaVey's ideas have been said to weave together an array of sometimes "contradictory"[2] "thinkers and tropes",[2] combining "humanism, hedonism, aspects of pop psychology and the human potential movement", along with "a lot of showmanship",[3] His ideas were heavily influenced by the ideas and writings of Friedrich Nietzsche, Ayn Rand and Arthur Desmond.

SALEM, Massachusetts — Just in time for Halloween, a controversial Satanic temple has set up its international headquarters in Massachusetts' beloved Salem.

Located one-mile from historic sites tied to Salem's 1692 witchcraft hysteria, the building — a former funeral home — was inaugurated last month by activist Malcolm Jarry, a self-described "secular Jew" who co-founded The Satanic Temple (TST) in 2013. Jarry is a pseudonym, and he refuses to be photographed.

The temple houses an art gallery in honor of Baphomet, a "sabbatic goat" representing the universe. Behind the two-story building, an eight-foot tall statue of Baphomet sits in a plain shed, where visitors can pay to view it.

With up to 50,000 members in chapters around the world, TST has garnered colossal media attention in the last three years. Chief among Jarry's causes are marriage equality and women's reproductive freedom. Any issue related to the government using religion to restrict individual freedom is also likely to engage temple leaders, some of whom staged a 2014 "Black Mass" at Harvard University to push the envelope on religious freedom.

Outside of New England, TST has taken legal action against the placement of edifices of the Ten Commandments in civic settings, including statehouses. To illustrate how such displays violate religious freedom, the temple has insisted it be allowed to erect goat-headed Baphomet statues in the same locations. TST is also planning to take on some schools' use of isolation, denial of bathroom access, and corporal punishment of children.

One of the scariest and most disturbing things about the Church of Satan was its possible connection to the Manson Family. The Manson Family was a cult formed by Charles Manson and they were responsible for numerous infamous murders, including those of pregnant actress Sharon Tate and Leno and Rosemary LaBianca. Even though Anton LaVey denied any connection to the cult, the fact is that one of the people convicted of those murders, Susan Atkins, was a member of COS and a regular guest at LaVey's parties. Charles Manson himself was seen multiple times in a house where many of the COS members were living while they had nowhere else to go. The murder of Sharon Tate has been described as a ritual murder and people still believe that all of that is just too big of a coincidence for there to be no connection between the two cults.

The Black House was a building that formerly stood at 6114 California Street in San Francisco, California, in the United States.[1] The house was used by Anton LaVey as the headquarters of his Church of Satan, from 1966 until his death in 1997.[1][2] It was a few blocks from the edge of the Presidio of San Francisco near the middle of the Richmond District.[2]

History [edit]

LaVey conducted Satanic seminars and rituals at the house; one of the most notorious such rituals was the Satanic baptism of his daughter Zeena Schreck in 1967, punctuated by LaVey speaking the words "Hail Zeena! Hail Satan!"[3][4] over the nude body of a female acting as the 'Satanic Altar'.

Many of the rituals that LaVey used to perform in the Black House have been captured on camera and some of them look pretty creepy. Many of the rituals involved naked women laying on the altars, human skulls, medieval swords and other weapons, and the COS members wearing scary animal masks. They were performed in a room with the walls painted black and there was usually one huge Sigil of Baphomet painted on the wall. The rituals have always been performed by a High Priest or Priestess, usually by Anton LaVey himself and often with the assistance of his girlfriend and High

Kimberly Ann Bergalis (January 19, 1968 – December 8, 1991) was an American woman who was one of six patients purportedly infected with HIV by dentist David J. Acer, who was infected with HIV and died of AIDS on September 3, 1990.[1]

Cause of death	AIDS-related complications
Resting place	Saints Peter and Paul RC Lithuanian Cemetery

Background [edit]

The eldest of three daughters, Bergalis was born in Tamaqua, Pennsylvania, in 1968, where her family lived until moving to Florida in 1978. In 1985, she enrolled at the University of Florida and majored in business. A devout Catholic, Bergalis always maintained that she was a virgin and that she never used I. V. drugs.

In December 1987, dentist Dr. David Acer removed two of Bergalis's molars. Acer was HIV-positive at the time, having been diagnosed that fall. In March 1989, Bergalis began to display symptoms of AIDS and was diagnosed with the disease in January 1990.[2] The initial report from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) [3] stated that she had likely acquired her infection from her dentist, which prompted Acer to write an open letter requesting that his patients be tested for HIV infection. The Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services tested over 1,000 patients, discovering two additional HIV-positive patients.[4] The CDC would eventually identify a total of ten HIV-positive patients and subsequently retraced six of the infections to Acer.[5]

David J. Acer (November 11, 1949 – September 3, 1990) was an American dentist who allegedly infected six of his patients, including Kimberly Bergalis, with HIV.[1] The Acer case is considered the first documented HIV transmission from a healthcare worker to a patient in the United States,[2] though the means of transmission remain unknown.[3] The high-profile case led to public controversy regarding HIV testing and disclosure for healthcare workers.[4]

After graduation, Acer enrolled at Ohio State University, then enrolled in the university's dental school in 1970. Students and professors regarded Acer as a shy but solid individual who rarely missed a class and seldom partook in party antics on campus. He graduated from dental school in March 1974 and was licensed to practice in Ohio for four years, until 1977. Acer then joined the U.S. Air Force, where he held the rank of captain and practiced dentistry while stationed in Germany.[6]

DEATH GUARD

By Rachel Ginsberg | DECEMBER 3, 2024

The details of Israel's only execution were nearly buried together with the man who pulled the lever

In the wee hours of the morning, the ashes were removed from the oven and transported by police van to the port. Yaakov Bergal, who had a little restaurant on the beach and owned a small boat, was charged with carrying the ashes beyond Israel's territorial waters, so as not to defile the Holy Land. He didn't know what was inside the container until he returned to shore.

For an entire year, Nagar suffered panic attacks. "I was in the Paratroopers, the Border Police, I'd seen everything and was even wounded in the arm," he said. "I was never afraid, but somehow this was different."

The Prison Service sent him on a two-week vacation and then back to school to complete his high school equivalency exams. In the evenings he worked as the prison switchboard operator, but to get to his office he had to walk past Eichmann's cell.

"I had two guards escort me every day," he related. "Then the chevreh started to tease me. Here I was, a paratrooper and a bomb sapper, and I was afraid of a dead man without a weapon. It was embarrassing, so the next evening I decided to go myself. I sang an old Yemenite tune to drown out the fear, but as I passed his cell, I saw my shadow in the glass door. I thought his ghost was coming to get me, and I fell down the stairs."

Shalom Nagar worked for the Prison Service for the next 26 years. After the 1967 Six-Day War, Nagar was transferred to the Military Compound in Chevron where he served as security officer and then prison administrator. It was during those years that Rabbi Moshe Levinger led a group of families back to Chevron, first to camp out for three years in the Military Compound and then, with government permission, to build a community in outlying Kiryat Arba. Nagar developed close ties with the religious, emunah-driven Chevron settlers and subsequently bought a plot of land in Kiryat Arba's Givat Mamreh section, where he and his wife lived for several years. They moved back to Holon in 1994, where Ora Nagar could be close to her 95-year-old mother (she passed away a decade later at age 105).

In early 1986, just two months before Nagar retired from the Service, John Demjanjuk — accused of being Treblinka death camp's Ivan the Terrible — was extradited from the US and incarcerated at Ramle Prison, where at the time Nagar was again stationed as a senior officer.

Baby Dies of Herpes in Ritual Circumcision By Orthodox Jews

Two infants have died in the last decade among ultra-Orthodox Jews in NYC.

March 12, 2012— -- New York City is investigating the death last September of a baby who contracted herpes after a "ritual circumcision with oral suction," in an ultra-Orthodox Jewish ceremony known in Hebrew as metzitzah b'peh.

In a practice that takes place during a ceremony known as the bris, a circumcision practitioner, or mohel, removes the foreskin from the baby's penis, and with his mouth sucks the blood from the incision to cleanse the wound.

The district attorney's office in Kings County Brooklyn is investigating the death of the 2-week-old baby at Maimonides Hospital, but would not disclose the name of the mohel or whether there would be a prosecution.

Color Climax Corporation ApS (CCC) is a defunct Danish pornography producer headquartered in Copenhagen. It was founded in 1967[3] by the Theander brothers[4] and began with the publication of the porn magazine ColorClimax, despite pornography being illegal in Denmark until 1969.[5] It was one of the leading producers of European pornography up until the 1990s. Since then, CCC has sold most of its assets to the Sansyl Group in the Netherlands. As of 2024, the website of CCC has been taken down over concerns related to its history of involvement in child pornography.

Founder	Peter Theander[1] Jens Theander[2]

Films [edit]

In 1969, Denmark legalized the production of all kinds of pornography.[6] In the 1970s, CCC began to produce 8 mm pornographic film loops. By the 1980s, video tape had replaced the film loops, sometimes as compilations of previously released material. CCC films usually had a wider range of contents including bestiality,[7] some of which last starred Bodil Joensen, and other content not widely available at the time. Urolagnia was also displayed. By 2004, Color Climax had past film stars such as Rocco Siffredi and John Holmes in their archives on their website and Raymond Bacharach also known as John Thompson was part of the backstage crew.

Child pornography [edit]

Color Climax was the first to produce commercial child pornography films.[6] From 1969 to 1979, Color Climax was responsible for the relatively large-scale distribution of child pornography.[8][9] Danish laws on pornography had been totally repealed since 1969, only punishing with modest fines those making obscene material with children.[9][10]

Between 1971 and 1979, the company produced 10-minute films for its Lolita series.[6][10][11] These films featured young girls, mainly with men, but sometimes with women or other children.[6][10][11] The girls were mainly between the ages of 7 and 11 years; however, some were younger.[6][10][11] These movies had titles such as Incest Family, Child Love and Pre-Teen Sex.[6][10]

Scranton Man Sentenced to 180 Months in Federal Prison for Producing Child Pornography

U.S. Attorney's Office

Middle District of Pennsylvania
(717) 221-4482

The United States Attorney's Office for the Middle District of Pennsylvania announced today that Nicholas Pinto, age 30, was sentenced today by Senior United States District Court Judge Edwin M. Kosik to a 180-month term of imprisonment for production of child pornography. Judge Kosik further ordered that Pinto serve a lifetime of supervised release following his release from prison and pay a $1,000 fine.

According to United States Attorney Peter J. Smith, Pinto was indicted on September 2, 2008, following a joint investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Scranton Police Department into the production of child pornography. During the course of the investigation, Pinto was identified by several minor victims who reported that Pinto had video taped them on separate occasions engaging in sexually explicit conduct that depicted images of bondage.

A forensic examination was conducted on two digital cameras and a video camera that were seized from Pinto. The examination revealed over 180 sadomasochistic videos involving minor victims, some as young as 4 years old.

This case is part of the Project Safe Childhood initiative. In February 2006, the Department of Justice created Project Safe Childhood, a nationwide initiative designed to protect children from online exploitation and abuse. Led by the United States Attorneys Offices, Project Safe Childhood marshals federal, state and local resources to better locate, apprehend, and prosecute individuals who exploit children via the Internet, as well as identify and rescue victims. For more information about Project Safe Childhood, please visit www.projectsafechildhood.gov/.

Assistant United States Attorney Michelle Olshefski prosecuted the case.

According to Law and Crime News and WBTV, a victim accused Daniel of sexually assaulting her multiple times between 2015 and 2019. She also said that Daniel photographed her naked and forced her to take showers with him. Daniel is also being investigated for statutory rape in Forsyth County. That victim's mother says Daniel was sexually active with her minor daughter in the summer of 2022.

Deadly Narcosatanist Cult Performed Human Sacrifices For Drug Cartels

Adolfo Constanzo led the Narco-Satanist Palo Mayombe cult in the gruesome torture and murder of college student Mark James Kilroy.

By Benjamin H. Smith | Apr 22, 2020, 3:42 PM ET

They were dubbed "Los Narcosatánicos" by Mexican newspaper El Universal, which, translated into English, means The Narco-Satanists. Others referred to them as "The Matamoros Cult," for the border town where their compound was located, or simply "Palo Mayombe," the name of the Afro-Cuban religion they warped to their own bloody ends.

Shepherded by charismatic cult leader Adolfo Constanzo and his "witch," Sara Aldrete, they are responsible for 15 murders, maybe more. Their victims were tortured then ritualistically slain. Human sacrifices, they believed, bestowed supernatural powers upon them and their associates

The "Narco-Satanist" Serafín Hernández speaks out 25 years after the Matamoros case.

Serafín Hernández García was about to turn 21 in 1989 when he was arrested, he says, at the home of his uncle Elio Hernández Rivera, although the police version contradicts this since they were detained when they passed a checkpoint near the Santa Elena ranch, which was the temple of sacrifices of the gang known as the Narcosatánicos.

It was the year 1999, ten years had passed since the events at the Santa Elena ranch in Matamoros, Tamaulipas, where the bodies of 15 people were found murdered and dismembered in satanic rites and two involved sentenced to 67 years in prison in the first instance, Serafín Hernández García and Sergio Martínez Salinas, agreed to be interviewed by Hora Cero at the Social Readaptation Center (Cereso) in Ciudad Victoria where they were transferred in 1993.

On April 9, 1989, agents of the State Judicial Police and the Federal Judicial Police, with the support of Mexican preventive agents and investigators from the United States, arrested four people (later more were involved), including those interviewed, for the kidnapping of 21-year-old American citizen Mark Kilroy. However, the investigation led to a gang of people who performed satanic rites, killing and dismembering their victims.

The leaders were Cuban Adolfo de Jesús Constanzo, based in Miami, Florida, and Sara Aldrete Villarreal, originally from Matamoros, currently in prison, known as "The

In 789 BC, the Latin exile Brutus arrived in Pandrasus' territory and staged a slave revolt of 400 Trojan slaves. While the freed slaves fought Pandrasus' men, Brutus took the king hostage and demanded that he and the slaves be given ships and supplies to escape the region. Pandrasus, capitulating to Brutus' demands, gave one of his daughters, Innogen as a wife, as a sign of good faith.

After his daughter was wed with Brutus, the Latin exile left the Greek territory with Innogen and the freed Trojans.

The author discusses the origins of the Hamites and Shemites (or Semites). He states that the original Israelites were of the Black race and that the biblical Abraham (or Abram) was a Black Shemite (a descendant of Shem). Abraham was the father of both the Hebrew-Israelite and Arab nations. The Black Shemites intermarried with Black Hamite Egyptian women, giving rise to the Arab nation. The author also states that Arabia was originally inhabited by the Ethiopians (also known as Cushites) prior to the progenitors of the Arabs. Many of today's Arabs are not Black due to the introduction of white slavery.

The story of King Solomon of Jerusalem and the Queen of Sheba (known as Makeda by the Ethiopians) points to the origins of the present black Jews of Ethiopia, known as the Falashas. The Falashas claim descent from the child of King Solomon and the

This article is more than 10 years old.

This past week, I spoke at IPExpo Europe in London, and I was honored to have Sir Tim Berners-Lee, the father of the World Wide Web as a fellow speaker. He reflected on the 25 years that have passed since he helped create the Internet. He raised a number of interesting topics during the course of his presentation.

First, he indicated that he does not regret baking greater security into the initial version of the web saying, "It might not have taken off if it had been too difficult." Like the Internet entrepreneurs who would leverage the platform he helped create, he was concerned that the web have an audience first before evaluating changes that would be necessary.

He did go on to say that it is essential that the Internet allow for greater user privacy. "The idea that privacy is dead is hopelessly sad," Berners-Lee said. "We have to build systems that allow for privacy. People have

DJ Khaled

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Not to be confused with American producer DJ Khalil, Algerian musician Khaled (musician) or American R&B singer Khalid (American singer).

Khaled Mohammed Khaled (/ˈkælɪd/; born November 26, 1975),[3] known professionally as DJ Khaled, is an American DJ and record producer. Originally a Miami-based radio personality, Khaled has since become known for enlisting high-profile music industry artists to perform on singles and albums, for which he often serves as producer and hype man. Known as the "Anthem King", his distinctions are his booming voice presence, "motivational" abstractions, maximalist production style and numerous catchphrases.[4]

Khaled was born in New Orleans, Louisiana, to Palestinian immigrant parents. He first gained recognition as a radio host in the 1990s for the radio station 99 Jamz, and translated his popularity by working with Fat Joe's hip hop collective, Terror Squad, as a DJ for their live performances and as a producer for the group. Following his production credits on the group's material,[5] Khaled enlisted several hip hop artists associated with the group and his native Miami to perform on his debut studio album, Listennn... the Album (2006). His second album, We the Best (2007), spawned the hit single "I'm So Hood" (featuring T-Pain, Trick Daddy, Rick Ross and Plies). His two subsequent releases—We Global (2008) and Victory (2010)—both peaked within the top ten of the Billboard 200; the latter was supported by the single "All I Do Is Win" (featuring T-Pain, Ludacris, Snoop Dogg and Rick Ross), which received triple platinum certification by the Recording Industry Association of America (RIAA).

The Company finally left the founding family's control in 1894, when it was taken over by William Curtis Thomson and his family. Under Thomson, the Company was appointed tobacconist to King Edward VII and, in 1902, was incorporated in New York, by Gustav Eckmeyer. Ownership was split 50-50 between the British parent and American partners. Eckmeyer had been sole agent for Philip Morris in the U.S. since 1872, importing and selling English-made cigarettes.

1919 was a crucial year for the Company. It saw the introduction of the Philip Morris coronet logo, the acquisition of the Philip Morris Company in the U.S. by a new firm owned by American stockholders, and its incorporation in Virginia under the name of Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., Inc. By the end of the next decade, the Company had begun to manufacture cigarettes in its factory in Richmond, Virginia; in 1924, what was to become its most famous brand, Marlboro, was introduced.

Philip Morris was born in Whitechapel in 1835, the son of a recent immigrant from Germany who had taken the name Bernard Morris. In 1847, the family opened a shop in London. The first cigarettes that Phillip Morris made were in 1854.

On Mr. Morris's death, the business was taken over by his wife Margaret and his brother Leopold. In 1881 the Company went public, Philip joining Joseph Grunebaum to establish Philip Morris & Company and Grunebaum, Ltd. This partnership was dissolved in 1885 and the Company became known as Philip Morris & Co., Ltd.

The Company finally left the founding family's control in 1894, when it was taken over by William Curtis Thomson and his family. Under Thomson, the Company was appointed tobacconist to King Edward VII and, in 1902, was incorporated in New York, by Gustav Eckmeyer. Ownership was split 50-50 between the British parent and American partners. Eckmeyer had been sole agent for Philip Morris in the U.S. since 1872, importing and selling English-made cigarettes.

where are the children used by Jens and Peter Theander [edit]

They were children used by the Theander brothers to be sexually abused in their films, they were born from 1958 to 1969. (People of the generation old Antonio Tano, and he himself is part of all this). We are talking about over a thousand children who are now 50 to 61 years old. Where are they? How can they be contacted? They are victims who should be compensated. Peter Theander is still alive, he must face the justice.

This company [edit]

This company produced a lot of kiddie porn in East Asian contries in the late '70 and '80. This was documented by the danish television channel TV2 in two reports on child pornography. NB. Kiddie porn was not explicitly outlawed in Denmark before 1985 so Color Climax probably did not break the law.

Mitsuyo Maeda

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Mitsuyo Maeda (前田 光世, Maeda Mitsuyo, November 18, 1878 – November 28, 1941) naturalized as Otávio Maeda (Portuguese pronunciation: [oˈtavju maˈedɐ]),[1] was a Japanese-born judōka and prizefighter in no holds barred competitions. He was known as Count Combat or Conde Koma in Spanish and Portuguese, a nickname he picked up in Spain in 1908. Along with Antônio Soshihiro Satake, he pioneered judo in Brazil, the United Kingdom, and other countries.[1]

Maeda was fundamental to the development of Brazilian jiu-jitsu, including through his teaching of Carlos Gracie and others of the Gracie family.[2] He was also a promoter of Japanese emigration to Brazil. His accomplishments led to him being called the "toughest man who ever lived" and being referred to as the father of Brazilian Jiu-jitsu.[3]

Biography [edit]

Maeda was born in Funazawa Village, Hirosaki City, Aomori Prefecture, Japan, on November 18, 1878. He attended Kenritsu Itiu high school (currently Hirokou—a Hirosaki school).[1] As a child, he was known as Hideyo.[4] He practiced sumo as a teenager, but lacked the ideal build for the sport. In 1894, at seventeen years of age, his parents sent him to Tokyo to enroll in Waseda University. He joined the Kodokan Judo Institute the following year.[1]

HOME NEWS MUAYBORAN IMBA MUAYSTYLES BLOG 3PILLARS TECHNIQUE

Phra Ram's techniques.

I. A set of powerful maneuvers are inspired by the combat situations Phra Ram faces during the war with the Army of Evil. Let's analyse some of those Mai Muay.

a. Phra Ram Yaeb Longka. Lord Rama breaks into Lanka. This technique is a strong maneuver that stops the opponent in his tracks, kicking the side of the neck with the shinbone. A real knock out move.

b. Phra Ram Ti Tab. Lord Rama attacks the (enemy) army. In a typical military maneuver, the Nak Muay attacks from the flanks with two different weapons: a punch and a swing kick. The punch is commonly aimed at the opponent's head while the kick targets the body. If the technique is performed flawlessly, it is very difficult to block or evade both attacks.

c. Phra Ram Sakod Tab. Lord Rama surprises the (enemy) army. This fast attack is executed by suddenly jumping and throwing a straight kick aimed at the opponent chin. It is very difficult to avoid this vicious leg attack.

Russian troops who took over a suburb of Kyiv are alleged to have raped and held hostage a 15-year-old girl whose mother died while she was being detained against her will, ITV News has been told.

The teenager is claimed to have been held by Russian troops for 10 days close to Irpin, the heavily contested town which sits roughly 12 miles from the Ukrainian capital.

ITV News tracked down Konstantin Gudauskas, the volunteer who rescued the girl and relayed the horrifying details - which are being passed onto war crimes investigators - to Global Security Editor Rohit Kachroo.

1 Baruch Goldstein

Goldstein was an American born-Israeli physician and mass murderer who was responsible for the 1994 Cave of the Patriarchs massacre in Hebron. He killed 29 Muslims praying there and wounded an incredible 125. He believed that these Arabs were attempting to kill Jews, and thus, according to Ian Lustick, "Was reenacting part of the Purim Story." Goldstein was overcome and beaten to death by the survivors. Goldstein's grave site turned into a shrine for Jewish extremists. The shrine was destroyed by the IDF under a law banning shrines to terrorists. Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin called Yasser Arafat, a notorious Palestinian terrorist, and apologized that the mass murder had taken place. Many people still love Goldstein, even though he is the worst Jew of all time. Goldstein was widely described as a psychopath after the massacre.

More Great Lists

Jack Ruby, born Jack Rubenstein, was a nightclub owner who had connections to the Jewish Mafia. He is known for the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald, the most likely culprit of the assassination of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, our 35th president. He was seen in the Dallas Police Headquarters, where Oswald was being held. He took out a Colt Cobra .38 revolver, and shoot Oswald. He was arrested right after the murder. Interestingly, the murder was during a press conference and was being televised live. He said that he murdered Oswald because, in his own words, he wanted Dallas to "redeem" itself, and that Oswald's death would spare "Mrs. Kennedy discomfiture of coming back to trial." While I hate Oswald, Ruby had to be included here. Ruby died in 1967, of lung cancer.

10 Bernard Madoff

The largest Ponzi Scheme in history was operated by the famous investor, stockbroker and entrepreneur Bernard Madoff. In 2009, he pleaded guilty to 11 felonies. He claimed that he began the scheme in the 1990s, but several government officials think that it began in the '70s. The amount of missing money was an astounding $75,000,000,000. He was sentenced to 150 years in prison, which he is currently serving. He is the former non-executive chairman of the NASDAQ stock market. Strangely, he was widely trusted in the business world before the scheme was revealed.

A NASA scientist's home has been searched by the FBI in relation to a missing-person case from the 1990s, with nearly a dozen bags of evidence removed from the house.

The house in Redwood City, California, belongs to Thomas Pressburger, who is a computer scientist at NASA's Ames Research Center.

"Basically, we took a look back into the case and opened up the cold-case investigation and that's why we're out here today," Lt. Peter Lotti, a spokesperson for the Belmont Police Department, said in a video posted by local broadcaster KTVU. "And really our ultimate goal is to bring closure to the case."

The Florida congressman's one-time wingman, Joel Greenberg, will identify that escort to investigators as one of more than 15 young women Gaetz paid for sex, according to a source familiar with the investigation.

But what distinguishes this woman, Megan Zalonka, is that she turned her relationship with Greenberg into a taxpayer-funded no-show job that earned her an estimated $7,000 to $17,500, according to three sources and corresponding government records obtained by The Daily Beast.

On Oct. 26, 2019, Gaetz attended the "Trump Defender Gala" fundraiser as the featured speaker at the Westgate Lake Resort in Orlando. Two witnesses present recalled friends reconvening at Gaetz's hotel room for an after-party, where Zalonka prepared lines of cocaine on the

The Gulf cartel is perhaps the oldest organised crime group in Mexico and is known for intimidating local civilians and being particularly violent.

Former allies of the Zetas, the Gulf cartel are now believed to be allied to the Sinaloa cartel.

Its founder Juan Guerra - considered to be the "godfather" of the cartel - smuggled alcohol into the US in the 1930s.

After the end of the Prohibition, Guerra, widely known as Don Juan, turned his focus to drug smuggling.

In the 1970s the command shifted to Guerra's nephew, Juan Garcia Abrego. He lead the lucrative business until his arrest and extradition to the US in 1996.

After a series of internal battles Osiel Cardenas took over. As his cartel grew, he created Los Zetas, a new armed wing made up of military defectors.

The two groups were collectively known as The Company.

Los Zetas was designed to protect the Gulf

Juan Nepomuceno Guerra Cárdenas (July 18, 1915 – July 12, 2001) was a Mexican drug lord who founded and led the Gulf Cartel for over 50 years. He is often considered the "godfather" of U.S–Mexico border cartels.[2]

He began his criminal career in the 1930s by smuggling alcohol from Mexico during the Prohibition in the United States. He later diversified to other cross-border smuggling activities. He is the uncle of Juan García Ábrego, his successor in the cartel and once considered Mexico's most-wanted man.

Early life and career [edit]

During the 1930s he began smuggling whisky across the Mexico–United States border through south Texas. Through shrewd political connections he had fostered, Nepomuceno Guerra was able to control all the contraband moving across the Rio Grande. [3] In the 1970s, his nephew Juan García Abrego began utilizing those connections and developed the organization into a drug cartel primarily dedicated to the more lucrative business of smuggling cocaine.[4]

I have a lot of positive things to say about the high-level content in this book. It is a great resource for a serious person wanting to learn Biblical Hebrew in-depth. However, it could be somewhat hard for someone without some prior knowledge of the language. Once you have a basic understanding, you can use this book to enhance your knowledge. As a solution B, I recommend "Basics of Biblical Hebrew" by Gary D. Pratico as a secondary resource when starting from scratch.
By getting hold of these two books, you will have all the necessary tools to navigate through the complexities of grammar, which other books tend to make unnecessarily difficult and discouraging. The best part is that you can easily purchase them at a very competitive price on Amazon.

Gulf Cartel drug lord Juan Garcia Abrego had the distinction of being the first drug smuggler to make the FBI's list. Wanted by authorities since 1986 on money-laundering and drug-possession charges, he was listed in 1995 and nabbed by Mexican authorities the following year. Abrego was tried on 22 counts of money laundering and narcotics trafficking, including masterminding the smuggling of nearly 15 tons of cocaine from Mexico to the U.S. Convicted on all counts, he is currently serving 11 life terms in the U.S.

Historically, Beth Israel Hospital was formed to create greater access to quality medical care for the local Jewish population. It has grown to broaden its care to the entire community, and beyond. But that history is meaningful to me. When you look at the names on our buildings and all the people on our boards who are ambassadors in the community, it's meaningful. Some have been serving BIDMC for generations, and today, are bringing the next generation along. That, to me, is terrific. Boston is blessed with really wonderful institutions, but institutions truly stand out because of the caring people who are involved with them, with BIDMC at the forefront.

Earlier today, in federal court in Houston, Jose Wilfredo Ayala-Alcantara, also known as "Indio de Hollywood," a high-ranking leader of La Mara Salvatrucha, also known as "MS-13," was transferred to the Eastern District of New York where he, together with 12 other high-ranking MS-13 leaders, are charged with directing the transnational criminal organization's criminal activities in the United States, El Salvador, Mexico, and elsewhere over the past two decades. Ayala-Alcantara was arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), Homeland Security Investigations (HSI), and the United States Marshals Service (USMS) on April 18, 2023 when he arrived at George Bush Intercontinental Airport in Houston, Texas. The Birth of the MS13's Mexico Program

On March 2, 2021, El Salvador police announced an unexpected arrest: that of Hugo Armando Quinteros Mineros, alias "Flaco," of the Francis Locos clique. His capture took authorities by surprise. For they believed Flaco was abroad, running one of the MS13's most ambitious projects: the Mexico Program.

On the day of his arrest, Flaco looked worn out, his drawn face worthy of his nickname, meaning "Skinny." He had plenty to worry about.

"This article is part of a four-part investigation, "MS13 & Co.," diving into how the MS13 grew from humble beginnings to become a business powerhouse with investments in numerous businesses, both legal and illegal, across the Northern Triangle. Read the complete investigation here or download the full PDF.

Flaco was among the most-wanted fugitives in El Salvador and the United States and was one of 14 gang leaders accused of terrorism by the US Department of Justice in January 2021.

The veteran gang member had spent a lengthy stint on the run after being deported from Mexico in 2019 and subsequently granted liberty by the Salvadoran court system for unclear reasons. Even now, the US has requested his extradition, but there have been no updates on his case since shortly after his arrest last March.

The MS13's Mexico program, meanwhile, has kept chugging along.

El Flaco

Flaco's reputation among the MS13 is legendary. He was one of the original emeeses (the phonetic spelling for MS13 members) who left El Salvador for California to avoid joining the military during the country's civil war in the 1980s.

Cabala Mineralis, attributed to Rabbi Simeon ben Cantara - An illustration from medieval alchemical manuscript "Cabala Mineralis", depicting young boy, urinating in the pool. Inscription says: "Our ammoniac is not that of the vulgar". Image by Labyrinth Designers Rabbi Simeon ben Cantara

The "golden age of alchemy", which fell on 13th-17th centuries, resulted in numerous alchemical treatises, created by medieval scholars, venturing clergymen and mysterious kabbalists. One of them - "Cabala Mineralis" - suggested using urine as a possible ingredient for the elixir of immortality. A manuscript, located at London British Museum, dates back to the middle of the XV century and is ascribed to Rabbi Simeon Ben Cantara.

Colourful illustrations of this book explain how urine of a young boy can be used as a source of ammonium: "Our ammoniac is not that of the vulgar". Ammonium then shall be used together with mercury as essential components of philosopher's stone.

Owen Vincent "Owney" Madden (December 18, 1891 – April 24, 1965) was an American gangster who was a leading underworld figure in New York during Prohibition. Nicknamed "The Killer", he garnered a brutal reputation within street gangs and organized crime. He ran the Cotton Club in Manhattan and was a leading boxing promoter. After increased attention from law enforcement in New York, Madden moved to Hot Springs, Arkansas, in 1935, where he remained until his death from natural causes in 1965.

Early life [edit]

Owen Vincent Madden was born into a working-class family at 25 Somerset Road in Leeds, England, on December 18, 1891, the son of Irish immigrants Francis Madden and Mary Madden (née O'Neil.)[1] After his mother became a widow she emigrated to New York to become a maid, leaving Owen and his sister Mary and brother Martin in a British orphanage. In 1896, Owen's mother saved up enough money to take them out of the orphanage and get them tickets to join her in New York City.[1] [2]

The young Madden grew up on the streets of New York where he learned how to use blackjacks, knuckledusters, bats, pipes, knives, and stilettoes. By the age of 21 years old, Madden had become the leader of a feared New York street gang known as the Gopher Gang. He earned the nickname, "The Killer" for getting away with two brazen murders. On September 6, 1911, he shot dead a gang member of the rival Hudson Dusters in the heart of Dusters' territory around 30th Street. In February 1912, Madden was on a crowded street trolley, arguing with a store clerk named William Henshaw about a woman, and Madden shot Henshaw in the face. Henshaw was not a gang member, and as he was dying, he named Owney Madden as his killer. Despite the police having his name, and there being eyewitnesses to the crime, Madden never went to trial—witnesses in both killings were intimidated, and disappeared.[2]

In 1915, he eventually went to prison for ordering the killing of William "Little Patsy Doyle" Moore, who had been waging a three-year vendetta campaign against Madden and the Gopher Gang.[2]

Prohibition [edit]

After serving seven years of a 10-to-20-year sentence for Moore's manslaughter,[3] Madden was released on parole in 1923. The Gopher Gang had broken up, and many members of his own faction were either in Sing Sing or working for bootlegging gangs.[4]

During this time, Madden employed a young friend as a personal driver. The driver, George Raft, later became a film star noted for his authentic portrayals of gangland figures.[5][6]

Ralph Hubert "Sonny" Barger Jr. (October 8, 1938 – June 29, 2022) was an American outlaw biker who was a founding member of the Oakland, California chapter of the Hells Angels Motorcycle Club in 1957.[3] After forming the Oakland chapter, Barger was instrumental in unifying various disparate Hells Angels chapters and had the club incorporated in 1966.[4] He emerged as the Hells Angels' most prominent member during the counterculture era and was reputed by law enforcement and media to be the club's international president, an allegation he repeatedly denied.[5] The author Hunter S. Thompson called Barger "the Maximum Leader" of the Hells Angels,[6] and Philip Martin of the Phoenix New Times described him as "the archetypical Hells Angel", saying he "didn't found the motorcycle club ... but he constructed the myth".[7] He authored five books, and appeared on television and in film.

Barger served a total of 13 years in prison, following a conviction for heroin trafficking in 1974, and a 1988 conviction for conspiracy to bomb the clubhouse of a rival motorcycle gang, the Outlaws.[8] He was also acquitted of murder in 1972, and of racketeering in 1980.[9] Barger rejected accusations from law enforcement characterizing the Hells Angels as an organized crime syndicate, and maintained that the club should not be held accountable for crimes committed by individual members.[1]

Numerous police and international intelligence agencies classify the Hells Angels Motorcycle Club (HAMC) as a motorcycle gang and contend that members carry out widespread violent crimes, including drug dealing, trafficking in stolen goods, gunrunning, extortion, and prostitution operations.[50][51] Members of the organization have continuously asserted that they are only a group of motorcycle enthusiasts who have joined to ride motorcycles together, to organize social events such as group road trips, fundraisers, parties, and motorcycle rallies, and that any crimes are the responsibility of the individuals who carried them out and not the club as a whole.[52][53] Members of the club have been accused of crimes and/or convicted in many host nations.

Max "Big Maxie" Greenberg (1883–1933) was an American bootlegger and organized crime figure in Detroit, Michigan, and later a member of Egan's Rats in St. Louis. He oversaw the purchasing of sacramental wine from Orthodox rabbis, then allowed under the Volstead Act, which were sold to bootleggers in the St. Louis–Kansas City, Missouri area during Prohibition. He was also associated with mobsters in this particular method of acquiring illegal liquor including Waxey Gordon, Meyer Lansky and Arnold Rothstein.[1]

By the early 1910s, Greenberg had joined the Egan's Rats and become one of their best members. Max, his brother Morris, and two others were suspected in the murder of Sam Mintz on December 5, 1914. It was disclosed that Mintz had informed on the gang in a fire insurance scam they were running; Greenberg managed to avoid being caught.[2] Greenberg was also believed to have played a key role in the Rats' first known bank robbery, that of the Baden Bank on April 10, 1919, during which the robbers took $59,000.[3]

Soon after the Baden bank heist, Greenberg, Ben Milner, and Edward "Big Red" Powers were sentenced to Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary on an interstate theft charge, stemming from the Egan-sponsored robbery of some railroad cars in Danville, Illinois. Egan gang boss William Egan and Missouri State Senator Michael Kinney managed to finagle the three men pardons from none other than President Woodrow Wilson himself.[4]

Soon after their release, Greenberg and Milner decided to go into the bootlegging racket for themselves. They accomplished this by betraying the very same man who had saved them from prison: Willie Egan. Egan gave Greenberg $2,000 to make a deal with a Mexican smuggler for a load of whiskey. Greenberg, it later turned out, paid the smuggler but kept the whiskey for himself. Egan was furious and demanded that Greenberg reimburse him, but Greenberg claimed the whiskey barge had sunk in the Mississippi River. These bad feelings came to a head in the early morning hours of October 16, 1920, when Greenberg and his friends engaged the rest of the Egan's Rats in a huge brawl at Egan's Franklin Avenue saloon. One of the men severely injured was attorney John Sweeney. A month later, Milner would be shot and killed during a running gun battle with the Russo Gang. After these two incidents his bootleg business fell into disarray, forcing Greenberg to leave St. Louis for Detroit.[5]

In the fall of 1920, he was introduced to Rothstein by Waxey Gordon and asked for a $175,000 loan to purchase speedboats to bring in alcohol from Ontario to Detroit as well as additional funds for graft payoffs. Rothstein liked the idea, but instead decided to take up rum-running to New York where the demand was the highest in the country. Gordon was allowed to run the operation as a junior partner while Greenberg, in order not to be cut out entirely, was allowed to take part in the deal under the condition that he mortgage all his personal property to Rothstein and take out an expensive life insurance policy with Rothstein's insurance company.[6]

In March 1921, Greenberg returned to St. Louis to lay the groundwork for his new business

Kidnapping of Edward Bremer

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The kidnapping of Edward Bremer was the last major criminal enterprise of the Barker-Karpis gang. Though successful in netting the gang a large ransom, it brought down the full force of the FBI on the gang, resulting in the death or capture of its main members in the months afterwards. The kidnapping was ordered by St. Paul Jewish-American organized crime boss Harry Sawyer, and carried out by Fred Barker, Alvin Karpis, Arthur Barker, Volney Davis and Chicago Outfit mobster George Goetz-Ziegler.

The successful capture and prosecution of the kidnappers greatly enhanced the reputation of the FBI. The strong evidence that the city's police were working with the criminals helped fuel campaigns against police corruption.

Edward Bremer, Jr.

Nationality	American

Background [edit]

The Barker-Karpis gang operated in St. Paul, Minnesota under the protection of mobbed up police chief Tom Brown and local organized crime figures Jack Peifer and Harry Sawyer. Sawyer had orchestrated their previous successful kidnapping of William Hamm. He now proposed that Edward Bremer should be their next target. Bremer was 34, and was president of Commercial State Bank. His father, Adolph Bremer, was also a banker and the owner of the Schmidt beer brewery.[1]

It is thought that Bremer was not chosen simply because of his wealth, but also because of a personal vendetta, possibly linked to the ending of the prohibition era. Schmidt breweries were widely believed to have survived in the prohibition era by working with bootleggers such as Sawyer. With prohibition over, the Bremers severed ties with their criminal associates. According to Sawyer's wife, her husband and Ed Bremer "got into a dispute over alcohol."[2] Alvin Karpis later said that Sawyer had some sort of "beef" with the victim and that he "sure didn't like Bremer".[2] When the FBI investigated the kidnapping, they discovered that Bremer had many enemies. An FBI report noted that he "is very much disliked, not only by his family, but generally. He has an uncontrollable temper, is very selfish, and has few friends".[3]

Kidnapping [edit]

On January 17, 1934 Bremer was kidnapped from the streets of St. Paul, Minnesota. He was on his way to work, having just dropped his daughter off at school when he was approached by two men, one of whom was Arthur "Doc" Barker. Barker repeatedly punched and pistol-whipped him, forcing him into the back of Bremer's car and placing blindfolding goggles over his eyes. After having some difficulty starting the vehicle, the kidnappers forced the bleeding Bremer to show them the starter button, then drove off, later switching to another car. The blood-stained vehicle was later recovered, leading to fears that Bremer had been killed.[4]

Arthur "Doc" Barker

Bremer was held captive in Bensenville, Illinois.[5] He was kept in a small room and was told that his family would be killed if he said anything to the police. He was also told to provide the names of people who could act as intermediaries. Messages demanding $200,000 were left with the Bremers' trusted business associate and former chauffeur Walter Magee. Through Tom Brown, the gang learned that Magee had informed the police, despite the gang's demand that he should keep quiet. They threatened to kill him and Bremer. Adolph Bremer, the victim's father, refused to pay up unless the kidnappers provided proof of life. Edward was forced to write another note pleading to be returned to his wife and children. When Adolph also tried to reduce the ransom money, Fred Barker became enraged and suggested they should kill Edward. His brother Arthur and Karpis overruled him. In the end the ransom was paid by dropping off a bag full of cash, which was collected by George Zieger. Edward was driven to a deserted road by Ziegler and released on February 7, left on the empty road with a small amount of cash. He had to make his own way back home.

Arrests and deaths [edit]

The FBI had recorded the serial numbers of all the cash used to pay the ransom. They launched an intensive investigation, declaring Alvin Karpis, presumed leader of the gang, to be "Public Enemy No. 1". Bremer, completely traumatized and worried about the safety of his wife and children, refused to cooperate with the FBI. When they threatened to reveal what they believed about his links to organized crime, he admitted what he knew about the kidnappers, and his suspicions about their connection to Sawyer.

The gang knew that they needed to launder the money, but the intensity of the FBI pressure meant that most of their criminal contacts refused to participate. Ziegler was gunned down in a drive-by killing by unknown assailants in March. Sawyer claimed that

(Redirected from Barker–Karpis gang)

The Barker–Karpis Gang was one of the longest-lived criminal gangs during the Depression Era, spanning from 1931 to 1935. The gang was founded by Fred Barker and Alvin Karpis, and later joined by Fred's brother Arthur "Doc" Barker. Along with the three core members, the gang's network spanned up to 25 members at one point.

Although not as well known as their contemporaries the Dillinger Gang, or the Barrow Gang, the Barker–Karpis Gang was perhaps more ruthless, not only committing bank robberies, but also extending the activities into kidnapping.[1] It is best known for the myth that it was run by the Barker brothers' mother, Kate, usually referred to as "Ma Barker".

Foundations [edit]

The Barker–Karpis gang was put together by Fred Barker and Alvin Karpis in March 1931. Barker and Karpis had met in the Kansas State Penitentiary, and upon Karpis's release in March 1931, started to form the gang. The gang began robbing banks starting in mid-1931, but on December 19 of that year, they killed Howell County Sheriff Calvin Roy Kelly in West Plains, Missouri. They fled to Joplin, and then to Saint Paul, Minnesota, where Jewish-American organized crime boss Harry Sawyer (born Harry Sandlovich) found them a house at 1031 Roberts Road, owned by Helen Hannegraff. They used the name "Anderson", but a few weeks later, Helen's son Nick recognized Alvin's and Fred's photos in a copy of True Detective Magazine, and contacted the police. St. Paul's corrupt chief of police, Thomas Brown, tipped the Barkers off and they left town. Doc Barker later joined the gang in 1932 after he was paroled from the Oklahoma State Penitentiary in McAlester, where he had been serving a life sentence for the murder of night watchman Thomas J. Sherrill in 1921. The gang was led by the three of them, although many others rotated in and out of the gang including Chicago Outfit mobster Fred Goetz and Volney Davis. The gang continued their bank robbing activities until mid-1933, when they decided that robbing banks was becoming risky, and therefore decided to diverge into the field of kidnapping.[2] Their graduation to more serious crime was mentored by Detective Brown.[3]

Hamm and Bremer kidnappings [edit]

On June 15, 1933, the Barker–Karpis gang kidnapped William Hamm of Hamm's Brewery and released him on June 19, 1933. The ransom from this kidnapping netted $100,000. They then kidnapped Edward Bremer in daylight in St. Paul in January 1934, releasing him in February. The ransom from this kidnapping turned out to be $200,000. However, these kidnappings brought too much negative publicity, due to the recent Urschel and Lindbergh Kidnappings, and the fact that the father of Bremer Jr. was a personal friend of President Roosevelt, who mentioned the kidnappings in a fireside chat. On November 27, 1934, Lester "Baby Face Nelson" Gillis, at that time the Public Enemy No. 1, was mortally wounded in a gun battle with the FBI and died later that night. The next day, Alvin Karpis was declared Public Enemy No. 1, which brought the full force of the FBI down on the Barker–Karpis Gang.[4][5]

Downfall [edit]

The gang had faced problems. George "Shotgun" Ziegler had been gunned down in Cicero, Illinois in March 1934, possibly due to the mob's dislike of the gang's activities. Gang member William J. Harrison was killed on January 6 by fellow members of the gang. Following the declaration of Alvin Karpis as Public Enemy No. 1, Doc Barker was arrested on January 8, 1935, along with Byron Bolton. Russell "Slim Gray" Gibson was killed resisting the arrest. Along with his arrest came a map and letters to a cottage near Lake Weir, Florida, near Ocklawaha, in which Fred Barker and his mother, Kate "Ma" Barker were hiding under an assumed name. After a four-hour shootout on January 16, 1935, Fred and Ma Barker were killed. Controversy remains as to whether Ma Barker

FBI TEN MOST WANTED FUGITIVE
ALEJANDRO CASTILLO
Unlawful Flight to Avoid Prosecution - Murder
A North Carolina teen charged with murdering his former girlfriend has been named to the FBI's Ten Most Wanted Fugitives list.
Effective May 25, 2023, the FBI is offering a reward of up to $250,000 for information leading to his arrest. More information on the reward increase.
Alejandro Castillo—17 years old at the time of the killing—is wanted in connection with the 2016 murder of a 23-year-old woman, Truc Quan "Sandy" Ly Le, whom he had previously dated. The two became acquainted while working together in a Charlotte restaurant.
A joint investigation by the FBI and the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police Department (CMPD) revealed that Castillo owed the victim money—approximately $1,000. Text messages between Castillo and the victim showed they agreed to meet in Charlotte

Scott Coffman, president and CEO of the Adult Entertainment Broadcast Network, believes online video on demand is going to continue to be the way of the future. Not everyone in adult entertainment is looking for new distribution formats, though.

Scott Coffman, president and CEO of the Adult Entertainment Broadcast Network, believes online video on demand is going to continue to be the way of the future. While piracy is a problem, he acknowledges, the company has just introduced a new haptic technology peripheral/sex toy that it's betting will prove appealing to men.

The RealTouch is a mechanical male masturbation device that is programmed to work in conjunction with films on AEBN's Website and simulate the sensation of the sex happening onscreen. Owners pay $0.49 per minute for the experience — on top of the $200 upfront costs for the device.

Coffman knows there will be customer trepidation and acknowledges that overcoming those fears will take some time — but he likens his PR challenge to the one Nintendo faced when it first unveiled the Wii.

For other people with the same name, see Robert Livingston.
Robert Robert[a] Livingston (November 27, 1746 (Old Style November 16) – February 26, 1813) was an American lawyer, politician, and diplomat from New York, as well as a Founding Father of the United States. He was known as "The Chancellor" after the high New York state legal office he held for 25 years. He was a member of the Committee of Five that drafted the Declaration of Independence, along with Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, and Roger Sherman. Livingston administered the oath of office to George Washington when he assumed the presidency April 30, 1789. Livingston was also elected as a member of the American Philosophical Society in 1801.[1]
Early life [edit]
Livingston was the eldest son of Judge Robert Livingston (1718–1775) and Margaret (née Beekman) Livingston, uniting two wealthy Hudson River Valley families. He had two brothers and sisters, all of whom wed and made their homes on the Hudson River near the family seat at Clermont Manor. Among his siblings were his younger brother, Edward Livingston (1764-1836), who also served as U.S. Minister to France, his sister Gertrude Livingston (1757–1833), who married Governor Morgan Lewis (1754–1844), sister Janet Livingston (d. 1824), who married Richard Montgomery

James Madison (March 16, 1751[N] – June 28, 1836) was an American statesman, diplomat, and Founding Father who served as the fourth president of the United States from 1809 to 1817. Madison is hailed as the "Father of the Constitution" for his pivotal role in drafting and promoting the Constitution of the United States and the Bill of Rights.

Madison was born into a prominent slave-owning planter family in Virginia. He served as a member of the Virginia House of Delegates and the Continental Congress during and after the American Revolutionary War. Dissatisfied with the weak national government established by the Articles of Confederation, he helped organize the Constitutional Convention, which produced a new constitution designed to strengthen republican government against democratic assembly. Madison's Virginia Plan was the basis for the convention's deliberations, and he was an influential voice at the convention. He became one of the leaders in the movement to ratify the Constitution and joined Alexander Hamilton and John Jay in writing The Federalist Papers, a series of pro-ratification essays that remains prominent among works of political science in American history. Madison emerged as an important leader in the House of Representatives and was a close adviser to President George Washington.

Known as Los Narcosatánicos, the group killed at least 16 victims and are suspected of possibly 10 more murders during a three-year period ending in 1989.

The Narcosatanists formed when the Hernández family, a Matamoros-based drug dealing clan, met a Cuban living in Mexico named Adolfo Constanzo. Constanzo apparently convinced the family that he could reverse their recent bad luck in the trafficking business through black magic.

Aldrete, a seemingly mild-mannered student who crossed the bridge daily to attend classes at a university in Brownsville, got pulled into the group through her relationship with a drug dealer who was linked to the Hernández family. She quickly became a top leader. The group called Constanzo "El Padrino," the Godfather, while Aldrete was known as "La Padrina"—the Godmother.

By Vanessa Buschschlüter
BBC News

A former president of Honduras, Juan Orlando Hernández, has pleaded not guilty to drugs and weapons charges in a court in New York.

Mr Hernández, who governed the Central American nation until January, was extradited to the US on 21 April, less than three months after his second term in office ended.

The ex-leader has denied wrongdoing.

He says he is innocent and argues that disgruntled drug traffickers are trying to frame him.

Known as Los Narcosatánicos, the group killed at least 16 victims and are suspected of possibly 10 more murders during a three-year period ending in 1989.

The Narcosatanists formed when the Hernández family, a Matamoros-based drug dealing clan, met a Cuban living in Mexico named Adolfo Constanzo. Constanzo apparently convinced the family that he could reverse their recent bad luck in the trafficking business through black magic.

Aldrete, a seemingly mild-mannered student who crossed the bridge daily to attend classes at a university in Brownsville, got pulled into the group through her relationship with a drug dealer who was linked to the Hernández family. Ramona Hernandez-Perez is a queer, female Black-Mexican rabbi with stories to tell.

Hernandez-Perez is in her 60s and is a third-generation Chicago native. She was transgender and is now female, explaining while there is nothing wrong with being transgender, to her it means from one person to the next. Her transition, as she described, has passed.

"I don't want to be a third gender," said Hernandez-Perez. "I want to be female, period. I'm me."

Mainly raised by her grandparents, Hernandez-Perez said her family was not religious when she was growing up.

"I always wrestled with what was being told; wrestled with knowledge and truth; wrestled with the social injustice," said Hernandez-Perez.

"When you begin to find that these things come natural to you or that you have a love for it, then it just happens," said Hernandez-Perez of finding a love for religion. "Baruch Hashem. Be a decent human being. Tikkun Olam [a Jewish concept, meaning to repair the world through acts of kindness]. Be that light, help to heal the world, whatever you are, whether you're a journalist, a musician, an entertainer, whatever you are, you can be who you want to be

Ramona Hernandez-Perez is a queer, female Black-Mexican rabbi with stories to tell.

Hernandez-Perez is in her 60s and is a third-generation Chicago native. She was transgender and is now female, explaining while there is nothing wrong with being transgender, to her it means from one person to the next. Her transition, as she described, has passed.

"I don't want to be a third gender," said Hernandez-Perez. "I want to be female, period. I'm me."

Mainly raised by her grandparents, Hernandez-Perez said her family was not religious when she was growing up.

"I always wrestled with what was being told; wrestled with knowledge and truth; wrestled with the social injustice," said Hernandez-Perez.

"When you begin to find that those things come natural to you or that you have a love for it, then it just happens," said Hernandez-Perez of finding a love for religion. "Baruch Hashem. Be a decent human being. Tikkun Olam (a Jewish concept, meaning to repair the world through acts of kindness). Be that light, help to heal the world, whatever you are, whether you're a journalist, a musician, an entertainer, whatever you are, you can be who you want to be

The glamorous model wife of billionaire Pornhub tycoon Bernd Bergmair has today made an extraordinary public put down of her husband's site, as she urged him to think of the children who could be exposed to explicit videos.

Brazilian fashion blogger Priscila Bergmair said she 'really hopes' her elusive porn baron husband will sever ties with the sex video website that his company owns.

Mr Bergmair, 52, is a majority owner of Montreal-based porn firm MindGeek, the company behind Pornhub.

Bernard Bergemar is the biggest owner of MindGeek, the Luxembourg-based conglomerate behind popular porn sites such as Pornhub, YouPorn and Brazzers, a Financial Times investigation found.

Andrew Tate once called his sexually explicit webcam business a "total scam" and boasted on his website that he lured women in by getting them to fall in love with him. The 36-year-old influencer also boasted on a podcast that he broke a woman's jaw in a bar fight and "got away with it."

Those are just some of the details found in an NBC News review of Tate's media appearances, website records and archives of his Instagram and YouTube accounts following his December arrest in Bucharest, Romania where he lives.

Romanian authorities arrested him, his brother and two women on suspicion of human trafficking, rape and forming an organized crime group, according to Reuters. Tate has denied the claims, and all four have contested their continued detention.

At one point, Abramov tells Netanyahu and Maimon that they are "acting like idiots," standing outside a strip club. "If you were photographed, do you know how that would look?" he says, naming the well-known Pussycat strip club as one of the jaunts they had visited.

The Pussycat Dolls strip club in Tel Aviv, October 3, 2017. (Andrew Tobin)

Later, Maimon says that he "blew" NIS 3,000 ($870) on strippers that night. Abramov says he spent around NIS 2,000 ($580) on "two or three" private dances.

Yair Netanyahu also discusses a woman that Hadashot news reported he had been in a relationship with. "If you want, I can set you up with some *," he says of her, in comments that the channel said it censored due to their offensive nature. He adds that he could charge money for pimping her out.

Lucien Greaves on the Satanic Temple

The Satanic Temple's, Lucien Greaves!

The Satanic Temple and the First Amend lecture by Lucien Greaves

The statue unveiling was officially presented with a sermon by Satanic Temple co-founder Malcolm Jarry and Mesner, who read a statement tucked in the pages of a Bible, flanked by two men holding candles. As the two men removed the blanket from the monument (and started making out), Mesner ripped out pages from the Bible and threw them into the audience. Later, VIP ticket holders could get their photo taken on Baphomet's lap, while attendees hounded Mesner to autograph the torn Bible pages.

OUR HISTORY

A RICH HISTORY OF MAKING HISTORY.

Swisher traces its roots back to 1861 when David Swisher, a merchant out of Newark, Ohio, received a small cigar business in settlement of a debt. David and his four sons began to sell cigars across the Midwest from their "rolling stores" or wagons. The cigars were rolled by hand every day in a one-room "manufactury" in Newark. In 1888, David's sons, John and Harry, bought the company from their father and renamed it Swisher Brothers. The company experienced great growth, and by 1895 the business had grown into three factories that employed over 1,000 people who hand-rolled as many as 300,000 cigars per day.

Daniel S. Zion (3 August 1883, Salonica – 13 November 1979, Jaffa) was an Orthodox rabbi, Kabbalist[1] and political activist. Zion moved to Sofia, Bulgaria, as a slaughterer and cantor. Bulgaria's Jewish community at the time was almost completely assimilated, and there were no ultra-Orthodox communities in the country during World War II.[2] In 1943, Zion was removed from his position on the local rabbinic court for his newfound belief that Jesus of Nazareth was the Jewish Messiah.[3]

Spoetzl Brewery is the oldest independent brewery in Texas and one of the oldest in the country. It is now owned and operated by the Gambrinus Company out of San Antonio (they also own Trumer Brewery). Its Shiner Bock is a famous dark lager that you can get across the country, named for the town in which it was founded in 1909.

Spoetzl was opened as The Shiner Brewing Association by Czech and German immigrants in Shiner, Texas. They resolved to brew the beers they grew up drinking in their home countries. They appointed Herman Weiss as their first brewmaster, which we listed as the founder for lack of the many names of the immigrants who founded the association that began the brewery.

Kiddush Nesachim

Menachot (7:4) | Yisrael Bankier | 10 years ago

We have learnt that while many of the mincha offerings were brought independently, some were brought either alongside or secondary to other korbanot. Nesachim, consisting of wine and a mincha offering were brought with a korban olah or shelamim. The Mishnah (7:4) discusses a case where one sanctifies the nesachim by placing them in a kli sharet * (vessel designated for service) and the korban was then found to be invalid. The Mishnah teaches that if there is another sacrifice that requires nesachim it can be brought for that one.[1] If not, then the nesachim should be left beyond the required time to offer it, thereby invalidating it (lina), and burnt in the manner of invalid korbanot.

The Gemara(79a) cites the statement of R' Zeira that nesachim are only sanctified at the time of slaughter. Consequently it concludes that when the Mishnah teaches that the korban was found to be pasul it must mean that something went wrong at the time of zeriko (casting the blood). If it happened at the time of shechita the nesachim would not be sanctified.

Rashi understands that according to R' Zeiram, prior to shechita the nesachim are considered chullin (unsanctified). Along this line the Bartenuro explains that only after shechita are the nesachim sanctified such that they can be invalid due to lina or yotze (being taken outside the

The verse is analyzed: "One" indicates that one should not take a sliced loaf; "of each offering" indicates that all the offerings should be equal, i.e., that one should not take a loaf from one type of offering for another type; "to the priest that sprinkles the blood of the peace offerings against the altar it shall be given," and the rest of the loaves are eaten by the owner.

Al Qaeda's affiliate in Syria claims another suicide attack
BY BILL ROGGIO | December 11th, 2012 | @billroggio
The Al Nusrah Front for the People of the Levant, al Qaeda in Iraq's affiliate in Syria, claimed credit for yesterday's complex attack against the Syrian Interior Ministry in Damascus. Five people were killed in the bombings.
The Al Nusrah Front said two of its suicide bombers "parked their two vehicles in front of the building, and then stormed and clashed with those inside and killed a lot of them," according to the SITE Intelligence Group, which obtained the statements from the Al Nusrah that were published on Twitter (the jihadist forums were not accessible). After the suicide bombers launched their attack, the two car bombs "were blown up remotely."
Five people were reported to have been killed in the blasts, and the force of the explosions collapsed several walls of the building.
The terror group, which was designated as such by the US on Dec. 11, has now claimed credit for 43 of the 52 suicide attacks that have taken place in Syria in the past 12 months [see LWJ report, US adds Al Nusrah Front, 2 leaders to terrorism list, for information on the designation].
The group has become one of the most powerful and

History of Ladino

In the 1492 diaspora, when the Jews were expelled from Spain, they took with them Spanish of the late 15th century and expanded the lexicon with language influences from the Mediterranean, primarily where they settled.

Foreign words that mixed with Old Spanish derive mainly from Hebrew, Arabic, Turkish, Greek, French, and to a lesser extent from Portuguese and Italian.

The Ladino community population took a large hit when the Nazis destroyed most of the communities in Europe where Ladino had been the first language among Jews.

Very few of the people who speak Ladino are monolingual. Ladino language advocates fear that it could die out as speakers more often use the languages of the cultures around them.

It is estimated that about 200,000 people can understand or speak Ladino. Israel has one of the largest Ladino-speaking communities, with many words borrowed from Yiddish. Traditionally, Ladino was written in the Hebrew alphabet, writing and reading right to left. In the 20th

In the 1492 diaspora, when the Jews were expelled from Spain, they took with them Spanish of the late 15th century and expanded the lexicon with language influences from the Mediterranean, primarily where they settled.

Foreign words that mixed with Old Spanish derive mainly from Hebrew, Arabic, Turkish, Greek, French, and to a lesser extent from Portuguese and Italian.

The Ladino community population took a large hit when the Nazis destroyed most of the communities in Europe where Ladino had been the first language among Jews.

Very few of the people who speak Ladino are monolingual. Ladino language advocates fear that it could die out as speakers more often use the languages of the cultures around them.

It is estimated that about 200,000 people can understand or speak Ladino. Israel has one of the largest Ladino-speaking communities, with many words borrowed from Yiddish. Traditionally, Ladino was written in the Hebrew alphabet, writing and reading right to left. In the 20th

Meyer Lanksy

Meyer Lansky was an associate of the Jewish mob as well as other prominent mafia figures such as Lucky Luciano (yes, him again). Also, as mentioned earlier, he was good friends with Bugsy Siegel, even from childhood. Also known as the "Mob's Accountant," he developed various gambling operations around the world including Las Vegas, Florida and New Orleans

Attempting to take control of the Flamingo hotel in Havana, Cuba, Lansky attended a secret meeting to discuss Bugsy taking over its operation. However, he was not

Carlos Lehder

Carlos Lehder was a German-Colombian drug lord and co-founder of the Medellin Cartel. He started out selling marijuana and stolen cars and smuggling them between the U.S. and Canada. Later on, he partnered with George Jung to start smuggling cocaine into the U.S. Initially, they used suitcases but later purchased their own airplane to just fly it in. Because of his success, Lehder got too big for his britches and so Jung and Lehder had a falling out.

And things only went downhill from there. In 1984, Pablo Escobar had Rodrigo Lara

Frank Costello

Frank Costello was an Italian-American crime boss for the Luciano family. Born in Italy, he moved to America as a small child. By 13, he became involved with local gangs. Running with Luciano, Siegel and Lanksy, among others, he was involved in murder, robbery, extortion, gambling and narcotics. In 1925, Costello became a U.S. citizen and a year later was indicted on bootlegging charges, but the jury was deadlocked.

Arnold Rothstein was another one of the most notorious mob bosses in New York. Before Luciano, Rothstein was a successful gambler, businessman and racketeer. He transformed the way organized crime worked by turning into something that ran more like a corporation. One of his most notable "achievements" was fixing the 1919 World Series, in which he paid the White Sox to deliberately lose to another team. He profited on that loss by betting against them.

However, Rothstein was never indicted as prosecutors could find no evidence against him. Once prohibition went into effect, Rothstein got into the bootlegging business

John Dillinger

©Getty Images

John Dillinger was an American gangster operating mainly during the Great Depression after the stock market crash of 1929. However, he started out before that in 1924. Finding it difficult to hold a job, Dillinger began planning robberies. During a grocery store robbery, stealing $50, he hit someone on the head while escaping. He along with an associate were arrested for the crime and confessed to it.

Dillinger was sentenced to prison for 10 to 20 years and became further entrenched in the criminal underworld. There, in prison, Dillinger studied how to rob banks, learning from expert bank robbers. Meanwhile, Dillinger's father worked on getting him out of prison, gathering 188 signatures. Almost 10 years later, in 1933, he was released on parole, carrying out his first bank robbery in 1933 and 11 more after that. As a result, FBI agents chased Dillinger who had become one of the most notorious bank robbers of the time. Dillinger was shot in 1934 by the FBI after leaving a movie theater. Johnny

Mickey Cohen

Mickey Cohen started out as a boxer, participating in illegal prizefights in Los Angeles when he was just a teenager. During the prohibition, Cohen moved to Chicago became involved with organized crime, he started out as an enforcer and even met Al Capone. After spending some time in prison, he started running illegal gambling operations including card games. In 1939, he moved back to LA to work for Bugsy Siegel.

In 1947, after Siegel was murdered, Cohen sought revenge and challenged the presumed assailants to a gunfight. They did not and Cohen fled the scene before cops arrived. An investigation into Cohen led to - you guessed it - a tax evasion conviction.

Bugsy Siegel

Bugsy Siegel, another famous American crime boss from the time of prohibition, was described as handsome and charismatic, which made him a gangster celebrity. At a young age, he befriended Jewish crime boss Meyer Lanski and Charles Luciano. He was allegedly involved in bootlegging and murder, carrying out hits for Lanski. While married, Siegel had a reputation for womanizing, which ultimately led to his marriage ending in 1946.

After making numerous enemies, Bugsy Siegel was sent off to California by the east coast mob in the late 1930s. He had already established connections there in the

Gerard Adriaan Heineken is born into an Amsterdam merchant family in 1841. In 1864 he buys brewery 'De Hooiberg' (The Haystack) in Amsterdam and immediately turns his focus towards brewing uncompromised premium lager beer. He embraces the latest brewing innovations and becomes the first brewer on the planet to introduce a quality control lab. He also did a lot for the city of Amsterdam.

Karlsberg (German pronunciation: [ˈkaɪ̯ls.bɛɐ̯k]) is one of the largest breweries in Germany; the Karlsberg Group also owns various other beer brands. It is called Karlsbräu outside of Germany to differentiate it from the Danish brewing company Carlsberg.

History [edit]

Established 1878 in the town of Homburg, Saarland (then part of Bavaria), the brewery was named after the nearby Karlsberg Castle. Karlsberg's ownership has been handed down through generations. The current owner, Richard Weber, is the great-grandson of the brewery's founder.

Brands [edit]

Karlsberg's brands include Karlsberg, Beckers, Ottweiler and Kasteel which includes Kasteel Cru, a lager brewed in Saverne using champagne yeast.[1][2]

Karlsberg Group [edit]

The Karlsberg Group also owns and distributes other beer brands, among them the German brewery Königsbacher (in Koblenz) and the French brewery Brasserie de Saverne. The juice producers Merziger, Klindworth and Niehoffs Vaihinger belong to the company. In 2001 Karlsberg acquired controlling interest in the Mineralbrunnen Überkingen-Teinach company from Nestlé, including Afri-Cola and the mineral water brands Staatlich Fachingen and Hirschquelle from the Black Forest. Alcohol-free drinks today make up more than 50% of the company's turnover (of 691 million euros in the fiscal year 2004/05).

Carlsberg A/S (/ˈkɑːrlzbɜːrɡ/; Danish: [ˈkʰɑˀls̪ˌpɛɡˀ]) is a Danish multinational brewer. Founded in 1847 by J. C. Jacobsen, the company's headquarters is in Copenhagen, Denmark. Since Jacobsen's death in 1887, the majority owner of the company has been the Carlsberg Foundation. The company's flagship brand is Carlsberg (named after Jacobsen's son Carl). Other brands include Tuborg, Kronenbourg, Somersby cider, Holsten, Neptun, Belgian Grimbergen, Fix, one of Greece's oldest brands and more than 500 local beers.[6][failed verification] The company employs around 41,000 people, primarily in Europe and Asia. Carlsberg is currently the 6th largest brewery in the world based on revenue.[7]

History [edit]

Carlsberg was founded by J. C. Jacobsen, a philanthropist and avid art collector. With his fortune he amassed an art collection which is housed in the Ny Carlsberg Glyptotek in central Copenhagen. The first brew was finished on 10 November 1847, and the export of Carlsberg beer began in 1868 with the export of one barrel to Edinburgh, Scotland.[8] Some of the company's original logos include an elephant, after which some of its lagers are named, and the swastika,[note 1] the use of which was discontinued in the 1930s because of its association with political parties in neighboring Germany.

Jacobsen's son Carl opened a brewery in 1882 named Ny (New) Carlsberg forcing him

©Archive Photos/Getty Images
As The Madera Tribune reported in 1952, Irving Wexler first rose to prominence in the criminal underworld with an illicit liquor operation in New York City during Prohibition.
By the time he was caught in August of 1951, he was also charged with trafficking illegal substances and owed the federal government $1 million in unpaid taxes. While awaiting trial for his role in a nationwide narcotics ring, he died of heart failure in Alcatraz's hospital on June 24, 1951.

According to the official Alcatraz History website, Henri Young was a bank robber and murderer who arrived at Alcatraz in 1936. Three years later, he attempted to escape on a makeshift raft with William Martin and Rufus Roy McCain but was forced to turn back when the latter's fear of drowning threatened to capsize the boat.
Although he never explained why, Young would fatally stab McCain a year after being released from solitary confinement after the attempted escape and remained in Alcatraz until 1948. After two prison transfers, Young was released on parole from the Washington State Penitentiary in 1972. However, he soon jumped parole and disappeared completely.

According to the official Alcatraz History website Burton Phillips was a bank robber and kidnapper serving a life sentence in Alcatraz when he became involved in a general strike. Participants stayed in their cells after lunch and refused to work in the prison's shops.
During this strike, Warden James A. Johnson stepped into the mess hall to observe the inmates, which Phillips took as a chance to step out of line and kick him until he fell unconscious. The guards retaliated, and Phillips found himself in the prison hospital soon after.

According to Time, Forrest Tucker's stay in Alcatraz only resulted in him meeting another bank robber named Theodore Green, with whom he would form the "Over the Hill Gang," named for their advanced ages.
Tucker was known for his calm demeanor, earpiece equipped with a police scanner, and ingenious robbery methods that, in one case, saw his crew pose as bank security guards to steal gold from their vault. Although he escaped San Quentin in 1979 and apparently tried to reform in 1993, he died in prison after a final crime spree in 1999.

Metzitzah B'peh (Direct Oral Suctioning)

How Metzitzah B'peh (Direct Oral Suctioning) Can Cause Infection

Public health experts have found that metzitzah b'peh can put babies at risk of getting a harmful virus called herpes simplex virus type 1 or HSV-1. Some of these babies became seriously ill. Some developed brain damage, and others have died. There is no proven way eliminate the risk of HSV-1 infection from direct oral suctioning, though there are options to reduce the risk.

Many adults carry HSV-1 in their bodies. They may have no symptoms or only mild

History of Ladino

In the 1492 diaspora, when the Jews were expelled from Spain, they took with them Spanish of the late 15th century and expanded the lexicon with language influences from the Mediterranean, primarily where they settled.

Foreign words that mixed with Old Spanish derive mainly from Hebrew, Arabic, Turkish, Greek, French, and to a lesser extent from Portuguese and Italian.

The Ladino community population took a large hit when the Nazis destroyed most of the communities in Europe where Ladino had been the first language among Jews.

Very few of the people who speak Ladino are monolingual. Ladino language advocates fear that it could die out as speakers more often use the languages of the cultures around them.

It is estimated that about 200,000 people can understand or speak Ladino. Israel has one of the largest Ladino-speaking communities, with many words borrowed from Yiddish. Traditionally, Ladino was written in the Hebrew alphabet, writing and reading right to left. In the 20th

A RICH HISTORY OF MAKING HISTORY.
Swisher traces its roots back to 1861 when David Swisher, a merchant out of Newark, Ohio, received a small cigar business in settlement of a debt. David and his four sons began to sell cigars across the Midwest from their "rolling stores" or wagons. The cigars were rolled by hand every day in a one-room "manufactory" in Newark. In 1888, David's sons, John and Harry, bought the company from their father and renamed it Swisher Brothers. The company experienced great growth, and by 1895 the business had grown into three factories that employed over 1,000 people who hand-rolled as many as 300,000 cigars per day.

The Sages taught in a Tosefta that one who circumcises a child recites: Who has made us holy through His commandments, and commanded us concerning circumcision. The father of the circumcised child recites: Who has made us holy through His commandments, and commanded us to bring him into the covenant of Abraham, our father. Those standing there recite: Just as he has entered into the covenant, so may he enter into Torah, marriage, and good deeds. And the one who recites the additional blessing says: Who made the beloved one holy from the womb, marked the decree in his flesh, and gave his descendants the seal and the sign of the holy covenant. Therefore, as a reward for this, the living God, our Portion, commanded to deliver the beloved of our flesh from destruction, for the sake of His covenant that He set in our flesh. This article is about the Babylonian Talmud. For the Jerusalem Talmud, see Jerusalem Talmud. "Talmudic" redirects here. "Talmudic Aramaic" refers to the Jewish Babylonian Aramaic a

The Talmud (/ˈtɑ lmʊd, -mæd, ˈtæl-/; Hebrew: תַּלְמוּד, romanized: Talmūḏ) is the central text of Rabbinic Judaism and the primary source of Jewish religious law (halakha) and Jewish theology.[1][2] Until the advent of modernity, in nearly all Jewish communities, the Talmud was the centerpiece of Jewish cultural life and was foundational to "all Jewish thought and aspirations", serving also as "the guide for the daily life" of Jews.[3]

The term Talmud normally refers to the collection of writings named specifically the Babylonian Talmud (Talmud Bavli), although there is also an earlier collection known as the Jerusalem Talmud (Talmud Yerushalmi).[4] It may also traditionally be called Shas (ש״ס), a Hebrew abbreviation of shisha sedarim, or the "six orders" of the Mishnah.

The Talmud has two components: the Mishnah (מִשְׁנָה, c. 200 CE), a written compendium of the Oral Torah; and the Gemara (גְּמָרָא, c. 500 CE), an elucidation of the Mishnah and related Tannaitic writings that often ventures onto other subjects and expounds broadly on the Hebrew Bible. The term "Talmud" may refer to either the Gemara alone, or the Mishnah and Gemara together.

The entire Talmud consists of 63 tractates, and in the standard print, called the Vilna Shas, there are 2,711 double-sided folios.[5] It is written in Mishnaic Hebrew and Jewish Babylonian Aramaic and contains the teachings and opinions of thousands of rabbis (dating from before the Common Era through to the fifth century) on a variety of subjects, including halakha, Jewish ethics, philosophy, customs, history, and folklore, and many other topics. The Talmud is the basis for all codes of Jewish law and is widely quoted in rabbinic literature.

and is in consequence regarded as a thirteenfold commandment, which must under all circumstances be observed. Hence the necessity for the twofold instruction.

MISHNA: One may perform everything necessary for circumcision on the Sabbath, as circumcising, tearing open, sucking out the blood, applying a plaster or caraway seed. If the latter had not been ground before the Sabbath, one may masticate it with the teeth and then apply it. If one had not mixed wine with oil before the Sabbath, he may apply each separately. is not conclusive evidence! It may be that R. Ishmael in the case of the sacrifice holds, that because it is not necessary that the commandment be beautified.* But in the case of circumcision, where the beautifying of the commandment is necessary (as is taught in Tract Sakkah), we might say, that R. Ishmael is of a different opinion; therefore the sages of Neherdai say, that the Tanas who hold, that after having finished the circumcision the operator must not commence anew, are in reality the rabbis who differ with R. Jose in Tract Menachoth concerning the law of the showbreads.†

The rabbis taught: "If excrescences remain on the gland after circumcision, and are such as make the circumcision invalid, they must be removed; and failure to do so involves the punishment of Karath." Who becomes liable to be punished by Karath? Said R. Kahana: "The circumciser." (If he performed the circumcision on Sabbath and did not finish it, he simply made a wound and did not perform a commandment; hence he becomes amenable to Karath. R. Papa opposed this; "The circumciser might say, 'I have performed one half of a commandment; come ye and complete the other half. Why should I be punished by Karath?' Therefore if the circumcision was performed on an adult who, excrescences which make it invalid having remained, will not permit them to be removed, he becomes amenable to Karath." This was opposed by R. Ashi: "As for an adult, what news does that impart to us? It is expressly stated [Genesis xvii. 14]: 'And any uncircumcised male, who circumciseth not the flesh of his foreskin, that soul shall be cut off from his people'? Therefore he says nay; it really refers to the circumciser, and only then if he came late on Sabbath, near twilight, and was told that it would be impossible to finish the operation before night, but persisted in performing it. If in consequence he left excrescences which make the circumcision invalid, he simply made a wound without performing a commandment, and thus he becomes amenable to Karath."

"Sucking out the blood." R. Papa said: "The circumciser who does not suck out the wound places the child in danger, and should be discharged from office." Is this not self-evident?

In 1934 James Armand de Rothschild established the first local commercial brewery with Gaston Dreyfus in Rishon LeZion. In 1940 the Nesher Brewery was commissioned by the Association of Americans and Canadians in Israel to supply beer to Australian troops who were in Israel. From 1942 the brewery enlarged its plant to increase the production of beer requested by both military and civilian consumers. In the 1952 in the city of Netanya the largest brewery of the Middle East has been founded with the name National Brewery by a group of investors led by Louis Herzberg. The National Brewery produced every year 400,000 barrels of beer and in 1954 it started to ship 180,000 bottles of its Abir lager beer to United States.

In 1924, Baron Edmond de Rothschild set up PICA, the Palestine Jewish Colonization Association, through which his enterprises and villages in Palestine were managed. He helped set up the Electric Corporation, the Potash Company, and the Nesher Beer Company. He also established the wine cellars of Rishon LeZion and Zichron Yaacov. He died in 1934 in France.

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Alfred Henry "Freddy" Heineken (4 November 1923 – 3 January 2002) was a Dutch businessman for Heineken International, the brewing company created in 1864 by his grandfather Gerard Adriaan Heineken in Amsterdam. He served as chairman of the board of directors and CEO from 1971 until 1989. After his retirement as chairman and CEO, Heineken continued to sit on the board of directors until his death and served as chairman of the supervisory board from 1989 to 1995. At the time of his death, Heineken was one of the richest people in the Netherlands, with a net worth of 9.5 billion guilders.[1]

Early life [edit]

Heineken was born on 4 November 1923 in Amsterdam. He was the grandson of Gerard Adriaan Heineken, who was the founder of the brewery Heineken International.

Career [edit]

On 1 June 1941, he entered the service of the Heineken company, which by then was no longer owned by the family. He bought back stock several years later, to ensure the family controlled the company again. He created the Heineken Holding that owned 50.005% of Heineken International; he held a majority stake in Heineken Holding. By the time of his resignation as chairman of the board in 1989 he had transformed Heineken from a brand that was known primarily in the Netherlands into a

Spoetzl Brewery is the oldest independent brewery in Texas and one of the oldest in the country. It is now owned and operated by the Gambrinus Company out of San Antonio (they also own Trumer Brewery). Its Shiner Bock is a famous dark lager that you can get across the country, named for the town in which it was founded in 1909.

Spoetzl was opened as The Shiner Brewing Association by Czech and German immigrants in Shiner, Texas. They resolved to brew the beers they grew up drinking i their home countries. They appointed Herman Weiss as their first brewmaster, whic we listed as the founder for lack of the many names of the immigrants who founde the association that began the brewery.

Baghdad, Iraq (CNN) -- A man who oversaw suicide attacks that devastated the Iraqi government said he got an order to target four ministries in the strikes, which killed and injured hundreds of citizens

Muslims account for 85 percent of casualties in al Qaeda attacks

BY ALEXANDER MAYER | December 9th, 2009 |

The Combating Terrorism Center at West Point recently released a stunning report which found that Muslims have accounted for 85 percent of the casualties from al Qaeda attacks between 2004-2008. Even more astounding, during the last two years of the study (2006-2008), the percentage of al Qaeda's Muslim victims skyrocketed to an almost-unbelievable 98 percent.

Al Qaeda's affiliate in Syria claims another suicide attack

BY BILL ROGGIO | December 13th, 2012 | @billroggio

The Al Nusrah Front for the People of the Levant, al Qaeda in Iraq's affiliate in Syria, claimed credit for yesterday's complex attack against the Syrian Interior Ministry in Damascus. Five people were killed in the bombings.

The Al Nusrah Front said two of its suicide bombers "parked their two vehicles in front of the building, and then stormed and clashed with those inside and killed a lot of them," according to the SITE Intelligence Group, which obtained the statements from the Al Nusrah that were published on Twitter (the jihadist forums were not accessible). After the suicide bombers launched their attack, the two car bombs "were blown up remotely."

Five people were reported to have been killed in the blasts, and the force of the explosions collapsed several walls of the building.

The terror group, which was designated as such by the US on Dec. 11, has now claimed credit for 43 of the 52 suicide attacks that have taken place in Syria in the past 12 months [see LWJ report, US adds Al Nusrah Front, 2 leaders to terrorism list, for information on the designation].

The group has become one of the most powerful and

- The 2003 Riyadh compound bombings occurred on 12 May 2003, in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. Al-Qaeda gunmen stormed building complexes inhabited by Western expatriates, killing 39 people and wounding over 160.[20]
- The 2003 Casablanca bombings occurred on May 16, 2003, in Casablanca, Morocco. 45 people were killed as a result of these attacks (12 suicide-bombers and 33 victims).
- The 2003 Marriott Hotel bombing occurred on August 5, 2003, in Jakarta, Indonesia. A suicide bomber detonated a car bomb outside the lobby of the newly opened JW Marriott luxury hotel, killing twelve people and injuring 150. Those killed were mostly Indonesian, with the exception of one Dutch.
- The 2003 Istanbul bombings were four truck bomb attacks carried out on November 15, 2003, and November 20, 2003, in Istanbul, Turkey, leaving 57 people dead, and 700 wounded. The attacks targeted two synagogues, a British consulate, and a British bank in Istanbul.

2004 [edit]
- Four Al-Qaeda gunmen carried out the 2004 Khobar attacks on May 29, 2004.[21]

2005 [edit]
- The November 2005 Amman bombings were suicide attacks on 3 hotels in Jordan during a Palestinian wedding. 57 people were killed and another 115 were injured.

2007 [edit]
- Al-Qaeda in the Islamic Maghreb (AQIM) launched two car bomb attacks on 11 April 2007, which targeted the government palace and a police station located in Algiers.
- Al-Qaeda is believed to have been responsible for the failed assassination attempt on former Pakistani prime minister Benazir Bhutto on 7 October 2007.[22]
- al-Qaeda in the Islamic Maghreb launched two car bomb attacks on 11 December 2007, which targeted Algerian Constitutional court and a UN office in Algiers.

- Al-Qaeda claimed responsibility for the bombing of the Danish embassy in Pakistan on June 2, 2008.[23] Mustafa Abu al-Yazid, a high-ranking member of Al-Qaeda, issued a statement after the bombing, claiming that the attack was a response to the 2005 publication of the Muhammed Cartoons.[24]
- The Battle of Wanat occurred on July 13, 2008, when forces including Al-Qaeda and Taliban guerrillas attacked NATO troops near the village of Wanat in the Waygal district in Afghanistan's far eastern province of Nuristan. The Battle of Wanat has been described as the "Black Hawk Down" of the War in Afghanistan, as one of the bloodiest attacks of the war and one of several attacks on remote outposts.[8] In contrast to previous roadside bombs and haphazard attacks and ambushes, this attack was well coordinated with fighters from many insurgent and terrorist groups with an effort that was disciplined and sustained which was able to target key assets such as the TOW launcher with precision.

- Shortly after the arrest of Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab in the December 25, 2009, following an attempted bombing on Northwest Airlines Flight 253, the suspect reportedly told officials he had traveled to Yemen for training by Al-Qaeda, although British counterterrorism officials dismissed the claims.[25] President Barack Obama's top security official Janet Napolitano on December 27 stated "Right now we have no indication it's part of anything larger", warning it would be "inappropriate to speculate" that Al-Qaeda had sent Abdulmutallab on a suicide mission. History of Ladino

In the 1492 diaspora, when the Jews were expelled from Spain, they took with them Spanish of the late 15th century and expanded the lexicon with language influences from the Mediterranean, primarily where they settled.

Foreign words that mixed with Old Spanish derive mainly from Hebrew, Arabic, Turkish, Greek, French, and to a lesser extent from Portuguese and Italian.

The Ladino community population took a large hit when the Nazis destroyed most of the communities in Europe where Ladino had been the first language among Jews.

Very few of the people who speak Ladino are monolingual. Ladino language advocates fear that it could die out as speakers more often use the languages of the cultures around them.

It is estimated that about 200,000 people can understand or speak Ladino. Israel has one of the largest Ladino-speaking communities, with many words borrowed from Yiddish. Traditionally, Ladino was written in the Hebrew alphabet, writing and reading right to left. In the 20th

Meyer Lansky
Meyer Lansky was an associate of the Jewish mob as well as other prominent mafia figures such as Lucky Luciano (yes, him again). Also, as mentioned earlier, he was good friends with Bugsy Siegel, even from childhood. Also known as the "Mob's Accountant," he developed various gambling operations around the world including Las Vegas, Florida and New Orleans
Attempting to take control of the Flamingo hotel in Havana, Cuba, Lansky attended a secret meeting to discuss Bugsy taking over its operation. However, he was not
Carlos Lehder
Carlos Lehder was a German-Colombian drug lord and co-founder of the Medellin Cartel. He started out selling marijuana and stolen cars and smuggling them between the U.S. and Canada. Later on, he partnered with George Jung to start smuggling cocaine into the U.S. Initially, they used suitcases but later purchased their own airplane to just fly it in. Because of his success, Lehder got too big for his britches and so Jung and Lehder had a falling out.
And things only went downhill from there. In 1984, Pablo Escobar had Rodrigo Lara
Frank Costello
Frank Costello was an Italian-American crime boss for the Luciano family. Born in Italy, he moved to America as a small child. By 13, he became involved with local gangs. Running with Luciano, Siegel and Lansky, among others, he was involved in murder, robbery, extortion, gambling and narcotics. In 1925, Costello became a U.S. citizen and a year later was indicted on bootlegging charges, but the jury was deadlocked.
Arnold Rothstein
John Dillinger
John Dillinger was an American gangster operating mainly during the Great Depression after the stock market crash of 1929. However, he started out before that in 1924. Finding it difficult to hold a job, Dillinger began planning robberies. During a grocery store robbery, stealing $50, he hit someone on the head while escaping. He along with an associate were arrested for the crime and confessed to it.
Dillinger was sentenced to prison for 10 to 20 years and became further entrenched in the criminal underworld. There, in prison, Dillinger studied how to rob banks, learning from expert bank robbers. Meanwhile, Dillinger's father worked on getting him out of prison, gathering 188 signatures. Almost 10 years later, in 1933, he was released on parole, carrying out his first bank robbery in 1933 and 11 more after that. As a result, FBI agents chased Dillinger who had become one of the most notorious bank robbers of the time. Dillinger was shot in 1934 by the FBI after leaving a movie theater. Johnny
Mickey Cohen started out as a boxer, participating in illegal prizefights in Los Angeles when he was just a teenager. During the prohibition, Cohen moved to Chicago became involved with organized crime, he started out as an enforcer and even met Al Capone. After spending some time in prison, he started running illegal gambling operations including card games. In 1939, he moved back to LA to work for Bugsy Siegel.
In 1947, after Siegel was murdered, Cohen sought revenge and challenged the presumed assailants to a gunfight. They did not and Cohen fled the scene before cops arrived. An investigation into Cohen led to - you guessed it - a tax evasion conviction.
Bugsy Siegel
Bugsy Siegel, another famous American crime boss from the time of prohibition, was described as handsome and charismatic, which made him a gangster celebrity. At a young age, he befriended Jewish crime boss Meyer Lanski and Charles Luciano. He was allegedly involved in bootlegging and murder, carrying out hits for Lanski. While married, Siegel had a reputation for womanizing, which ultimately led to his marriage ending in 1946.
After making numerous enemies, Bugsy Siegel was sent off to California by the east coast mob in the late 1930s. He had already established connections there in the

In spring 2020, Velasquez Larin, also known as "Agresor," "Saturno," and "Paco," allegedly arranged for Fulton clique members from Maryland to travel to New York to assist in the search for rival gang members in Elmont, according to prosecutors.

Bran, who served as the leader of MS-13's Sailors Locos Salvatrucha clique suspected that Hernandez-Gonzalez had violated MS-13 rules by aiding a rival gang. Based upon this suspicion, Bran created a ruse to lure Hernandez-Gonzalez to the "Pony Pasture" area on the banks of the James River.

Bran ordered that MS-13 associate Karen San Jose contact Hernandez-Gonzalez and convinced him to gather with other MS-13 members and enlisted help of two juveniles who were tasked with actu

Spoetzl Brewery is the oldest independent brewery in Texas and one of the oldest in the country. It is now owned and operated by the Gambrinus Company out of San Antonio (they also own Trumer Brewery). Its Shiner Bock is a famous dark lager that you can get across the country, named for the town in which it was founded in 1909.

Spoetzl was opened as The Shiner Brewing Association by Czech and German immigrants in Shiner, Texas. They resolved to brew the beers they grew up drinking i their home countries. They appointed Herman Weiss as their first brewmaster, whic we listed as the founder for lack of the many names of the immigrants who founde the association that began the brewery.

Metzitzah B'peh (Direct Oral Suctioning)

Karamanli Turkish (Καραμανλήδικα)

Karamanli Turkish is a variety of Anatolian Turkish that was spoken by the Karamanlides, Turkish-speaking Orthodox Christians who lived in Ottoman Turkey until 1923. During the exchanges of populations between Turkey and Greece in 1923, the Karamanlides were sent to Greece, and some of them continued to speak Karamanli Turkish.

Karamanli Turkish was written with the Greek alphabet and many publications were produced during the 18th and 19th centuries. The Karamanlides were known as Zimmiyan-ı Karaman or Karamaniyan in Turkish, and their language as Karamanica or Karamanlı Türkçesi.

Sanders played a rabbi in the low-budget 1999 comedy "My X-Girlfriend's Wedding Reception." The film has a 5.3/10 rating on IMDB, but a 100% score on Rotten Tomatoes, based on 86 user ratings.
His cameo as Rabbi Manny Shevitz, who gives a speech during a wedding reception, doesn't disappoint.

Otto's Brewery opened in 1933 and closed in 1937 it was open for 4 years. Breweries that are open for a couple of years like this did not have a long time to produce advertising and collec so they tend to be more scarce than breweries with more longevity. This listing was active du Prohibition which makes it an oddity. Some breweries were able to stay in business by produ "near-beer" which was very low alcohol, some switched over to bottling sodas or other bever some became ice-houses or other related businesses. Circumcision in the Talmud
Shabbat 137b:6-8
The Sages taught in a Tosefta that one who circumcises a child recites: Who has made us holy through His commandments, and commanded us concerning circumcision. The father of the circumcised child recites: Who has made us holy through His commandments, and commanded us to bring him into the covenant of Abraham, our father. Those standing there recite: Just as he has entered into the covenant, so may he enter into Torah, marriage, and good deeds. And the one who recites the additional blessing says: Who made the beloved one holy from the womb, marked the decree in his flesh, and gave his descendants the seal and the sign of the holy covenant. Therefore, as a reward for this, the living God, our Portion, commanded to deliver the beloved of our flesh from destruction, for the sake of His covenant that He set in our flesh. Blessed are You, Lord, Who establishes the covenant. One who circumcises converts says: Blessed are You, Lord, our God, King of the universe, Who made us holy with His commandments, and commanded us concerning circumcision. And the one who recites the additional blessing recites: Who has made us holy with His commandments, and commanded us to circumcise converts, and to drip from them covenantal blood, as were it not for the blood of the covenant, the heaven and earth would not be sustained, as it is stated: "If My covenant would not be with day and night, the ordinances of heaven and earth I would not have placed" (Jeremiah 33:25), which is

Good Beer, Good Food & Good Company
In 1934 James Armand de Rothschild established the first local commercial brewery with Gaston Dreyfus in Rishon LeZion. In 1940 the Nesher Brewery was commissioned by the Association of Americans and Canadians in Israel to supply beer to Australian troops who were in Israel. From 1942 the brewery enlarged its plant to increase the production of beer requested by both military and civilian consumers. In the 1952 in the city of Netanya the largest brewery of the Middle East has been founded with the name National Brewery by a group of investors led by Louis Herzberg. The National Brewery produced every year 400,000 barrels of beer and in 1954 it started to ship 180,000 bottles of its Abir laber beer to United States.
In 1924, Baron Edmond de Rothschild set up PICA, the Palestine Jewish Colonization Association, through which his enterprises and villages in Palestine were managed. He helped set up the Electric Corporation, the Potash Company, and the Nesher Beer Company. He also established the wine cellars of Rishon LeZion and Zichron Yaacov. He died in 1934 in France.
In 1957, PICA transferred its considerable properties to the government and to the Jewish Agency. The Spoetzl Brewery is the oldest independent brewery in Texas and one of the oldest in the country. It is now owned and operated by the Gambrinus Company out of San Antonio (they also own Trumer Brewery). Its Shiner Bock is a famous dark lager that you can get across the country, named for the town in which it was founded in 1909.

Spoetzl was opened as The Shiner Brewing Association by Czech and German immigrants in Shiner, Texas. They resolved to brew the beers they grew up drinking in their home countries. They appointed Herman Weiss as their first brewmaster, which we listed as the founder for lack of the many names of the immigrants who founded the association that began the brewery.
